Few People Are Donating Food Baskets

By LINDA OLIG

Few groups and individuals have indicated their intentions to share some of their "plenty" with the needy, said Rich Norby of Lincoln Community Services (LCS).

Only six Thanksgiving food baskets have been promised for county welfare recipients this year, compared to the 76 distributed last year, said Jane Finney, County Welfare Dept. social services worker.

To date, 45 welfare families have been identified as needing food assistance for the holiday, Ms. Finney said, adding, "of course, all requests haven't come in yet."

Thus, many welfare recipients will have to "eat a week of cold cereal and bologna" to afford just the basics for the all-American meal, she said.

The LCS-operated Holiday Bureau has received commitments for only 16 Thanksgiving food baskets, compared to 50 last year, Norby said.

To avoid duplication, the Holiday Bureau coordinates the giving of gifts, food or money to families and individuals at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The economy is partly to blame for the absence of the giving spirit, Ms. Finney and Norby agreed.

"A lot of times we're afraid to take a little bit off of our table for others," she said.

In addition, they said, agencies have speculated that many churches and organizations that ordinarily donated food baskets for the holidays adopted Vietnamese refugees this year instead.

"Last year I didn't have to solicit," Ms. Finney lamented. "People were giving out of their hearts."

Agencies cooperating with the Holiday Bureau include Family Service Association, the County Welfare Dept., Veterans Service Center, Salvation Army, Indian Center, Lincoln Action Program, American Red Cross, Catholic Social Service Bureau and Malone Community Center.

Iowa Beef Hires Racketeer's Son-In-Law

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The hiring of Walter Bodenstein, who allegedly has Mafia connections, as new group vice president of Iowa Beef Processors Inc., has caused negative repercussions on Wall Street and in Nebraska.

Iowa Beef, headquartered in Dakota City, announced Tuesday the appointment of Bodenstein, son-in-law of Moe Steinman, who is known as "the kingpin of a system of New York area meat racketeering," according to both the N.Y. Times and The Wall Street Journal.

Bodenstein replaces Leroy Zider, Iowa Beef's chief operations officer and executive vice president, who suddenly resigned Tuesday. Bodenstein was reportedly en route to Nebraska.

About 13 months ago, Iowa Beef Processors, the nation's largest beef company, and its chairman, Currier Holman, were found guilty of conspiracy to bribe union officials and supermarket executives in the metropolitan New York area.

In announcing his decision, Manhattan Supreme Court Justice Burton B. Roberts, who heard the case without a jury, said Holman and Steinman had indeed formulated "a plan to bribe labor leaders and supermarket officials" as the price for introducing IBP's boxed-beef products into the lucrative New York market.

Holman received an unconditional discharge (no punishment) but the company was fined $7,000.

Steinman is currently serving a one-year prison term after pleading guilty to a single federal income tax charge. All other state and federal conspiracy charges were dropped.

Holman and Iowa Beef have denied the conspiracy charges and are appealing the violations.

In 1973, Bodenstein was indicted on tax charges along with his father-in-law and two associates. The Justice Department dropped the indictment against Bodenstein in return for his agreement to testify in another case.

A federal grand jury had charged them with filing false employer quarterly income tax returns. The tax returns allegedly listed salaries paid by several Steinman meat brokerages to 22 persons, including relatives of supermarket chain executives, who weren't "bona fide employes."

In announcing Bodenstein's appointment Tuesday, Iowa Beef President Fred Haigler said Bodenstein's experience would give added strength to Iowa Beef's efforts in both production and marketing.

Judge Disagrees

However, an article in Wednesday's edition of the Wall Street Journal quoted Judge Roberts as saying: "Bodenstein knew virtually nothing about the meat business other than that his father-in-law took care of union leaders and meat buyers."

In reaction to Bodenstein's appointment, Iowa Beef Processor's stock prices dropped overnight, according to a local broker, Bud Duvall.

Iowa Beef stock closed yesterday at $26⅞, Duvall said. Wednesday, Iowa Beef stock didn't open. If traded, it would have been down $8 or $9 — one-third the price — Duvall said.

The best bid was $17 a share and the asking price was $21, he said. "Apparently floor officials saw what was happening and stopped trading until they could match orders," he explained.

Reluctant To Talk

The Star contacted a number of livestock-related organizations and industries in Nebraska. Only one of those — Louis Wiebe, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union — would allow his name to be used.

"This is a big blow for farmers," Wiebe said, "who are trying to regain stability and credibility after the past ventures of American Beef Packers."

Another Nebraska Farm leader, who refused to be identified, said "it sounds just crookeder than heck." He said he "hates to make judgment of anybody" but "this is definitely not in the best interest of livestock feeders in Nebraska.

'Good For Industry'

On the other hand, he said, "it may not have a thing to do with our relationship with the company as long as they pay us our money . . . If it helps get boxed beef into New York City, it may be good for the industry."

As an afterthought, he said, "We've been wondering why four or five top echelon people at Iowa Beef left recently."

Among those who declined to comment were Don Magdanz, senior executive vice president of the National Livestock Feeders Association; John Klinker, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, officials of the Kay-Omaha stockyards, Paul Johnson, executive secretary of the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, and Mickey Stewart of the Nebraska Stockgrowers Association.

A State Agriculture Department official, who also asked not to be identified, commented, "This kind of news scares the hell out of people . . . when you tell them something like this is going on in Nebraska."

Spokesmen in the University of Nebraska agricultural economics department expressed concern about where Nebraska beef raisers who choose to boycott Iowa Beef could market their animals.

Biggest State Packer

The most recent figures, based on direct purchase from Nebraska farms, indicate Iowa Beef is more than twice as large as the second biggest packer in Nebraska — Swift's at Grand Island. Some of the state's estimated 30 packers are one-family operations.

Several officials commented that with American Beef Packers of Omaha in bankruptcy proceedings, there are simply not enough packers in this area to assume all the volume of Iowa Beef, should a boycott be attempted.

Death Overtakes Gen. Franco

AP

She's Finally Official

Irene, an elephant that ran amok from Hoxie Brothers Circus a couple of weeks ago and plunged through the plate glass window of the Miami Board of Realtors, has been made an honorary member of the board and presented with a 25-pound peanut cake. Chef J. B. Hill, left, and his assistant, Erasmo Rodregez, presented her with the delicacy.

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, dictator of Spain for 36 years, is dead, the government announced Thursday. He was 82 and had been gravely ill for more than a month.

Franco's wife, daughter and private chaplain had rushed to the hospital earlier after doctors announced that the old general's brain activity had virtually ceased and that "all hope is lost."

Aided by a score of doctors, Franco had held on to life tenaciously since he was first stricken Oct. 17. His heart, lungs and kidneys began failing in quick succession, but his staying power astounded even his own medical team. His body wasted away, but he still struggled back from three major stomach operations to remove ulcers and stop massive internal bleeding.

With the help of Hitler and Mussolini, Franco came to power in the 1936-39 Spanish Civil War that left about a million Spaniards dead and became a testing ground for World War II in Europe. Death for the five-foot four-inch Franco, a cold and calculating man who led a spartan life, came at another critical juncture for Spain.

Neighboring Portugal was in throes of its first experiments with democracy after nearly half a century of dictatorship, and Spain too was heading into uncharted political waters. The government was taking steps to pull out of Spanish Sahara, Western Europe was still bitter over the execution of five young terrorists by Franco's right-wing regime, and leftist guerrillas and Basque separatists were poised for more violence.

Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, 37, Franco's handpicked heir who was made temporary chief of state Oct. 30 as the stricken Franco showed no signs of recovery and who will become Spain's first king in 44 years, has indicated he will be open to orderly political change.

He will take the name King Juan Carlos I

The big question is what sort of government will develop for Spaniards, effectively locked out of the political process for 36 years.

One strong indication was the denunciation of Juan Carlos by Spain's illegal political opposition Nov 1 and its call for general elections to decide the country's future, freedom for political prisoners and restoration of civil liberties. Right-wingers, however, are campaigning against political change, and Juan Carlos is caught in the middle.

Americans and other foreigners, many of them idealists, poured into Spain to fight against Franco during the 1936-39 civil war. The Kremlin also became heavily involved on the anti-Franco side.

Franco gave various forms of support to the German and Italian dictators during World War II, but with the exception of one division he sent to the Russian front, he kept Spain out of the fighting.

From 1939 on, Franco held absolute power in Spain, challenged only by periods of international criticism and recently by terrorist attacks by Basque separatists and leftist guerrillas.

A professional soldier and devout Roman Catholic, Franco was credited with raising Spain from a destitute, shattered country after the civil war to economic well-being.

Ultra-Conservative Group Takes Over School Parent Meetings

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

A well-orchestrated, ultra-conservative group has taken over two Lincoln Public Schools parent meetings, attacking an academic course and calling for abolition of the United Nations and UNICEF, the U.N. International Children's Emergency Fund, school officials said.

The group appeared uninvited at two Holmes Elementary School meetings on Oct. 21. Holmes and other school parents were invited to the sessions, announced in school newsletters and flyers, to discuss cultural awareness and "Man: A Course of Study" (MACOS).

Ruth Eickman, Holmes principal, said the group was led by S. H. Brauer Jr., head of the Nebraska School Improvement Association, and "did not allow the (75) parents who came to hear about this (course) to ask questions."

At the meeting the group charged that MACOS will damage their children.

Other school officials told The Star that Brauer and his group have claimed MACOS teaches anti-Christian, atheistic values. The social studies course examines animal life and world human cultures and has as its goal allowing children to understand their own culture better.

Lincoln school officials say they've had virtually no complaints about the course since it was first offered in 1969.

At the Holmes meetings, Miss Eickman said, one of the group "commented they had a pre-meeting" to plan strategy. Besides Brauer, they represented "a church group, a parochial school, some were John Birch (Society members)." She said they "had materials there from John Birch."

"They were very well organized and knew exactly what they were coming for. It was very evident they had some instructions," Miss Eickman said.

The group's technique bypassed normal channels parents have available to examine or protest curriculum, through a school-parent task force.

"We're anxious to have community involvement in the schools," Miss Eickman said, "and certainly we are willing to take criticism. But when it comes to the point when people are not allowing us to tell what the situation is, that's not fair to parents who came to hear about the program."

Contacted by telephone in Hastings Wednesday, Brauer denied that he spoke at or disrupted the Holmes meetings, denied that he had any connection with an organized group, denied that he passed out literature, denied that he is or was a John Birch Society member, and denied that he participated in any pre-meeting.

Brauer said if school officials insisted on making the statements printed here, "I'm going after them." Brauer said, "I will not be maligned by these people or your newspaper."

A Beattie School parent not associated with the conservative group contacted The Star Wednesday, saying a group of eight or nine parents will meet Monday evening at the school administration building with Assoc. Supt. for Instruction Ron Brandt.

The meeting was requested to discuss what the parent described as "strange" materials and courses the Lincoln Public Schools allegedly offers, including MACOS, transactional analysis, sensitivity training and the occult.

Noting the parents are "upset" about such course content, the woman said they want to discuss with Brandt why that should "take up study time" from other basic subjects.

The parents involved have children in Kahoa, Mickle and Lakeview Elementary Schools, and the woman said there were similar complaints about Pyrtle School.

Brandt said the man who contacted him to set up the meeting requested a "private conversation" with him and the small group, and "others are not welcome."

"We have no desire to hide anything," Brandt told The Star, noting he'd be "very pleased" to meet with any other groups on request.

But he does not consider such sessions public meetings, Brandt said, and he wants to avoid having anyone "distort them for their own purposes."

Season's First Storm Smacks State

By MAXINE WOLF
Star Staff Writer

Blizzard conditions raged throughout most of Nebraska Wednesday, dumping up to 12 inches of snow in the Stuart area, blocking many highways in central, southwestern and northern counties, and creating six-foot drifts around the Cambridge vicinity.

At least one death in Nebraska Wednesday was attributed to the rampaging storm.

The State Patrol said the truck careened into the median, where the semi combination separated. The trailer came to rest in the median, and the cab continued on across the westbound lane, stopping on the shoulder.

Troopers said the driver was killed when he was thrown from the cab by the impact, while his passenger, a hitchhiker identified as Rodney King, 17, of Rhodes, Iowa, suffered cuts and bruises. Identification of the victim was withheld pending notification of relatives.

In the extreme east and southeastern parts of the state, rains fell off and on throughout the day and night, topped by 1.45 inches at Lincoln, 1.03 at Grand Island and 1.00 at Omaha.

Spawned earlier this week in the Southern Rockies, the major winter storm swept through Colorado and Kansas before smacking western Nebraska early Wednesday and moving across the state.

Nine inches of snow, accompanied by strong winds, fell at Bassett and Sidney, and about eight inches was on the ground in North Platte by Wednesday night.

All schools in the North Platte area were dismissed early Wednesday afternoon, while city offices closed about 1 p.m. and the Lincoln County Courthouse workers went home at 3 p.m.

Between six and eight inches of snow was reported at Orchard in northeast Nebraska.

Atkinson, in Holt County between O'Neill and Stuart, was without power for a time Wednesday afternoon, after high winds downed power lines.

Creighton received five inches of snow with a total of 1.45 inches of moisture. About one inch of heavy wet snow and slush covered the ground at the Norfolk airport early Wednesday night.

Roads were blocked in the Ainsworth and Ord areas in central and northern Nebraska Wednesday night. Earlier in the day all roads in the McCook and Imperial areas of southwestern Nebraska were closed.

The State Roads Department also reported the following highways blocked by drifting snow: U.S. 26 from Ogallala to Lewellen; Nebraska 92 from Merna to Arnold; U.S. 183 north and south of Bassett; Nebaska 97 from North Platte to Mullen, and Nebraska 92 from Arthur to Tryon.

Officials of the Roads Department urged motorists late Wednesday not to plan to travel to western Nebraska until the storm subsides.

Several motels just off the interstate in the Kearney vicinity reported full occupancy Wednesday night, and at least one person asked for lodging overnight at the Kearney city jail.

Lincoln County Sheriff Gordon Gilster at North Platte said 25 to 30 persons who were stranded by the storm were rescued in that area.

He said National Guard troops were called out to rescue stranded motorists.

Things Aren't Crystal Clear

Leave it to educators to be the first to obfuscate, er, make things unclear.

"I learned something new," Buettner said "That means blackboards." The full list, for the uninitiated, also includes tagboard, pegboard, portable storage and the ever popoular but totally imprecise "etc."

Troopers said the driver was killed when he was thrown from the cab by the impact, while his passenger, a hitchhiker identified as Rodney King, 17, of Rhodes, Iowa, suffered cuts and bruises. Identification of the victim was withheld pending notification of relatives.

In the extreme east and southeastern parts of the state, rains fell off and on throughout the day and night, topped by 1.45 inches at Lincoln, 1.03 at Grand Island and 1.00 at Omaha.

Spawned earlier this week in the Southern Rockies, the major winter storm swept through Colorado and Kansas before smacking western Nebraska early Wednesday and moving across the state.

Nine inches of snow, accompanied by strong winds, fell at Bassett and Sidney, and about eight inches was on the ground in North Platte by Wednesday night.

All schools in the North Platte area were dismissed early Wednesday afternoon, while city offices closed about 1 p.m. and the Lincoln County Courthouse workers went home at 3 p.m.

Between six and eight inches of snow was reported at Orchard in northeast Nebraska.

Atkinson, in Holt County between O'Neill and Stuart, was without power for a time Wednesday afternoon, after high winds downed power lines.

Creighton received five inches of snow with a total of 1.45 inches of moisture. About one inch of heavy wet snow and slush covered the ground at the Norfolk airport early Wednesday night.

Roads were blocked in the Ainsworth and Ord areas in central and northern Nebraska Wednesday night. Earlier in the day all roads in the McCook and Imperial areas of southwestern Nebraska were closed.

The State Roads Department also reported the following highways blocked by drifting snow: U.S. 26 from Ogallala to Lewellen; Nebraska 92 from Merna to Arnold; U.S. 183 north and south of Bassett; Nebaska 97 from North Platte to Mullen; and Nebraska 92 from Arthur to Tryon.

Officials of the Roads Department urged motorists late Wednesday not to plan to travel to western Nebraska until the storm subsides.

Several motels just off the interstate in the Kearney vicinity reported full occupancy Wednesday night, and at least one person asked for lodging overnight at the Kearney city jail.

Lincoln County Sheriff Gordon Gilster at North Platte said 25 to 30 persons who were stranded by the storm were rescued in that area.

He said National Guard troops were called out to rescue stranded motorists.

Things Aren't Crystal Clear

Leave it to educators to be the first to obfuscate, er, make things unclear.

"I learned something new," Buettner said. "That means blackboards." The full list, for the uninitiated, also includes tagboard, pegboard, portable storage and the ever popoular but totally imprecise "etc."

Miki Admits Inadequacy As Japan's Leader

© The New York Times

Tokyo — Premier Takeo Miki of Japan shattered political tradition Wednesday by openly admitting that his handling of his nation's political, diplomatic, economic, and military affairs has been inadequate.

Miki told a televised news conference on his return from the summit meeting at Rambouillet, France, that, compared with the work of European leaders, "I felt strongly that my efforts have been far from adequate."

While the Japanese are known for modesty and self-efacement, politicans here — or anywhere else — are not known for telling their constituents that they haven't done their jobs well.

Miki, who has spent his entire 38-year political career in Japan's Parliament, also said that Japanese politics had been too inward looking and should turn outward. "For Japan," he said, "isolation is the way to ruin."

In his opening remarks before answering questions, Miki said that at Rambouillet there was an opportunity for him to meet alone with Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France, Premier Aldo Moro of Italy, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West germany, and President Gerald Ford of the United States.

The Japanese leader said, "I was very much impressed with the serious attitude those leaders showed. I learned, that the European politicans were dealing with the issues of politics, diplomacy, economics, and military seriously, as though those were matters of life and death of a nation or a culture."

"Till then," Miki continued, "I had been thinking that I had been doing my best ever since the beginning of the Miki administration. But compared with the difficulties those European politicians have, I felt strongly that my efforts have been far from adequate."

Miki also seemed to underscore a sentiment expressed by many Japanese about his participation in the summit, that this was the first time Japan has been included as a matter of course in a major summit meeting.

The premier said, "Japan cannot survive without international cooperation. To Japan, isolation is the way to ruin. I would like the Japanese people really to understand the position of Japan — Japan in the world."

Miki cautioned, "Japan's politics should not look inward too much. Though domestic issues are important, we are in an era now where foreign and domestic issues are inseparable. So Japanese politics should look more outward."

The premier's words, however, appeared to have fallen on deaf ears. The majority of the ensuing questions were concerned with domestic politics, particularly when Miki planned to dissolve Parliament and call general elections.

He declined to answer the question, although it was asked several times in a news conference during which Japanese reporters showed their impatience with Miki's generalities by repeatedly interrupting him.

N. Y. Times Summary

Home Rule Proposed

London — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government formally announced Wednesday its intention to provide Scotland and Wales with some form of home rule — a move that would represent the most profound constitutional change in the United Kingdom in many years.

King Campaign Unjustified

Washington — James Adams, assistant deputy director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said there was no statutory basis or justification for its six-year campaign to discredit the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. He confirmed to members of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence that in 1964 the FBI mailed King a tape recording in an apparent attempt to frighten him.

Economic Pact Signed

Seoul, Korea — South Korea and Iran signed an extensive economic cooperation agreement Wednesday night providing for a big increase in the trade volume between the two countries over the next five years.

Letter Bombs Received

Sydney, Australia — Security arrangements were being tightened for Australian political leaders Wednesday after letter bombs were received at the offices of Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser and Queensland Premier Johannes Bjelke-Petersen.

Novelist Wins Award

London — Britain's most prestigious literary prize, the Booker Award, was given Wednesday night to Ruth Prawer Jhabvala, the German-born novelist who has spent more than 25 years in India.

Ford Promises To Review New York City Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford moved one step closer Wednesday toward recommending federal help for New York City but said the city and state must first deliver on their own promises.

"If they continue to make progress, I will review the situation early next week to see if any legislation is appropriate at the federal level," Ford said in his latest statement on New York's financial crisis.

But Ford said he would veto a bill in the House that would provide loan guarantees for the city. House leaders promptly suspended action on the bill, saying it was futile to proceed in the face of Ford's veto threat.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey, pointing to Ford's promise to review the situation if the state takes further steps, promptly declared that "we're going to take him up on it."

He convened a meeting of the state's legislative leaders in Albany to press for prompt action on an increase in city taxes. A Ford administration source said the President's key demand was that the state act on a $200-million tax increase for the city.

The likely choice was a one-cent increase in the city sales tax, raising it to a combined state-city levy of nine cents on the dollar. Carey, returning to Albany from Washington, said, "I'd like action in an hour if I could get it," and promised legislation by the end of the week.

Time for averting default through federal help may be running out, however. New York City could default on its debts as early as next week, and Congress is scheduled to begin a Thanksgiving recess this week without any aid legislation. Carey said, however, that he was "confident" the state would find a source for some $150 million in borrowing needed to keep the city afloat through Dec. 11.

New York Mayor Abraham D. Beame, who went to Albany with Carey, said he was "disappointed that we couldn't get an answer from the President."

A Ford administration source said, however, that if the state legislature acts on the city tax increase, Ford may consider a plan to help the city obtain cash over a three-year period, presumably through loan guarantees.

In his statement, Ford said, "I am convinced that if New York continues to move toward fiscal responsibilty, all parties concerned can look forward to a satisfactory resolution, despite the current obstacles."

On the other hand, he said, "should New York leaders fail to implement their intentions, New York City could still be forced into legal default."

Ford again urged Congress to amend federal bankruptcy laws to "ensure that such a default, if it occurs, would be orderly."

But New York City Comptroller Harrison J. Goldin said that by delaying his decision on federal aid, Ford "is running the danger of placing the city into default."

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., said he had been informed that Ford is considering a three-year program of either loan guarantees or loans to help the city.

"The onus is now on the Republican members of the New York Legislature," Reuss said, reflecting a feeling that the city-state self-help program will be approved if state GOP legislators agree.

Full House To Act On Tax Cut Extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee cleared the way Wednesday for House votes on a multibillion-dollar tax cut extension and tax revision bill.

House action is expected early next month after the upcoming congressional recess for Thanksgiving.

By voice vote, the Rules Committee sent the bill to the House under proposed legislative ground rules allowing votes on major tax revision amendments, as recommended by the Ways and Means Committee which produced the legislation.

On a party line vote of 9 to 5, the Democrat-dominated committee rejected a Republican effort to let the full House vote on President Ford's proposal to tie a federal spending ceiling to the tax bill.

Ford has said such a link to a $395 billion government spending lid for the coming fiscal year, starting next Oct. 1, is his price for signing into law such a 1975 tax cut extension beginning Jan. 1, 1976.

In a pair of 7-7 votes, the Rules Committee also killed attempts to open the entire tax package to all amendments on the House floor.

Instead it agreed to clear the bill under terms allowing votes on a specific set of amendments a proposed by the Ways and Means panel.

The legislation extends $13 billion in personal tax cuts provided in 1975's temporary tax reduction law.

It also carries a multibillion-dollar continuation of major temporary business tax cuts, and would make a series of permanent tax law changes.

Most of the disputes in the House center on provisions aimed at tax law revisions. These include curbs on use of certain tax shelters such as real estate and a hike in existing taxes on some wealthy individuals who have found legal ways of virtually escaping taxation.

Sharp Increase Seen In Terrorist Bombings

Washington (UPI) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley said Wednesday there has been a sharp increase this year in the number of terrorist bombings in America by new left revolutionaries.

Kelley told the Senate internal security subcommittee that a number of terrorist groups have "spread across our nation" and had recevied "both moral and material support from some segments of the American public."

He did not name which segments he was talking about.

He said there were 46 terrorist bombings in just the first six months of this year, one more than the total 45 such incidents records in all of 1974. In 1973 there were 24 bombings claimed by or attributed to terrorist groups.

Chairman James O. Eastland said he was "personally very much concerned about not only the new resurgence of terrorism but also about the progressive crippling of police intelligence activities essential to coping efficiently with terrorists and terrorist organizations and the threat to our internal security which they present."

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said, "The terrorist bombings in this country must be stopped."

Kelly also denied during a brief conversation with reporters that the FBI was engaged in terrorist activities in an effort to trap suspect terrorists.

"I can say categorically that we do not have provocateurs . . . who are going around engaging in terrorist activity," he said.

Kelley said the FBI had data showing some 634 bombings, fire bombings, ambushes, police shootings, and other terrorist activity had occurred between 1971 and 1974.

He said the police have "been the prime target of the urban guerrilla" and that since 1971 "the deaths of 43 officers and the wounding of 152 more have been linked to these terrorists."

Kelley said there was no difference between recent terrorist activities and "the murderous Ku Klux Klan violence of a decade ago. Decent Americans were outraged over Klan bombings, beatings and killings. Where is that outrage today?"

Kelley delivered his testimony to the subcommittee but was not asked any questions by either Eastland or Thurmond. Eastland said he may be called back at a later time to submit to questioning.

Evidence Is 'Bit Of Mish-Mash'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) Lynette Fromme lost her bid Wednesday for dismissal of charges that she attempted to kill President Ford. A federal judge ruled evidence withheld from her defense was "a bit of a mish-mash."

But U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride sharply criticized the federal prosecutor's conduct before ruling that the trial should continue.

He then recessed court until Friday to give attorney John Virga time to reorganize Miss Fromme's defense in light of the withheld statements of James Damir

MacBride said Asst. U S. Atty Donald Heller's actions were "not a model of prosecutorial conduct."

But the judge added that in his view, Damir is "a young man who isn't really sure of what he heard" and whose testimony before a grand jury and in police interrogations was "a bit of a mush-mash."

Virga sought dismissal of the charge against the 27-year-old Charles Manson follower on grounds that Damir was a key witness whose testimony is vital to her defense.

Secret Service agents said Miss Fromme pointed a 45-caliber pistol at Ford from two feet away in a park outside the state Capitol. The gun held four bullets but there was no bullet in the firing chamber.

Damir told police that Miss Fromme, lying on the ground after her arrest, said repeatedly, "It wasn't loaded anyway." But he made contradictory statements later to the FBI and a federal grand jury.

Damir, a 23-year-old college student, was not called as a prosecution witness. His police statement was not given to Virga until after the prosecution rested its case

"Maybe I'm wrong when I state there has not been a showing of sufficient prejudice," MacBride said.

But he said he believed precedent nevertheless "comes to the rescue of the government."

MacBride said according to decisions by the 5th and 8th Circuit Courts of Appeal, the government has the right to withhold the testimony of a prospective government witness until after the prosecution's case has concluded.

The judge took issue with Virga's contention that the government effectively destroyed the defense case

"I don't think this man is the most valuable witness you can produce," MacBride told Virga

But the judge offered to recall to the stand every one of 37 prosecution witnesses and let Virga question them

Derailment Injures 39

ELWOOD, Ill. (AP) — The first derailment of one of Amtrak's sleek high-speed turbotrains resulted in injuries Wednesday to 39 persons, including a relative of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The train collided with a truck en route from Chicago to St. Louis. It carried 111 persons, about half of whom were part of a contingent headed for the State Capital on behalf of Daley. The mayor's sister-in-law, Cecilia Green, 65, was among those treated for injuries.

Seven of the injured were admitted to hospitals, and three suffered injuries described as serious.

The train was one of only five of Amtrak's new $2 7 million turbo units in operation nationwide. Damage was estimated at close to $1 million, according to James Taylor, Amtrak's regional vice president.

The Chicago-St. Louis turbo run was one of the first of its kind put into operation two years ago. Turbo trains can reach speeds up to 120 miles per hour but run slower because of track conditions, an Amtrak spokesman said.

Elwood is about 45 miles southwest of Chicago.

Steandmeyer said trees and other growth obstructed his view of the crossing and he saw the train only at the last moment. He said he swerved and attempted to turn the vehicle parallel to the tracks.

"I'm thankful to be alive," he told reporters.

Amtrak officials said the truck ran into the side of the second car in the train in which most members of the Daley contigent were traveling. Four cars derailed and tottered on the brink of turning over.

"There was a terrible moment or two when we didn't know what was going to happen," said Fran Sullivan, a Democratic committeewoman from Oak Park. "We didn't know if something else was going to hit or the train was going to tip over"

"Im still shakey," said S. J. Groves, a conductor. "Everything was so mixed up."

"On impact, there was glass all over," said Marilou Hedlund, a member of the Democratic National Committee and a former member of the Chicago City Council.

She was part of the contingent headed by Jayne Byrne, Daley's consumer affairs director, on their way to Springfield to lobby for more state aid to public schools

Mrs. Byrne telephoned Daley shortly after the accident to say she was not hurt. Seven women from her party, including Daley's sister-in-law, suffered slight injuries, she said.

Court Nixes Joan Little Appeal

Raleigh, N.C. (UPI) — Joan Little, the young black woman acquitted of murdering a white jailer she claimed sexually attacked her, lost an appeal Wednesday of the burglary conviction on which she was being held at the time of the slaying.

A three-judge panel of the North Carolina Court of Appeals found no error in the breaking and entering trial that resulted in her being sentenced to 7-to-10 years in prison. She escaped from the Beaufort County Jail following the fatal stabbing of jailer Clarence Alligood, but later turned herself in.

Miss Little, a 21-year former construction worker, is on a national speaking tour and could not be reached for comment on the appeals court decision. She will remain free on bond as long as the case is under appeal.

Jerry Paul, Miss Little's chief attorney, had earlier said he would appeal an adverse ruling. He told reporters Wednesday in Cincinnati, where he was appearing before a university group, that he was not surprised by the court's action.

Opera Opens Season

Minneapolis (UPI)—The Minnesota Opera Company opened its 1975-76 season Nov. 1 with the world premiere of "Black River: A Wisconsin Idyll," by Conrad Susa, libretto by Richard Street and H. Wesley Balk. The work is set in the Wisconsin town of Black River Falls in the 1890s, and deals with actual events and characters.

We took the things you said were important in big cars and engineered them into a new kind of small car.

This new kind of car was developed for those people who wanted the economy and maneuverability of a small car, but did not want to sacrifice comfort and ride.

It is available in two beautiful versions: the Dodge Aspen and the Plymouth Volaré.

TO GIVE YOU A BIG-CAR RIDE, WE INVENTED A NEW SUSPENSION.

This new kind of small car called for a new suspension. So, our engineers invented an Isolated Transverse front suspension (Patent Pending). It's truly unique. Road shock is kept as far away from the driver and passengers as possible.

FOR GREATER QUIET, WE ENGINEERED TWO NOISE-REDUCING SYSTEMS.

Most people take noise for granted in a small car. But not our engineers. They developed two special sound systems. A sealing system that minimizes wind noise and an insulation system that reduces road noise.

DODGE ASPEN AND PLYMOUTH VOLARÉ ARE ROOMIER THAN MANY LARGER CARS.

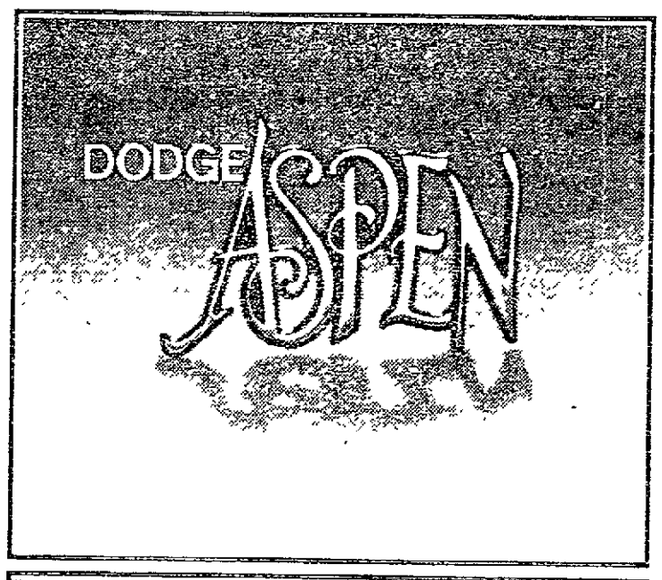
We reserved smallness for the outside. Our sedan models offer more total headroom and legroom than many bigger cars. The two-door coupes seat five passengers, comfortably. The four-door and the station wagon models seat six, comfortably.

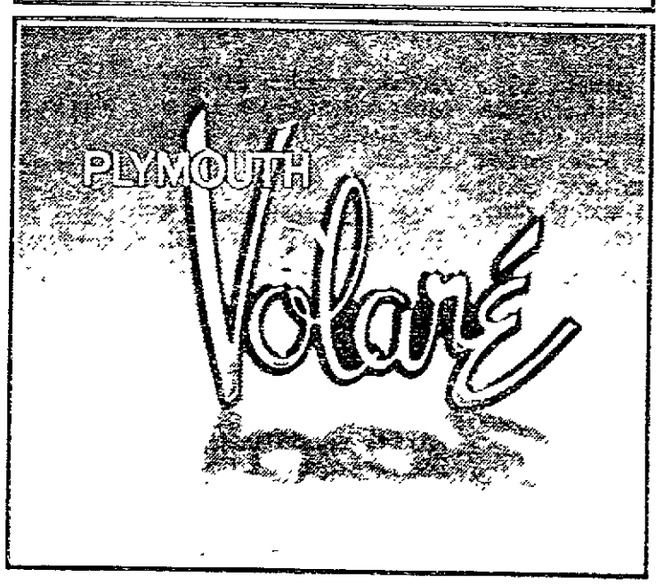
THERE WAS NO SMALL-CAR SCRIMPING ON COMFORT.

Getting in and out of some small cars can be a problem In these cars, our engineers developed wide door openings that make it easy On some models, there's even available a seat that not only gives the driver a greater amount of comfort adjustment than conventional seats, but also a pull-strap seat-back release that lets you get in and out of the back seat of the two-doors using only one hand.

PLYMOUTH VOLARÉ AND DODGE ASPEN ARE DESIGNED TO MAKE IT EASIER TO SEE THE ROAD.

We evaluated the relationship between the driver, the steering wheel and the seat to put you in a comfortable position to see the road, and large windows and windshield make it even easier to see.





ASPEN AND VOLARÉ ACHIEVED E.P.A. RATED HIGHWAY MILEAGE OF UP TO 30 MPG.

According to official EPA estimated mileage results, Aspen and Volare with Slant Six engines and manual transmissions get 30 on the highway and 18 in the city with their engines tuned to run on the highway and 18 in the city with their engines tuned to run on the highway. We did this by designing the shape to reduce wind friction. Then we reduced weight to about a thousand pounds less than a full-size car That all helps increase economy. Of course, your actual mileage may differ depending on your driving habits, the condition of your car and optional equipment

THEY'RE EVEN EASY TO SERVICE.

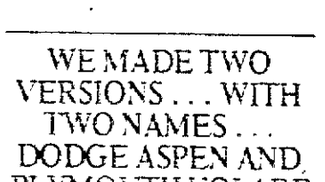
We included all of our electronic advances. That means you can forget about replacing points and condensers. And, under normal driving conditions, there is no recommended transmission maintenance

PLYMOUTH VOLARÉ AND DODGE ASPEN ARE COVERED BY THE CLINCHER.

This says that for the first 12 months or 12,000 miles, any Chrysler Motors Corporation dealer will fix what's wrong for parts or labor, any part of your 1976 Dodge Aspen or Plymouth Volare we supply (except tires) which proves defective in normal use, regardless of mileage. Of course, the owner is responsible for normal maintenance such as changing filters and wiper blades.

WITH THREE BODY STYLES, YOUR CHOICE IS NOT RESTRICTED.

These new small cars are offered as a 2-door coupe, a 4-door sedan and a 4-door station wagon — in several versions Our new-size wagon weighs up to 1,200 lbs less than some bigger ones. That means you'll save gas and even though it's two feet shorter than a full-size wagon, you can carry 92% as much weight and up to 76% as much bulk Compare what you can carry with competitive wagons.



WE WANTED YOU TO BE able TO ORDER THE OPTIONS YOU WANTED.

Many small cars are limited in the number of convenience options you can add. Ours can take all the important ones For example, air conditioning engineered to provide comfort levels comparable to larger cars, power seats, power windows, electric door locks, tilt steering wheel, 4-speaker stereo, sun roof, power steering, power disc brakes, 50,000-mile battery, Sure-Grip axle, 4 speed manual overdrive transmission.

THE PRICE MAY BE THE BIGGEST SURPRISE OF ALL.

You will find it hard to believe that you can get so much car, so much value for such a low price

Keep Big Green At Home

Omaha's Big Green lottery, not living up to expectations at home and under fire in the courts, is apparently making big plans to branch out elsewhere in Nebraska. The immediate reaction is "spare us."

Big Green Director Sam Schwartzkopf, a former mayor of Lincoln, says "people want the game," and thus the lottery hopes to engage agents to sell tickets in other Nebraska cities within three to six months. It is illegal to purchase lottery tickets through the mail. Schwartzkopf says lottery tickets can be sold anywhere in the state unless prohibited by local ordinance. He says his office receives 20 or so inquiries weekly from persons in communities other than Omaha wanting to purchase tickets.

With weekly ticket sales lagging far behind the volume anticipated before Big Green got underway, the proposed branching out move can be seen as an effort to bail out the lottery. And to that, we think a good many people will say "thanks, but no thanks."

Big Green is the controversial creature of the Omaha City Council and Omaha business interests and it is they and the people of Omaha who should prove its viability — without outside help. That is, the locals should unless the courts determine the lottery's future first.

The law errs where it allows a locally endorsed enterprise to sell tickets on a state-wide basis. If people want to travel to Omaha to buy tickets, we suppose that is their business, but establishing a statewide network of agents to bail out Big Green's sponsors is a questionable proposition.

Dubious revenue-producing schemes or alleged civic betterment schemes such as the Omaha lottery should be matters for local approval and local operation.

As for Big Green, let Omahans with spare change in their pockets help it limp along.

Lotteries help to nickel-and-dime people to the poorhouse. They hold out to the desperate a faint hope for a windfall when there is little chance for success. And they return less than they should to the suckers who pay the freight. If people outside Omaha welcome Big Green, P.T. Barnum was right.

JAMES RESTON

Reagan, A Master At Theatrics

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's bid for the presidency really should be tossed to the movie critics. In theatrical terms, win or lose, it is the best script the old trouper ever had; but in political terms, even if he knocked off the President, he would divide his party and almost certainly assure the victory of the black-hat Democrats.

It is a fascinating human drama, and sort of a personal stage triumph for Reagan. Here he is, out of Hollywood, where he was a good Class B movie actor, and out of Sacramento, where he was a much better governor, and out of a job at age 64, but on the front covers of Time and Newsweek, proclaiming individual human liberty, defying the wicked Democrats, and even challenging the President, a member of his own party.

Presented with such a scenario, even in his old hungry days in Hollywood when he needed a job, Reagan would probably have said this was ridiculous and wouldn't even "play in Peoria," but the facts of politics are even stranger than the dreams and nightmares of fiction.

No script writer in Hollywood would have dared to suggest the stories of Harry Truman and his election victory in 1948 over Tom Dewey; the triumph and murder of Jack Kennedy; the defeat of Richard Nixon in 1960, and beyond that, the defeat of Nixon for the governorship of California in 1962, his retreat to New York, his return to the presidency in 1968, his spectacular reelection in 1972, and finally his decline, disgrace, and isolated retreat to San Clemente.

All this must have intrigued Reagan more as theater than as politics. Maybe he didn't have a chance to reach out to the presidency of the United States, but even if he failed, it was a good theatrical part in which he would have a world stage to defend the old conservative religion.

Reagan does not come through as Barry Goldwater did in 1964 as the conservative challenger. Their political philosophies are similar, but Goldwater had a conviction, a program and a sense of humor. He was not clever, cautious, or theatrical like Reagan, but he cared more about the outcome and was hurt when he lost. Reagan is quite different: He gives the impression that he is merely reading his lines. He says the most provocative things in the most kindly and even modest way, like an actor playing a role, and is quite willing, and maybe even eager, to go home when the play is done, particularly if the audience disagrees.

The astonishing thing is that this amusing but frivolous Reagan fantasy is taken so seriously by the news media and particularly by the President. It makes a lot of news, but it doesn't make much sense. Reagan may run ahead of Ford in the New Hampshire, Florida, Illinois and Wisconsin primaries but even if he does, the delegates at the Republican nominating convention in Kansas City are not likely to abandon their own President and the power and majesty of the presidency in favor of a former governor of California who has split the Republican Party and has little chance of picking up independent or Democratic votes.

If you take a hard look at how to win electoral votes for the presidency in the big states that usually decide presidential elections, you almost have to think that Reagan, who used to be a Democrat, is hurting his own party and the President and working for the divided Democrats, who also seem to be trying to lose the election.

But on the stage, as in politics, strange things happen and nobody knows this better than Reagan. Maybe he will win and probably he will lose but he will drive Ford to the conservative right in the process and meanwhile, he will have a personal climax in the biggest theater of all. For the old trouper, it makes sense, but for the Republican Party and the nation, it could be a real flop.

Reagan planned his presidential announcement precisely like a road show. Beginning, ironically, with the Washington reporters at the National Press Club, whom he detests, and then going on in the same day to the main primary election states, it was a classic theatrical production, aimed at Cronkite, Chancellor, Reasoner and the evening network news shows.

Nobody in politics or the theater is better at this sort of thing than Reagan. He has a conservative message. He believes in it with the utmost sincerity. Nobody can fault him on this, but it is arranged in such a way that there is no time for hard questions or difficult answers. These quick announcements are not political exchanges of ideas, but television, and nobody in the presidential race is better at avoiding thought than the former governor of California.

Once he has announced for the terrifying job of the presidency, however, the questions on the stage will change. From now on, he will be asked not only what he is against but what he is for; not only why he is worried about Henry Kissinger's policies of detente and compromise in the Middle East but what he proposes to put in their place.

There is an almost frightening moment between thinking about running for the presidency and announcing that you are running for the presidency. Then, the candidate moves from theatrical myths to political reality and, as he moves around the country, has to stand and deliver.

Reagan has done a service to the Republican Party in one sense. He is right in feeling that an appointed president like Ford should be challenged. Also, his challenge to President Ford will keep the battling and divided Democrats from dominating the headlines between now and the end of the primary elections next spring, but he will now have to have something to say. Once announced for the presidency, he will have to be presidential, with a program for the coming five years. And so far he has produced no program, only a protest against the Democrats and his own President.

FBI's Destructive Tactics

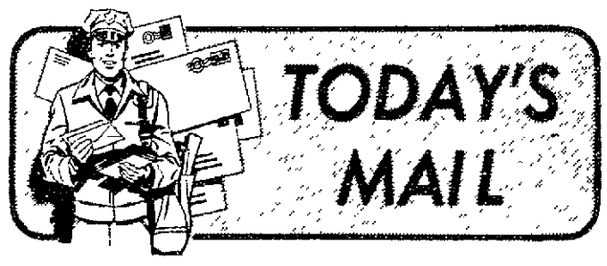
The story now unfolding of FBI harassment of American citizens, most notably the late Dr. Martin Luther King, is a grim reminder both of the abuse that can be suffered from entrenched power, in this instance in the imposing form of J. Edgar Hoover, and the paranoia of the Nixon years.

Hoover personally hated Dr. King, but beyond that, King represented to the FBI a disruptive, un-American threat from the left, a bad influence which could undermine the nation's strength. That Dr. King was leading a moral revolution using the rights given most Americans but long withheld from his people did not register with Mr. Hoover. Similarly, the dissent which swirled ominously outside what Nixon regarded as the mainstream of American thought was viewed by the disgraced former president with dark suspicion. Their reactions to what bedeviled them was in the tradition of all the dictators of the ages.

In the case of the Nobel Peace Prize laureate Dr. King, the FBI, we are learning, tailed him, bugged him, discredited him, lied about him, harassed him and sent him anonymous letters suggesting that he commit suicide before he was publicly ruined. The latter tactic has got to be one of the sleaziest, and most embarrassing, disgusting and sophomoric in the annals of the FBI.

That the FBI is riding out the storm of these new revelations with relative grace is a healthy sign. The agency seems to be aware of the need for a public discussion of past abuses so that such tactics can be purged from the FBI's modus operandi.

The continuing review of abuses perpetrated by authority in the past may be depressing, it may make us feel uncomfortable and it may seem to be vaguely unpatriotic. But what is happening now most assuredly is patriotic and necessary because these investigations will reemphasize the basic freedoms Americans tend to take for granted and they will help assure a future in which all Americans hopefully will be able to enjoy the rights and freedoms which to some have been only empty promises written on paper.



Thinks NU Budget Should Be Cut

Lincoln, Neb.

I read in the Saturday, Nov. 15, Star that Secy. of State Beermann is a "buck-passer" blaming Governor Exon for the increase in taxes. This is a shame, to continually fight a governor who is doing and has done a reasonably good job.

The fault lies with the senators. Even a child would have the ability to think that out. Our governor specifically asked for a three per cent cut across the board in order to eliminate a rise in the income tax. But, no, this the senators could not do. They cut budgets — oh, yes — but whose budgets? The very much needed retardation budget. They should be ashamed of themselves.

Where they should have cut and a substantially greater amount than three per cent was in the University of Nebraska budget. These highly overrated and overpaid professors had better be given a ceiling on their outlandish salaries. When will these senators stand up to men like Varner and Prasch who should not be excluded for ivory tower seekers, and put a stop to this yearly salary complaining?

If these teachers and professors do not feel they are making enough money ($25,000) annually for the most part, and greater, they should do exactly what anyone else outside of the schools must do, and that is leave. I'm sure there are more than enough graduates having the latest know-how who could fill their tenure shoes.

It is high time senators and school administrators alike realize this state can generate so much money for these salaries. If these teachers and professors are as good as they think they are, they won't have any problem going to another state.

These senators should take second looks at the money they should be spending, or we can have a New York City situation.

Highway Safety Programs

Lincoln, Neb.

As the governor's representative for highway safety and as the chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Advisory Committee, I would like to express on behalf of the committee members and myself our appreciation for the outstanding contributions by newspapers toward our "You Bet Your Life" campaign. The response was overwhelming in support of this endeavor.

The committee works closely with the public information office of the Nebraska highway safety program in the development and carrying out of safety campaigns. All the departments and agencies represented on the committee have a vital interest in highway safety. We are pleased to see the support given to safety campaigns by the newspapers as we are well aware of the large role newspapers play in the success of any effort of this type.

Invasion Of The Farms

Wilber, Neb.

If the folks who were so up-tight about "The Guns of Autumn" being unfair to the hunter lived around here during hunting season, they would quickly change their minds.

While not all hunters are maniacs and an annoyance to the country folks, there are enough of them to do considerable damage to livestock and property.

Out here we counted 15 to 20 trucks, vans, campers and cars with two to seven hunters per vehicle in one hour, but with only three birds.

A farmer cannot leave his home. If he does, he comes back to find that his place has been invaded by an armory of hunters stamping down everything in sight in spite of signs posted forbidding it.

There is no way for the farmer to protect himself against these so-called sportsmen. The farmer is completely at the mercy of the hunters. As for the law — forget it! They are much too busy protecting the hunter's right to blast away at the "No Hunting" signs.

Patchwork Prairie Country

It's strange how much different the countryside looks now that it has been stripped of its fundamentals . . . the trees of their leaves, the cornfields of their stalks and corn, the hedgerows of their dense undergrowth.

To see down the length of a country mile is to see out across the land that borders the roadway on either side and up into boundless sky overhead. The whole scene is changed into a vast landscape of rolling countryside with the clutter of autumn almost gone except for the sheltered areas where the fallen leaves are cushioned in protective mats.

The milkweed fluff has flown far and wide and the bees come out of the hive only on warm sunny days. We are in a "hold position working up toward the winter solstice.

It would seem now that we are going to have to rely on the snows of winter to replenish the moisture in our dry farm area. Though we had half an inch of rain this past week, it barely soaked into the clods. The thunder sounded so promising. In fact, the first rumble that rolled across the sky made me sit up and take notice.

"Was that thunder?" I asked The Farmer. It had been so long since I had heard it, I needed to be reassured that thunder was still a part of our universe.

The rain began as a drizzle, then slowly the drizzle turned into droplets, running in little eddies down the windowpane. The air soon became alive with the fragrance of brown meadow grasses dry and crisp, quickly changed into one of sharp, pungent dankness.

There was the acrid tang of the wild hay field and the dust of summer being washed gently away . . . a sort of preliminary cleansing before the ermine blanket of snow is spread over the land.

Barring any hard freeze (and who could bar such a thing in mid-November) I should have beautiful bronze mums for our Thanksgiving table.

I purchased the potted mum late last winter and had weeks of indoor bloom. Later when spring arrived, I set the plant out-of-doors on the north side of the house . . . sort of getting it out of the way without tossing it to fend for itself.

The plant rewarded me for my generosity by growing into a bush-size mum. Every stem has a cluster of buds, some opening with a rich display of gold-tipped bronze petals.

I never though the plant would bloom again this fall after making such a display last spring. If I hear of a hard freeze warning, I will dash out and pick the buds I am certain they will open in the house.

Now I am hoping the plant is winter-hardy. Some of the potted mums are . . . some are not. Is it too much to hope that I have a winter-hardy mum after two blooming cycles in six months?

The hunters are meeting with disappointment this fall. Pheasants are few and far between. All summer The Farmer remarked that there were so few birds in the fields as he worked. Usually young chicks are seen in numbers in early morning or late evening when farmers are beginning or finishing a day's work. However late summer arrived and still the bird population seemed almost non-existent.

I especially remembered seeing them ducking in and out of the orchard as I picked apples. They slipped into the weed growth of the fence line hidden from my view but I could always hear their wild peeping sounds as they kept in contact with the ben pheasant.

As soon as I left, they filtered back into the orchard. They roosted in the trees there and took off in flight like winged arrows when I entered their "private" sleeping quarters.

We had our own game of hide-and-seek. I must say, I missed the birds this summer. The thread that binds man to nature and all the creatures in the wildlife community is very delicate. When a thread is broken, a stitch is dropped and another conservationist's dream begins to unravel.

The Appointment

WASHINGTON — As against eight years in the presidency, a limit fixed by constitutional amendment, a justice of the Supreme Court serves for life. That is one reason, as the career of William O. Douglas demonstrated, a presidential appointment to the court can cast a longer shadow than almost any other presidential act.

The appointment is a test for a president as severe as any duty he must perform. One sure way of getting a passing grade is to name a justice certain to get by the confirmation hearings in the Senate judiciary committee and the vote on confirmation in the Senate with no trouble.

That was Harry Truman's approach to the sticky business of naming a man likely to outserve and outlive the temporary resident on Pennsylvania Avenue. Of the four justices he appointed, three had congressional service which, in the clubbable spirit prevailing on Capitol Hill, insured their confirmation with no fuss.

Truman's fourth choice was Tom C. Clark, who had been attorney general at the time of the appointment. With the stamp of Texas politics emblazoned on him, his confirmation took little more than two weeks. In the recently published "Plain Speaking," based on taped interviews, Truman described the appointment as the worst mistake he ever made. In view of certain egregious Truman errors, this seems slightly excessive.

By way of contrast, certainly an invitation to trouble, take Franklin Roosevelt's appointment of Prof. Felix Frankfurter. A member of the Harvard law faculty and a confidant of the president, Frankfurter had had no previous judicial experience.

The Frankfurter hearings before the Senate judiciary committee were as disgraceful as any in recent times, with the ugly stain of anti-Semitism spread across the record. One member of the committee made the unprecedented demand that Frankfurter appear in person to be questioned about his appointment.

This shameful performance was reminiscent of the attack on Louis D. Brandeis when he was appointed by Woodrow Wilson to serve as the first Jew on the court.

And now comes President Ford with an opportunity that could, in view of the election next year, be his sole responsibility for naming one of the nine.

He has the safest of all safe ways out and that is to appoint Sen. Robert P. Griffin of his home state of Michigan. Rising to the post of minority whip, Griffin has had a respectable if hardly distinguished career which began in the House of Representatives. His name is on the list of eligibles to be canvassed by the American Bar Association.

Another name on the list is Carla Hills, who has served less than a year as secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Before that she spent less than a year as assistant attorney general in the Justice Department. As the first woman to serve, her appointment would please women's libbers, foremost among them Mrs. Betty Ford.

In her meteoric rise there has hardly been time to judge her abilities. Those familiar with the judiciary system believe there are at least two other women with judicial experience making them superior to Mrs. Hills as candidates.

The choice of Attorney General Edward H. Levi would raise the hackles of some Republican conservatives and it might prolong confirmation hearings. But it would be, in the view of students of the court, the most distinguished appointment he could make.

What of the record of any of these men or women in, say, 10 years? That question has no answer, as the career of Douglas proves. Appearing as a conservative when he was named, he became the leading advocate of liberal causes, notably freedom of speech.

His stand on conservation both on and off the court will be a living record for a long time to come. His valiant effort to continue to serve at the risk of sacrificing what is left to him of life will also be his memorial.

Presidents live in the history books, but they also live in those whom they put in the judicial process. President Eisenhower named Earl Warren as Chief Justice to his lasting regret and to the gratification of believers in equal rights. He also named Potter Stewart, one of the most respected judges in our time.

So Ford, as he ponders his problem, must be reflecting on what his precedessors have done.

Keep Big Green At Home

Omaha's Big Green lottery, not living up to expectations at home and under fire in the courts, is apparently making big plans to branch out elsewhere in Nebraska. The immediate reaction is "spare us."

Big Green Director Sam Schwartzkopf, a former mayor of Lincoln, says "people want the game," and thus the lottery hopes to engage agents to sell tickets in other Nebraska cities within three to six months. It is illegal to purchase lottery tickets through the mail. Schwartzkopf says lottery tickets can be sold anywhere in the state unless prohibited by local ordinance. He says his office receives 20 or so inquiries weekly from persons in communities other than Omaha wanting to purchase tickets.

With weekly ticket sales lagging far behind the volume anticipated before Big Green got underway, the proposed branching out move can be seen as an effort to bail out the lottery. And to that, we think a good many people will say "thanks, but no thanks."

Big Green is the controversial creature of the Omaha City Council and Omaha business interests and it is they and the people of Omaha who should prove its viability — without outside help. That is, the locals should unless the courts determine the lottery's future first.

The law errs where it allows a locally endorsed enterprise to sell tickets on a state-wide basis. If people want to travel to Omaha to buy tickets, we suppose that is their business, but establishing a statewide network of agents to bail out Big Green's sponsors is a questionable proposition.

Dubious revenue-producing schemes or alleged civic betterment schemes such as the Omaha lottery should be matters for local approval and local operation.

As for Big Green, let Omahans with spare change in their pockets help it limp along.

Lotteries help to nickel-and-dime people to the poorhouse. They hold out to the desperate a faint hope for a windfall when there is little chance for success. And they return less than they should to the suckers who pay the freight. If people outside Omaha welcome Big Green, P.T. Barnum was right.

Reagan, A Master At Theatrics

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's bid for the presidency really should be tossed to the movie critics. In theatrical terms, win or lose, it is the best script the old trouper ever had; but in political terms, even if he knocked off the President, he would divide his party and almost certainly assure the victory of the black-hat Democrats.

It is a fascinating human drama, and sort of a personal stage triumph for Reagan. Here he is, out of Hollywood, where he was a good Class B movie actor, and out of Sacramento, where he was a much better governor, and out of a job at age 64, but on the front covers of Time and Newsweek, proclaiming individual human liberty, defying the wicked Democrats, and even challenging the President, a member of his own party.

Presented with such a scenario, even in his old hungry days in Hollywood when he needed a job, Reagan would probably have said this was ridiculous and wouldn't even "play in Peoria," but the facts of politics are even stranger than the dreams and nightmares of fiction.

No script writer in Hollywood would have dared to suggest the stories of Harry Truman and his election victory in 1948 over Tom Dewey; the triumph and murder of Jack Kennedy; the defeat of Richard Nixon in 1960, and beyond that, the defeat of Nixon for the governorship of California in 1962, his retreat to New York, his return to the presidency in 1968, his spectacular reelection in 1972, and finally his decline, disgrace, and isolated retreat to San Clemente.

All this must have intrigued Reagan more as theater than as politics. Maybe he didn't have a chance to reach out to the presidency of the United States, but even if he failed, it was a good theatrical part in which he would have a world stage to defend the old conservative religion.

Reagan does not come through as Barry Goldwater did in 1964 as the conservative challenger. Their political philosophies are similar, but Goldwater had a conviction, a program and a sense of humor. "Was that thunder?" I asked The Farmer. It had been so long since I had heard it, I needed to be reassured that thunder was still a part of our universe.

The rain began as a drizzle, then slowly the drizzle turned into droplets, running in little eddies down the windowpane. The air soon became alive with the fragrance of brown meadow grasses dry and crisp, quickly changed into one of sharp, pungent dankness.

There was the acrid tang of the wild hay field and the dust of summer being washed gently away . . . a sort of preliminary cleansing before the ermine blanket of snow is spread over the land.

Barring any hard freeze (and who could bar such a thing in mid-November) I should have beautiful bronze mums for our Thanksgiving table.

I purchased the potted mum late last winter and had weeks of indoor bloom. Later when spring arrived, I set the plant out-of-doors on the north side of the house . . . sort of getting it out of the way without tossing it to fend for itself.

The plant rewarded me for my generosity by growing into a bush-size mum. Every stem has a cluster of buds, some opening with a rich display of gold-tipped bronze petals.

I never though the plant would bloom again this fall after making such a display last spring. If I hear of a hard freeze warning, I will dash out and pick the buds. I am certain they will open in the house.

Now I am hoping the plant is winter-hardy. Some of the potted mums are . . . some are not. Is it too much to hope that I have a winter-hardy mum after two blooming cycles in six months?

The hunters are meeting with disappointment this fall. Pheasants are few and far between. All summer The Farmer remarked that there were so few birds in the fields as he worked. Usually young chicks are seen in numbers in early morning or late evening when farmers are beginning or finishing a day's work. However late summer arrived and still the bird population seemed almost non-existent.

I especially remembered seeing them ducking in and out of the orchard as I picked apples. They slipped into the weed growth of the fence line hidden from my view but I could always hear their wild peeping sounds as they kept in contact with the hen pheasant.

As soon as I left, they filtered back into the orchard. They roosted in the trees there and took off in flight like winged arrows when I entered their "private" sleeping quarters.

We had our own game of hide-and-seek. I must say, I missed the birds this summer. The thread that binds man to nature and all the creatures in the wildlife community is very delicate. When a thread is broken, a stitch is dropped and another conservationist's dream begins to unravel.

ABP Sells Plant At Fort Morgan

Omaha (AP) — Attorneys for financially troubled American Beef Packers Inc , (ABP) late Wednesday announced another step in the process of getting the ailing company's creditors paid off

Officials said ABP's beef processing plant in Fort Morgan, Colo , has been sold to a newly formed company for $5 million

The purchase contract was signed Wednesday by ABP and representatives of the Morgan Colorado Beef Co

An ABP spokesman said, "It is hoped that the closing of the sale will occur by Dec 15 "

He said the agreement calls for an immediate payment of $1 million, another $2 million at closing and the final $2 million on or before Feb 1

Additionally, the spokesman said, an agreement in principle has been reached with the city of Fort Morgan

Under the agreement, the city will extend a long-term sewer contract to the new buyers in return for ABP's payment of delinquent taxes and sewer charges

Under the purchase agreement, the buyers will have immediate access to the plant, but it is not known when the new owners plan to reopen operations

With the exception of a few weeks, in which some custom slaughtering operations were undertaken, the Fort Morgan plant has been shut down since ABP filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy last Jan 7

Earlier this week, ABP officials announced the tentative sale of their Beefland International plant in Council Bluffs, Iowa

The Kane-Miller Corp , a diversified food processor based in Tarrytown, N Y , has tentatively agreed to purchase the Bluffs slaughter and fabricating facility for about $6,450,000

The two sales are keys in a retrenching plan through which ABP hopes to get its estimated 8,000 creditors paid and operations reopened The plan includes loans totaling $36 5 million from ABP's largest creditors and mainline source of financing, the General Electric Credit Corp (GECC) of Stamford, Conn

ABP and GECC attorneys are drafting the papers for the new money, and are now waiting for the signing of the final purchase agreement on the Beefland plant

Jury Exonerates Saunders Sheriff

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Wahoo — A tearful Joe Divis embraced his family and friends Wednesday night after a jury found him innocent of charges he failed to carry out his duty as Saunders County sheriff.

The two-man, four-woman jury deliberated for one hour before reaching their conclusion on the misdemeanor charge against Divis.

Saunders County Attorney Curtis Bromm said he has not decided if he will prosecute Divis on two additional felony charges of conspiracy to deliver marijuana and converting county property to his own use.

Sheriff Joe Divis

Facts Said Aired

J. William Gallup, Divis's attorney, said all the facts were brought out during the misdemeanor trial and the jury found them lacking.

"I doubt very much if the county attorney will even pursue the other charges," he said. "If he does it would constitute persecution, not prosecution."

Bromm emphasized to the jury that the only charge involved in the misdemeanor trial was that the sheriff knew Violet Bonow possessed marijuana with intent to sell it and failed to arrest her.

During the two-day trial Mrs. Bonow and two taped conversations she had with the sheriff were the backbone of the prosecution's case.

Did Sheriff Know?

Mrs. Bonow admitted taking 11 large garbage bags of marijuana from the garage of the Saunders County jail, allegedly with the knowledge of the sheriff

In his summation, Bromm acknowledged that Mrs. Bonow was an alcoholic with a bad temper, but that her character was not on trial, only the truthfulness of her testimony.

"I submit to you that the electronic recordings corroborate everything and do not contradict anything Mrs. Bonow told you," he said.

Earlier in the day the conversations were played for the jury. One juror said after the verdict that the jury had difficulty understanding them, but did not ask to have played again during their deliberation because thy felt they knew what the evidence was.

In the conversations Divis made reference to the sale of marijuana and accepted $150 which Mrs. Bonow told him was his share of the transaction.

Just Humoring Her

Divis testified he assumed the money was payment on a $1,000 promisory note he held from Mrs. Bonow and that he was just humoring her by going along with the story of the sale of marijuana.

The defense called several witnesses who testified they had also humored Mrs. Bonow, and that she was known to make nonsensical, incoherent statements.

Gallup portrayed Mrs. Bonow as a "scorned woman" seeking revenge by involving the sheriff in the alleged conspiracy.

"If you can live for 65 years and not get an enemy besides Violet Bonow, you've done all right," he told the jury.

'Unusual Vigor'

Bromm told the jury he was only carrying out the duty of his office, and that he still considered Divis a friend. "I'm not ashamed in bringing this case," he said.

Divis said after the trial that apparent contradictions between his testimony and the statement he made at the time of his arrest brought out by Bromm were caused by the stress he was under at the time of his apprehension.

"Justice has been done. I never lied on that stand and the people felt I wasn't guilty," Divis said.

Statement Rebutted

However, Bromm rebutted that statement with testimony from State Patrol Capt. Lynn Parks and another officer, who arrested Divis.

They said the county attorney was never alone with the sheriff and didn't tell him the conversations were taped.

Divis said he no longer considered Bromm a friend, but that he will continue to carry out his responsibilities to the best of his ability.

"I'm still going to do my duty, and as far as I'm concerned it's up to him how we get along," he said.

Society To Decide Future Of Mansion

What to do with the 65-year-old Ferguson Mansion, 700 S. 16th St., is now the State Historical Society's worry.

In a resolution, the State Building Commission Wednesday transferred responsibility for the mansion, located between the Kennard Statehood Memorial and the Capitol Building, to the Society

The commission resolution referred to the mansion as "a unique expression of Nebraska history" which "should be preserved."

In the past, the commission has been undecided about what should be done with the vacant 17-room home of the late William Henry Ferguson, a prominent Lincoln grain dealer and founder of Yankee Hill Brick Co.

Commission members, notably Linus Burr Smith of Lincoln, have questioned the building's worth from an architectural as well as financial standpoint.

It has been estimated that renovation of the aging but solid structure will cost $175,000, although some believe it would cost considerably less.

The state acquired the mansion in 1963 when it purchased the Kennard House.

In other action, the commission decided that the new State Office Building, which will open in the fall of 1976, will have an "open government" format.

Only the agency director will have private offices, while other offices will be surrounded by 5-foot partitions. The commission did say conference rooms and other high noise areas could be enclosed by walls reaching the 9-foot ceiling.

The commission said it will solicit names for the building from the public next year. The Legislature has suggested it be named after the late Sen. George C. Gerdes of Alliance.

Exon Blasts Sen. Schmit Over Ag School Comment

By The Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon Wednesday said Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmit was attempting to destroy efforts to create a five-state regional veterinary school.

Schmit, chairman of the legislature's Agriculture Committee, said Tuesday that Exon's projected $14 million construction cost estimates were "a lie."

Dr. Marvin Twiehaus of the University of Nebraska told Schmit's committee Tuesday the school would actually cost $35 million to $40 million.

Wednesday, Exon said, "The figures which I released on the veterinary school proposal were correct and I have received verification today from Warren Wood, the federal co-chairman of the (Old West) Regional Commission."

The commission is made up of governors and federal officials in Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana.

"Since I proposed the original concept to the Old West Regional Commission governors, I have received nothing but outstanding cooperation from the governors of the five states," Exon said. "The only negative voice to date has been Sen. Schmit and I doubt if he represents anything but a destructive narrow view within the legislature. I wish the senator would state his reasons for attempting to torpedo the concept even before it has been fully presented."

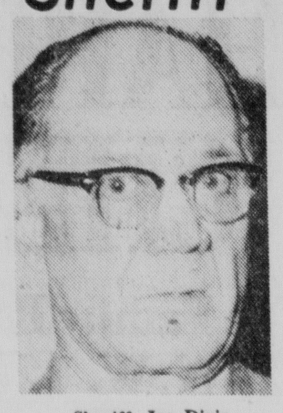
Jury Exonerates Saunders Sheriff

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Wahoo — A tearful Joe Divis embraced his family and friends Wednesday night after a jury found him innocent of charges he failed to carry out his duty as Saunders County sheriff.

The two-man, four-woman jury deliberated for one hour before reaching their conclusion on the misdemeanor charge against Divis.

Saunders County Attorney Curtis Bromm said he has not decided if he will prosecute Divis on two additional felony charges of conspiracy to deliver marijuana and converting county property to his own use.



Sheriff Joe Divis

Facts Said Aired

J. William Gallup, Divis's attorney, said all the facts were brought out during the misdemeanor trial and the jury found them lacking.

"I doubt very much if the county attorney will even pursue the other charges," he said. "If he does it would constitute persecution, not prosecution."

Bromm emphasized to the jury that the only charge involved in the misdemeanor trial was that the sheriff knew Violet Bonow possessed marijuana with intent to sell it and failed to arrest her.

During the two-day trial Mrs. Bonow and two taped conversations she had with the sheriff were the backbone of the prosecution's case.

Did Sheriff Know?

Mrs. Bonow admitted taking 11 large garbage bags of marijuana from the garage of the Saunders County jail, allegedly with the knowledge of the sheriff.

In his summation, Bromm acknowledged that Mrs. Bonow was an alcoholic with a bad temper, but that her character was not on trial, only the truthfulness of her testimony.

"I submit to you that the electronic recordings corroborate everything and do not contradict anything Mrs. Bonow told you," he said.

Earlier in the day the conversations were played for the jury. One juror said after the verdict that the jury had difficulty understanding them, but did not ask to have played again during their deliberation because thy felt they knew what the evidence was.

In the conversations Divis made reference to the sale of marijuana and accepted $150 which Mrs. Bonow told him was his share of the transaction.

Just Humoring Her

Divis testified he assumed the money was payment on a $1,000 promisory note he held from Mrs. Bonow and that he was just humoring her by going along with the story of the sale of marijuana.

The defense called several witnesses who testified they had also humored Mrs. Bonow, and that she was known to make nonsensical, incoherent statements.

Gallup portrayed Mrs. Bonow as a "scorned woman" seeking revenge by involving the sheriff in the alleged conspiracy.

"If you can live for 65 years and not get an enemy besides Violet Bonow, you've done all right," he told the jury.

'Unusual Vigor'

Bromm told the jury he was only carrying out the duty of his office, and that he still considered Divis a friend. "I'm not ashamed in bringing this case," he said.

Divis said after the trial that apparent contradictions between his testimony and the statement he made at the time of his arrest brought out by Bromm were caused by the stress he was under at the time of his apprehension.

"Justice has been done. I never lied on that stand and the people felt I wasn't guilty," Divis said.

Statement Rebutted

However, Bromm rebutted that statement with testimony from State Patrol Capt. Lynn Parks and another officer, who arrested Divis.

They said the county attorney was never alone with the sheriff and didn't tell him the conversations were taped.

Divis said he no longer considered Bromm a friend, but that he will continue to carry out his responsibilities to the best of his ability.

"I'm still going to do my duty, and as far as I'm concerned it's up to him how we get along," he said.

Society To Decide Future Of Mansion

What to do with the 65-year-old Ferguson Mansion, 700 S. 16th St., is now the State Historical Society's worry.

In a resolution, the State Building Commission Wednesday transferred responsibility for the mansion, located between the Kennard Statehood Memorial and the Capitol Building, to the Society.

The commission resolution referred to the mansion as "a unique expression of Nebraska history" which "should be preserved."

In the past, the commission has been undecided about what should be done with the vacant 17-room home of the late William Henry Ferguson, a prominent Lincoln grain dealer and founder of Yankee Hill Brick Co.

Commission members, notably Linus Burr Smith of Lincoln, have questioned the building's worth from an architectural as well as financial standpoint.

It has been estimated that renovation of the aging but solid structure will cost $175,000, although some believe it would cost considerably less.

The state acquired the mansion in 1963 when it purchased the Kennard House.

In other action, the commission decided that the new State Office Building, which will open in the fall of 1976, will have an "open government" format.

Only the agency director will have private offices, while other offices will be surrounded by 5-foot partitions. The commission did say conference rooms and other high noise areas could be enclosed by walls reaching the 9-foot ceiling.

The commission said it will solicit names for the building from the public next year. The Legislature has suggested it be named after the late Sen. George C. Gerdes of Alliance.

College Backed By Fairburians

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — With a strongly partisan crowd of 450 on hand, the Nebraska Legislature's Education Committee was told in detail here Wednesday why it should help scuttle Southeast Nebraska Committee Technical College's (SeTech) proposal to move the Fairbury campus to Beatrice's Pershing campus.

Few arguments on the embattled issue, due for another airing Thursday in Beatrice, were new, but there was four hours of amplification from an even two dozen town officials, students, businessmen, faculty members and "ordinary taxpayers."

The two hearings, likely to be quite opposite in tone, could well affect several other decisions by the 1976 Legislature besides the campus change itself. Present for Wednesday's testimony were Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, committee chairman, five members of his committee and Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan, who requested the sessions.

Several persons, including Fletcher Peters of a spearheading save-the-campus committee, insisted that the entire 15-county SeTech area should vote on the proposed campus change. The other stronger argument was that the suggested revamping of Pershing would be too costly.

"The feasibility study on the matter said just one thing, that the taxpayers of this area can't afford the gift of Pershing," said SeTech board member Ted Doyle of Fairbury, who had voted with the minority in a 7-4 tentative decision to acquire Pershing. "The upkeep is going to be terrific."

Several persons suggested that cost projections for maintenance of Pershing, as well as for an estimated $220,000 remodeling, were unrealistically low. Calling the Beatrice plant "an expensive white elephant we don't need," Peters asked rhetorically if "we are so well-heeled we can spend several hundred thousand dollars unnecessarily?"

Other main contentions were that a Beatrice move would cluster SeTech's three campuses too close together, provide no better educational services and benefit only Beatrice. Several persons expressed concern that enrollment would decline if the distance were increased for students now commuting from counties to the west.

Supt. Ramon Mieth of Hebron said 18 juniors and seniors in his system have plans to attend Fairbury next year but that none would enroll if Beatrice were the location.

Another non-resident, C. B. Mickelsen of Superior, called the move "morally wrong" and questioned the part the University of Nebraska Regents are playing in the matter.

"A lot of us are wondering why Mr. Varner and some regents are so concerned about the Southeast district," he stated. "I think they're going beyond the call of duty. You'd think they would have their hands full with the university."

Richard Meyer, a former Fairbury College board member, questioned the use of population projections based on a 20-mile radius. Because both Fairbury and Beatrice would lie within a 30-mile radius, he said this area would be more meaningful.

"If we use the 30-mile radius, there would be only a 4% differential in population," he stated.

William C. Nuckolls, publisher of The Fairbury Journal News, said he knows of 15 different newspapers which have expressed themselves against the campus change.

"Yet to my knowledge there has not been one other community besides Beatrice which has published a word on behalf of the move," he stated.

C. L. Gorvert, director of student services on the Fairbury campus, said the fact that 10-11,000 students have attended Fairbury "proves there is a need for acadamic courses." He suggested that the Lincoln and Milford campuses should be adequate for vocational technical instruction in the area.

"One thing I'd like to know is why the valuation of Pershing now is only about $39,000 and why taxes on it have been approximately $800 per year," he continued. "I suggest the people of Beatrice might investigate this matter."

Several persons noted that the dropping of football two years ago cut into Fairbury enrollment by 80 to 100 students. Dr. R. L. Cassel, a local physician, also blamed declining enrollment on the threatened closing and a de-emphasis of recruiting.

Debbie Jones, president of Fairbury's alumni association, drew applause before chairman Lewis insisted that such expressions be withheld.

"A lot of Beatrice people have said they don't care if they have a college there," she stated. "Fairbury does care. We built the school and kept it going for over 30 years. We still want it."

Economic Levels Up Following June Drop

Economic activity in Nebraska improved somewhat in July after a slight drop in June, according to Business in Nebraska, monthly publication of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

July's index of physical volume of overall activity stood at a level 2.5% below that of the same month in 1974. After deflating the dollar volume of total activity for price level increases, the real activity has now been nearly stable for three months relative to the same months in 1974.

The agricultural sector continued to show improvement in July, with an increase in physical volume more than offsetting some slippage in prices. Physical volume rose to a level equal to that of last year after being down 6% in June. Dollar volume 22% higher than July 1974, after being 24% higher in June. Agricultural prices on the average were up 22% from July 1974 compared with a level about 32% above in June.

Manufacturing activity fell off further in July 1975 to a level about 12% less than a year ago, after being down 9% in June. Construction showed improvement for the second consecutive month — 4% higher than a year ago.

In July, retail activity — as measured by the dollar volume of net taxable retail sales deflated for price level rise — showed some improvement, down 2.5% from that of the same month in 1974; it was down by four percent in June. Twenty of the state's 31 principal trading centers had real volumes of sales above those of a year ago compared with 15 in June. The state's two major centers reported considerable improvement compared with last year's levels.

Omaha's physical volume of sales climbed back to within 6% of a year ago, after being off 10% in June. Lincoln's gain was to within 1% of 1974, after being off over 5% in June. In most of the other principal centers, retail activity was moving either closer to or further above 1974 levels in July.

Region and City	City Sales (1) July, 1975 as per cent of July, 1974	Regional Sales (2) July, 1975 as per cent of July, 1974	Regional Sales (2) Year to Date '75 as per cent of Year to Date '74

College Backed By Fairburians

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — With a strongly partisan crowd of 450 on hand, the Nebraska Legislature's Education Committee was told in detail here Wednesday why it should help scuttle Southeast Nebraska Committee Technical College's (SeTech) proposal to move the Fairbury campus to Beatrice's Pershing campus.

Few arguments on the embattled issue, due for another airing Thursday in Beatrice, were new, but there was four hours of amplification from an even two dozen town officials, students, businessmen, faculty members and "ordinary taxpayers."

The two hearings, likely to be quite opposite in tone, could well affect several other decisions by the 1976 Legislature besides the campus change itself. Present for Wednesday's testimony were Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue, committee chairman, five members of his committee and Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan, who requested the sessions.

Several persons, including Fletcher Peters of a spearheading save-the-campus committee, insisted that the entire 15-county SeTech area should vote on the proposed campus change. The other stronger argument was that the suggested revamping of Pershing would be too costly.

"The feasibility study on the matter said just one thing, that the taxpayers of this area can't afford the gift of Pershing," said SeTech board member Ted Doyle of Fairbury, who had voted with the minority in a 7-4 tentative decision to acquire Pershing. "The upkeep is going to be terrific."

Several persons suggested that cost projections for maintenance of Pershing, as well as for an estimated $220,000 remodeling, were unrealistically low. Calling the Beatrice plant "an expensive white elephant we don't need," Peters asked rhetorically if "we are so well-heeled we can spend several hundred thousand dollars unnecessarily?"

Other main contentions were that a Beatrice move would cluster SeTech's three campuses too close together, provide no better educational services and benefit only Beatrice. Several persons expressed concern that enrollment would decline if the distance were increased for students now commuting from counties to the west.

Supt. Ramon Mieth of Hebron said 18 juniors and seniors in his system have plans to attend Fairbury next year but that none would enroll if Beatrice were the location.

Another non-resident, C. B. Mickelsen of Superior, called the move "morally wrong" and questioned the part the University of Nebraska Regents are playing in the matter.

"A lot of us are wondering why Mr. Varner and some regents are so concerned about the Southeast district," he stated. "I think they're going beyond the call of duty. You'd think they would have their hands full with the university."

Richard Meyer, a former Fairbury College board member, questioned the use of population projections based on a 20-mile radius. Because both Fairbury and Beatrice would lie within a 30-mile radius, he said this area would be more meaningful.

"If we use the 30-mile radius, there would be only a 4% differential in population," he stated.

William C. Nuckolls, publisher of The Fairbury Journal News, said he knows of 15 different newspapers which have expressed themselves against the campus change.

"Yet to my knowledge there has not been one other community besides Beatrice which has published a word on behalf of the move," he stated.

C. L. Gorvert, director of student services on the Fairbury campus, said the fact that 10-11,000 students have attended Fairbury "proves there is a need for acadamic courses." He suggested that the Lincoln and Milford campuses should be adequate for vocational technical instruction in the area.

"One thing I'd like to know is why the valuation of Pershing now is only about $39,000 and why taxes on it have been approximately $800 per year," he continued. "I suggest the people of Beatrice might investigate this matter."

Several persons noted that the dropping of football two years ago cut into Fairbury enrollment by 80 to 100 students. Dr. R. L. Cassel, a local physician, also blamed declining enrollment on the threatened closing and a de-emphasis of recruiting.

"A lot of Beatrice people have said they don't care if they have a college there," she stated. "Fairbury does care. We built the school and kept it going for over 30 years. We still want it."

Economic Levels Up Following June Drop

Economic activity in Nebraska improved somewhat in July after a slight drop in June, according to Business in Nebraska, monthly publication of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

July's index of physical volume of overall activity stood at a level 2.5% below that of the same month in 1974. After deflating the dollar volume of total activity for price level increases, the real activity has now been nearly stable for three months relative to the same months in 1974.

The agricultural sector continued to show improvement in July, with an increase in physical volume more than offsetting some slippage in prices. Physical volume rose to a level equal to that of last year after being down 6% in June. Dollar volume 22% higher than July 1974, after being 24% higher in June. Agricultural prices on the average were up 22% from July 1974 compared with a level about 32% above in June.

Manufacturing activity fell off further in July 1975 to a level about 12% less than a year ago, after being down 9% in June. Construction showed improvement for the second consecutive month — 4% higher than a year ago.

In July, retail activity — as measured by the dollar volume of net taxable retail sales deflated for price level rise — showed some improvement, down 2.5% from that of the same month in 1974; it was down by four percent in June. Twenty of the state's 31 principal trading centers had real volumes of sales above those of a year ago compared with 15 in June. The state's two major centers reported considerable improvement compared with last year's levels.

Omaha's physical volume of sales climbed back to within 6% of a year ago, after being off 10% in June. Lincoln's gain was to within 1% of 1974, after being off over 5% in June. In most of the other principal centers, retail activity was moving either closer to or further above 1974 levels in July.

Region and City	City Sales (1) July, 1975 as per cent of July, 1974	Regional Sales (2) July, 1975 as per cent of July, 1974	Regional Sales (2) Year to Date '75 as per cent of Year to Date '74

Omaha (UPI) — Nebraska's 1976 contest for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination turned into a race between two former Republicans Wednesday, while a former Democrat is the frontrunner on the GOP side to succeed U.S. Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb.

Mayor Edward Zorinsky, a lifelong Republican, took himself out of on again-off again status by formally changing parties and announcing his Democratic candidacy for the Senate nomination.

Zorinsky will be on the ballot with former state Democratic party chairman Hess Dyas of Lincoln, who changed from the Republican to Democratic Party in 1960.

Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., who is expected to take the Republican nomination over former State Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, changed from a Democrat to the GOP in the early 1950s.

Zorinsky, 47, appeared Wednesday, however, to be appealing more to the independent voter than to the rank and file Democrat. He said he may be living in a "utopia" but believed elected officials should vote in the "best interests of the United States of America" instead of yielding to political party interests.

"Neither party has an exclusiveness on having idiots in their ranks," Zorinksy said.

"The first statement he made was a nonpartisan statement," Mrs. Ohmstede said. "Some of us have been working in the party for 30 years, and we kind of thought we were doing something.

"I think most people understand if you are getting on somebody's train you ought to push the coal in it," Mrs. Ohmstede continued. "Being an old railroader's daughter I can understand that.

"I guess I'm a little hurt. If he was interested in switching parties he should have made up his mind before he decided he was going to run on the ticket."

The titular head of Nebraska Democrats, Gov. J. James Exon, welcomed Zorinsky into the Democratic party, adding, "He is one of a growing group of Nebraskans who are changing to the Democratic party and I salute him for that."

Exon said he plans to remain neutral in the primary, but "I will be supporting the man chosen to represent the Democratic party in the May primary."

In response to a question, Zorinsky said he believed Dyas was a weak candidate. Dyas responded from Lincoln, "I guess he's going to have to find that out. We'll try to disappoint him on that."

"In 1960, I joined the Democratic party to knock on doors for John Kennedy," Dyas said. "It bothered me a little bit to see Zorinsky joining the Democratic party to get Democrats to knock on doors for him."

Former State Sen. Richard Fellman of Omaha, who had been considering a possible Democratic primary senate bid, said following Zorinsky's announcement he would work for the mayor's candidacy instead.

Zorinsky, whose first term as mayor expires in 1977, said he planned to start campaigning around Dec. 1 but as of yet has no active campaign organization.

Barrett To Be Named Ford Campaign Chief

By The Associated Press

Former state Republican party Chairman William Barrett of Lexington will serve as chairman of President Ford's 1976 Nebraska re-election campaign, it was learned Wednesday.

Barrett confirmed an official announcement would come Friday in Omaha and Washington.

Barrett said other committee members will be named Friday.

Asked if he feels Ford will enjoy the kind of support former President Richard Nixon received from Nebraska voters in 1972, Barrett said, "I think it's possible, yes.

"I think anything is possible in this topsy-turvy world in which we are living."

"The President will have some incredible opposition that Mr. Nixon did not face in the form of Ronald Reagan," Barrett said.

"We've got to win the primary and we have to get the GOP faithful out to vote.

"And we have to elect delegates to the national convention pledged to the President, so it's really a twofold objective right now," Barrett said.

Asked if Nebraskans will respond with financial support for Ford in the post-Watergate era, Barrett said:

"I think that's a very fair question, and I'm hopeful Nebraskans will respond as they have in the past.

"I don't think that its post-Watergate so much as just a general reaction of frustration with Washington in some instances."

"I'm very optimistic and so is Dave Tews, who is heading the financial committee," Barrett said.

Barrett's selection to head the Ford Committee did not come as a surprise to politcal observers. He has long been a key party worker and leader.

In February of this year, he announced he would not be a candiate for re-election as state party chairman. He had served a two-year term in the post.

When he announced his decision not to seek another term, there was some speculation that he had decided to step aside after the unsuccesful bid by Republican Richard Marvel to unseat Democratic Gov. J. James Exon.

Barrett discounted that speculation, saying he had completed "the job I was elected to do, namely electing Republicans to office," and pointed to the continued GOP hold on key state offices outside the executive branch, and the all-Republican congressional delegation.

Former Lincolnite Mrs. Peters Dies After Accident In Honolulu

A former Lincoln resident, Mrs. Kathryn May Tharp Peters, 70, died Nov. 12 in a hospital in Honolulu from injuries received the previous day when she was hit by an auto at a Honolulu intersection.

Mrs. Peters served from 1952-58 as activities director of the Student Union at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

A native of West Point, Neb., she had been a resident of Honolulu the past 14 years and at one time also lived in Fremont, Neb. She was given recognition as Outstanding Citizen of the Year for Hawaii on Citizenship Day, 1974, for service in the many organizations she was active in.

Memorial services were held Saturday in Honolulu.

Mid-State Officials Hope To Protect 1943 Right

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Grand Island — With the Mid-State Reclamation District inundated by negative votes, its last days apparently will be spent trying to keep afloat a 32-year-old water right application.

Whether the Nov. 4 rejection of the district also meant the end to a 1943 application for irrigating from the Platte River is a question still to be resolved. Officials of the ill-fated district have pledged "to protect the right in any legal way possible."

"We'll be dead as an organization by March 1 at the latest, but in our gasping state we may be able to transfer the right to some other entity," said Don Shriner, general manager. "We don't care who it is as long as it's a responsible group which may be able to implement the right."

Both Shriner and Robert Lowry, Mid-State president, confirmed that legal counsel is looking into the possibility of the transfer.

Technically, the 1943 application has never been acted upon because the district had yet to reach construction stage. Originally in the name of the old Mid-State Assn., the application was assumed by the successor reclamation district and is still pending in the Water Resources Dept.

Particularly interested in keeping the good application alive, according to Shriner, is "a group of young farmers" in the Cairo area. One of the possibilities being considered is the establishment of an irrigation district in that vicinity.

Alternatives

Lowry, himself a Cairo area farmer, declined to elaborate on the prospects. He would only say "alternatives are being investigated" because of seriously declining water tables in the Cairo-Wood River-Shelton area.

"Obviously the problems which existed before the election haven't gone away," he continued. "There's just no way that some of these men can keep on farming under present conditions, but they must try to save their investments."

Whatever the vehicle for trying to preserve the water right, Shriner said, it "definitely will not be a perpetuation of Mid-State." The law provides no recourse for saving a reclamation district which has been voted out.

Drawn-Out Process

The creation of an irrigation district, incidentally, could be expected to be a drawn-out procedure perhaps requiring several years. And a vote of creation would be required in whatever area was encompassed.

Referring to anticipated legislation aimed at interbasin diversion, Lowry warned that "time is a key factor" in somehow implementing the water right. He stressed that no efforts are being directed toward continuing Mid-State "or anything like it."

"If we can leave something legal and valid as a means of correcting the decline of our underground water table," he said, "then the $5 million invested to date will not have been completely lost."

One strong supporter of the district, the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce, said in a postmortem news letter that "we won the battle but lost the war." It was noted that the issue had carried in both Grand Island and Hall County.

Negative Factors

Cited as factors in the overall negative vote were "misinformation, confusion, lack of understanding, emotions, antigovernment and taxes."

"No single project will affect our economy more," it was stated.

In an interview, Dick Good, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, said the reversal "may have taught us a lesson." "We're wondering if there is a much deeper message here than losing an election," he said. "Does this mean there's a new coalition of environmentalists and stop-progress segments of society which will be flexing their muscles toward all sorts of community growth projects?"

At its Dec. 8 meeting, Mid-State's board is expected to approve an auditor to begin closing out the organization. A preliminary audit probably will be completed by Dec. 31, the books finally closed by either Feb. 1 or March 1.

Shriner, general manager since last January following nearly a year as assistant, said he expects to return to Lincoln. He has retained a home and business in the capital city.

2,300 Dogs To Take Part In Cornhusker Dog Show

Over 2,300 dogs will converge on the Nebraska State Fairgrounds Saturday for the annual Cornhusker Kennel Club Dog Show.

Judging will begin at 7:30 a.m. and run continuously until about 10 p.m. Competition will be at the coliseum, exposition building and agriculture hall.

The Cornhusker Kennel Club Show is one of the country's largest dog competitions. Dogs appearing in Lincoln will have an average value of between $300 and $500.

Tickets will be available at the door. Part of the proceeds will be donated to the Shrine Transportation Trust Fund for the Shriner's hospitals for crippled and burned children.

Teens To Vote On Erma's Fate

Grand Island (UPI) — The Hall County Board of Supervisors Tuesday decided to let high school students vote on whether Erma's Desire should be placed on an I-80 rest stop in the county.

Supervisor Walt Stull made the motion, saying they are the ones who will have to live with it. But the board did not take back it's opposition to the work.

Artist John Raimondi, creator of Erma's Desire, Tuesday told the board he had spoken to more than 1,500 county residents during his two-day stay in Grand Island, and all had been in favor of the piece

Raimondi said the work stands for very strong original shapes, representing the progressive spirit of the pioneer heritage in Nebraska.

His appearance did little to deter the board's opposition.

"I haven't changed my mind," Supervisor Albert Helzer said. "It's still a piece of junk, and that's the way I feel.

He called Raimondi, "a whale of a salesman, but he is really selling nothing."

Raimondi said despite the board's opposition, the project is an enormous success due to the national publicity it has received. He said that however people feel about it, it has brought out strong emotion, and that is good.

Car Causing Fatal Accident In Omaha Sought

Omaha (UPI) — Police Wednesday were seeking the driver of a car which may have triggered a one-car accident Tuesday night that claimed the life of a 19-year-old Omahan.

Authorities said Mike Schenkelberg, the son of Fire Capt. and Mrs. Gilbert Schenkelberg, was killed when the car he was driving went out of control, hit a power pole and trapped him inside for more than 20 minutes.

Witnesses told police a dark green Oldsmobile with a headlight broken out was coming out of a doughnut shop with its lights off. Witnesses said Schenkelberg swerved his car to avoid a collision.

The victim's father was on the scene, and rescue workers had Schenkelberg connected to a respirator, but turned it off when he was pronounced dead.

The elder Schenkelberg said his son must have just gotten off work at a discount store. The victim, a recent Roncalli High School graduate, was one of 10 Schenkelberg children.

Hilton Hotel Dance Site For Benefit

The third annual Bob Devaney Benefit Dance for Cerebral Palsy will be held from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 7, at the Lincoln Hilton Hotel ballroom.

Three prizes will be awarded — a football autographed by the Cornhusker players; a dinner, brunch and overnight accomodations at the Radisson-Blackstone Hotel in Omaha; and two football bowl tickets.

The Wayne Henzl Combo will provide the evening's entertainment.

Tickets for the dance can be purchased at all Hinky Dinky supermarkets, King's Food Host restaurants, the Gateway Banks and Brandeis stores in Lincoln and Omaha.

Bond Issue For Medical Clinic In Loup City Receives Approval

Loup City (AP) — Voters here Tuesday approved the issuance of $180,000 in municipal bonds. The measure won on a 374-to-237 vote.

The bonds will be used to purchase a medical clinic from the Loup City Development Corp. The clinic recently was built with a Small Business Administration loan obtained by the corporation with the hope of attracting practicing physicians to the Sherman County seat.

Bill Bowness, board chairman for the corporation, said if the corporation had continued to operate the clinic, $1,750 a month would be needed for the corporation to break even. He said it's hoped that city ownership will lower rental rates enough to attract more physicians to the area.

Documentary Topic Is Consumer Plight

The network will offer a one-hour documentary, "ABC News Closeup on the Consumer Offensive — Who Speaks for the People," on Nov. 29. Peter Jennings will be correspondent on the show, which will include an interview with Ralph Nader.

Lodge News — The "Sunday Journal and Star" has it.

Sedaka Rock Host

Mid-State Officials Hope To Protect 1943 Right

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Grand Island — With the Mid-State Reclamation District inundated by negative votes, its last days apparently will be spent trying to keep afloat a 32-year-old water right application.

Whether the Nov. 4 rejection of the district also meant the end to a 1943 application for irrigating from the Platte River is a question still to be resolved. Officials of the ill-fated district have pledged "to protect the right in any legal way possible."

"We'll be dead as an organization by March 1 at the latest, but in our gasping state we may be able to transfer the right to some other entity," said Don Shriner, general manager. "We don't care who it is as long as it's a responsible group which may be able to implement the right."

Both Shriner and Robert Lowry, Mid-State president, confirmed that legal counsel is looking into the possibility of the transfer.

Technically, the 1943 application has never been acted upon because the district had yet to reach construction stage. Originally in the name of the old Mid-State Assn., the application was assumed by the successor reclamation district and is still pending in the Water Resources Dept.

Particularly interested in keeping the good application alive, according to Shriner, is "a group of young farmers" in the Cairo area. One of the possibilities being considered is the establishment of an irrigation district in that vicinity.

Alternatives

Lowry, himself a Cairo area farmer, declined to elaborate on the prospects. He would only say "alternatives are being investigated" because of seriously declining water tables in the Cairo-Wood River-Shelton area.

"Obviously the problems which existed before the election haven't gone away," he continued. "There's just no way that some of these men can keep on farming under present conditions, but they must try to save their investments."

Whatever the vehicle for trying to preserve the water right, Shriner said, it "definitely will not be a perpetuation of Mid-State." The law provides no recourse for saving a reclamation district which has been voted out.

Drawn-Out Process

The creation of an irrigation district, incidentally, could be expected to be a drawn-out procedure perhaps requiring several years. And a vote of creation would be required in whatever area was encompassed.

Referring to anticipated legislation aimed at interbasin diversion, Lowry warned that "time is a key factor" in somehow implementing the water right. He stressed that no efforts are being directed toward continuing Mid-State "or anything like it."

"If we can leave something legal and valid as a means of correcting the decline of our underground water table," he said, "then the $5 million invested to date will not have been completely lost."

One strong supporter of the district, the Grand Island Chamber of Commerce, said in a postmortem news letter that "we won the battle but lost the war." It was noted that the issue had carried in both Grand Island and Hall County.

Negative Factors

Cited as factors in the overall negative vote were "misinformation, confusion, lack of understanding, emotions, antigovernment and taxes."

"No single project will affect our economy more," it was stated.

In an interview, Dick Good, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, said the reversal "may have taught us a lesson." "We're wondering if there is a much deeper message here than losing an election," he said. "Does this mean there's a new coalition of environmentalists and stop-progress segments of society which will be flexing their muscles toward all sorts of community growth projects?"

At its Dec. 8 meeting, Mid-State's board is expected to approve an auditor to begin closing out the organization. A preliminary audit probably will be completed by Dec. 31, the books finally closed by either Feb. 1 or March 1.

Shriner, general manager since last January following nearly a year as assistant, said he expects to return to Lincoln. He has retained a home and business in the capital city.

Teens To Vote On Erma's Fate

Grand Island (UPI) — The Hall County Board of Supervisors Tuesday decided to let high school students vote on whether Erma's Desire should be placed on an I-80 rest stop in the county.

Supervisor Walt Stull made the motion, saying they are the ones who will have to live with it. But the board did not take back it's opposition to the work.

Artist John Raimondi, creator of Erma's Desire, Tuesday told the board he had spoken to more than 1,500 county residents during his two-day stay in Grand Island, and all had been in favor of the piece.

Raimondi said the work stands for very strong original shapes, representing the progressive spirit of the pioneer heritage in Nebraska.

His appearance did little to deter the board's opposition.

"I haven't changed my mind," Supervisor Albert Helzer said. "It's still a piece of junk, and that's the way I feel.

Raimondi said despite the board's opposition, the project is an enormous success due to the national publicity it has received. He said that however people feel about it, it has brought out strong emotion, and that is good.

2,300 Dogs To Take Part In Cornhusker Dog Show

Over 2,300 dogs will converge on the Nebraska State Fairgrounds Saturday for the annual Cornhusker Kennel Club Dog Show.

Judging will begin at 7:30 a.m. and run continuously until about 10 p.m. Competition will be at the coliseum, exposition building and agriculture hall.

The Cornhusker Kennel Club Show is one of the country's largest dog competitions. Dogs appearing in Lincoln will have an average value of between $300 and $500.

Tickets will be available at the door. Part of the proceeds will be donated to the Shrine Transportation Trust Fund for the Shriner's hospitals for crippled and burned children.

San Francisco — First the good news: A bank in the great dairy state of Wisconsin put a cow in the lobby. She gave milk to the contented customers — the ones depositing, I imagine. Forget the withdrawers.

Milk and human kindness as the bank manager beamed benignly. And the mortgages foreclosed — snap!

I said to the children: "Fetch in the firewood. We'll camp here until the blizzard stops."

In my chill youth, I had to split the kindling. Electric lights had reached that little town. Gas had not. The house was warmed by boys like me.

About this time of year my grandmother put me into long wool underwear. It was called a union suit. It had long legs and arms and a drop seat in the back.

It was a comical garment. All boys hated them.

Cartoonists got a lot of mileage out of the union suit. When you saw it in a cartoon, it triggered a laugh on sight.

☆ ☆ ☆

Our village damper doesn't have a cow but it has a cheery fireplace. Pleasant music comes from hidden speakers. "Music to Borrow By."

The banker sits where everybody can see him. Probably where they keep the cow in the Wisconsin jug. The banker sits behind the desk and moos softly.

"Good morning, good morning! How are you today?"

Nippy nights. Big frosty stars punch pin holes of light through a black curtain sky. It is a time to relax. Massage the bruises of the day with a dry martini.

"Can you help me now with my homework?"

Once the older child brought home a problem: "Jones buys a house for $6,000." It went on that his payments were so much a month. When would he get the house paid for?

☆ ☆ ☆

I said: "That is so ridiculous I can't even get started. Show me a house — even a dog house — you can buy for $6,000." I said: "What is happening to education? You can't even buy a lot for six big ones."

She said: "I've got to write the answer. Or I'll get an 'F.' "

I said: "OK. Jones will never get this absurd house paid for. Heaven knows you can't even buy an A-frame, put-it-together-yourself house for six grand.

"But OK, OK. I'll go along with it."

I said: "Jones will never get out of hock with the bank for a simple reason. Houses are not stable. Soon tree roots will break through the underground pipes. Or mud will slide. Or some equal disaster.

"Jones will then go to the bank and 'open the end of the mortgage.' He will borrow more. And this will go on forever!"

She said: "I don't think that's the answer." I said: "Fetch me the gin, child."

Man, 66, Is Afraid Of Driving

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: "As I get older I become more fearful about driving my car. I have never had an accident, although I am 66. My wife, who is 61, does not drive, but she keeps telling me to 'Look out' or 'slow down' or 'you almost hit that car,' etc., and I am afraid I am really going to have an accident.

"Should I give up my car and license? That would certainly limit our activities, but if old people really do have so many accidents, maybe it would be safer."

ANSWER: If you are in normal good health and have normal vision for your age I don't see any reason why you should give up driving a car. I think you should talk with your wife about her complaints when you are behind the wheel. Do you suppose she has an undetected vision problem that makes her react in such a nervous way?

Insurance studies confirm that the most accident-prone drivers are single males under 25 years of age. Persons of your age who are in good physical and mental health tend to have good driving records. Being 65 or over is no reason to assume that your reflexes are bad.

QUESTION: "Someone told me the other day that if you have high blood pressure your IQ drops. I don't believe it. Do you?"

ANSWER: I was skeptical, so I checked it out, and your friend is right. High blood pressure does cause a drop in the IQ score. Once the high blood pressure is treated and brought under control, the IQ returns to its previous normal level for that person.

Surprising, isn't it? Lots of new data are coming from the fine research on aging which is going on in the gerontology departments of at least 20 of our major universities.

The aged as a group are now numerous enough to study, and they live long enough to make studies over time feasible. At the time of the Revolutionary War the life expectancy of an American male was 35. In 1907 it was 48. Today it is over 70.

4 City Alcoholism Groups To Be Joined

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

All signs are go for combining four city-funded alcoholism programs under one administrative network, the Comprehensive Alcoholism Planning Committee (CAPC) was told Wednesday.

A special CAPC committee has been investigating the combination of city alcoholism programs since September.

The programs involved are those of Lincoln Action Program, the Lincoln Indian Center, Intake and Referral and the city's proposed detoxification center.

The study was made at the request of the city which funds all four programs at a cost in excess of $160,000 annually.

When it reports back to city officials by Feb. 15, the committee will recommend creation of a new, all-encompassing agency to handle intake, referral and counseling of alcoholics, Bud Holmes told CAPC members.

The detoxification center, victim of several location setbacks, is scheduled to be operating by March 15, Donna Giles, director, told CAPC members.

The center, a 72-hour optional drying out facility for public intoxicants, is to be housed in the old intern quarters adjacent to Lincoln General Hospital. When arrested, public intoxicants will be given the option of going to the detoxification center or jail.

Although internal construction is not slated to begin until Dec. 1, work on the outside ramps has already begun.

"For the first time, friends, in the two years we've been working on it, there's ground that's actually broken for a detoxification center," said Bob Adams, executive director of the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs (LCAD), parent of CAPC.

Just as they're beginning to realize a major accomplishment in getting the detox center off the ground, CAPC members appear ready to take on another major project.

Center Site Sought

They have their sights set on long-term care for chronic, late-stage alcoholics — and they plan to look at the troubled Westview Home as a possible location.

Westview is a county-run facility housing approximately 35 older, retarded, mentally ill or alcoholic county residents.

The current facility, though structurally sound, needs some major renovations in order to meet health and safety codes for licensing.

A study committee of the county board has been looking at alternative uses for the facility, said Adams.

He asked Pat Wall of St. Monica's Home for Women and Leighton Wessel, Police Community Relations Director, to sit on a CAPC committee charged with looking into Westview's use as a long-term facility. Ralph Fox of the Houses of Hope also will be asked to serve on the committee.

In other action, Mrs. Wall, CAPC chairman Jerry Dunn of the People's City Mission and Pat Bracken, state vocational rehabilitation counselor, were named to review and comment on the state's proposed alcoholism plan for 1976-77 as it relates to programs and services in Lincoln and Lancaster County.

Flexible Teachers' Salaries Said Needed

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

If the Legislature wants to encourage excellence in teaching at the University of Nebraska, it should provide flexibility for merit salary increases within NU's budget, a legislative committee was told Wednesday.

"We need to be able to give substantial raises to retain the best faculty members," Steven Sample, the university's executive vice president for academic affairs, said.

"There has to be a reward structure which recognizes excellence."

The need for excellence in teaching was raised by senators at a hearing before the Unicameral's higher education study committee.

The Legislature's salary policy for the current fiscal 1975-76 budget provided for across-the-board wage hikes for all state employes.

Sample said NU needs "great flexibility" in granting merit pay raises if it is to be able to reward and retain its best faculty members.

Some institutions in other states give non-productive tenured faculty members no salary increase while granting major increases to its best teachers, he noted.

That has the dual effect of encouraging the best to stay and the least productive to leave.

NU, he said, also uses a long probationary period prior to granting tenure — up to seven years — to help weed out less productive faculty members.

Visiting All Campuses

The committee, chaired by Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, decided to pursue its study of post-secondary education in Nebraska with a visit to all campuses of the university, the state colleges and the technical community colleges.

It will divide into subcommittees for those trips, Warner said.

Senators hope to define the proper role and mission of each type of institution, perhaps even each campus. Their recommendations will be submitted to the 1977 Legislature.

After a series of background briefings, Warner said, the committee is now ready to outline legislative philosophy in higher education.

'Hard Decisions' Seen

Some institutions may be asked to change their roles, to cut or change programs, he noted. Those will be "hard decisions" both for the Legislature and for them, he said.

Sen. Donald Dworak of Columbus said he hopes students and faculty members will provide most of the suggestions during subcommittee hearings on the campuses.

Warner agreed that the emphasis for now should be on persons other than administrators and governing board members.

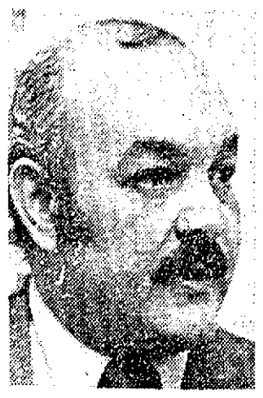
Texas Ghetto Changed Wells' Views

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

Dr. Patrick Wells returns to the Malone Community Center, an organization he worked with in the 1960s, as a man whose views have "changed considerably."

The change comes from "working with young people who see through falseness" and from living in "one of the greatest shock periods in the history of the country," Wells said.

As a result he does less speechmaking, as he did as president of Lincoln's National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) chapter and more activism as dean of pharmacology at Houston's Texas Southern University (TSU).



Dr. Patrick Wells

He is president of the National Pharmaceutical Foundation and an American Association on Colleges of Pharmacy board member.

Wells was in Lincoln Wednesday to speak at the 44th annual meeting of the Malone Community Center.

"I kind of lost touch with the reality of things until I returned to Houston — Texas Southern is in the middle of the ghetto — and began dealing with problems that are very real."

Tought at UNL

Wells, a Liberty, Texas, native and TSU graduate, received his masters and doctorate in pharmaceutical science from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. He returned to UNL to teach in 1963, earned a distinguished teaching award in 1968 and resigned in 1970 to take the TSU position.

'Should Have Been Elsewhere'

"When I saw people battling to eat at a lunch counter and struggling for the right to do the simplest things, I felt like a complete fool. I felt like I should have been somewhere else (during his Lincoln years) — not making speeches, but being totally involved."

Wells still considers himself a moderate but says some of his views have been "radically changed."

"To hear testimony that a man like Dr. Martin Luther King, who was teaching non-violence, was actually threatened by the FBI . . . well, if Dr. King had asked my opinion about the letter he got, I probably would have told him to report it to the FBI." Wells said.

A Senate committee staff said Tuesday that the FBI tried to destory King's influence by sending him a threatening letter, planting 16 electronic bugs and eight wiretaps and trying to pick his successor.

'Playing Into Hands'

"By talking moderately we were probably playing right into the hands of the people who were against us," Wells said.

Although he doesn't condone the violence of the Black Panther party's early days, Wells said the Black Panthers "made the average black and white think and be more conscious of a lot of things that were going on."

Today, the local Black Panther chapter works non-violently in the Houston area, he said.

"We can still do a lot in legal, non-violent ways," Wells said.

'Problems Moved North'

"Some of the problems we were fighting in the south seem to have just moved north — or maybe they were there all along and we've just noticed them."

And, Wells said, blacks still trail whites in employment, housing and education.

TSU, a predominantly black school formed in 1947 by the Texas legislature to accomodate blacks refused admittance to other state universities, is working to establish blacks in the professions, he said.

"We do have a need for black professionals in the inner city," he said. "White flight to suburban areas is evident in many cities."

Texas Ghetto Changed Wells' Views

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

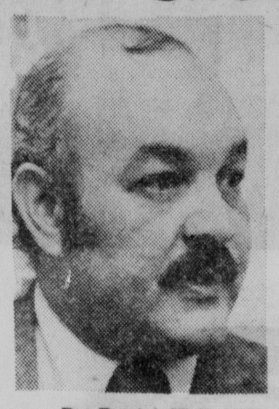
Dr. Patrick Wells returns to the Malone Community Center, an organization he worked with in the 1960s, as a man whose views have "changed considerably."

The change comes from "working with young people who see through falseness" and from living in "one of the greatest shock periods in the history of the country," Wells said.

As a result he does less speechmaking, as he did as president of Lincoln's National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) chapter and more activism as dean of pharmacology at Houston's Texas Southern University (TSU).

Tought at UNL

Wells, a Liberty, Texas, native and TSU graduate, received his masters and doctorate in pharmaceutical science from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. He returned to UNL to teach in 1963, earned a distinguished teaching award in 1968 and resigned in 1970 to take the TSU position.



Dr. Patrick Wells

He is president of the National Pharmaceutical Foundation and an American Association on Colleges of Pharmacy board member.

Wells was in Lincoln Wednesday to speak at the 44th annual meeting of the Malone Community Center.

"I kind of lost touch with the reality of things until I returned to Houston — Texas Southern is in the middle of the ghetto — and began dealing with problems that are very real.

'Should Have Been Elsewhere'

"When I saw people battling to eat at a lunch counter and struggling for the right to do the simplest things, I felt like a complete fool. I felt like I should have been somewhere else (during his Lincoln years) — not making speeches, but being totally involved."

Wells still considers himself a moderate but says some of his views have been "radically changed."

"To hear testimony that a man like Dr. Martin Luther King, who was teaching non-violence, was actually threatened by the FBI . . . well, if Dr. King had asked my opinion about the letter he got, I probably would have told him to report it to the FBI," Wells said.

A Senate committee staff said Tuesday that the FBI tried to destory King's influence by sending him a threatening letter, planting 16 electronic bugs and eight wiretaps and trying to pick his successor.

'Playing Into Hands'

"By talking moderately we were probably playing right into the hands of the people who were against us," Wells said.

Although he doesn't condone the violence of the Black Panther party's early days, Wells said the Black Panthers "made the average black and white think and be more conscious of a lot of things that were going on."

Today, the local Black Panther chapter works nonviolently in the Houston area, he said.

"We can still do a lot in legal, non-violent ways," Wells said.

'Problems Moved North'

"Some of the problems we were fighting in the south seem to have just moved north — or maybe they were there all along and we've just noticed them."

And, Wells said, blacks still trail whites in employment, housing and education.

TSU, a predominantly black school formed in 1947 by the Texas legislature to accomodate blacks refused admittance to other state universities, is working to establish blacks in the professions, he said.

"We do have a need for black professionals in the inner city," he said. "White flight to suburban areas is evident in many cities."

Rezoning Request Back Third Time

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Farm Bureau Insurance officials told planners Wednesday there have been some "significant changes" in the past two years to warrant a reversal of previous denials of the firm's request to build a home office building.

Norm Krivosha, attorney for Farm Bureau, told the City-County Planning Commission that construction of a two to three-story building near 1st and Superior would enhance the northwest Lincoln area, not be a detriment to it.

The company is applying for a change of zone from A-2 Single Family to F Restricted Commercial on 5.7 acres of land east of Interstate 80.

Twice in the past two years, the planning commission and City Council have rejected similar zoning requests.

The officials have asserted that a commercial development at that site would deter hoped-for residential growth and would attract more businesses to the area.

When the council turned down the application last time, some lawmakers suggested Farm Bureau could purchase land in the nearby Highlands development, which already has land zoned for some commercial uses. At that time Farm Bureau representatives said they couldn't afford to buy that land. They own the land near the interestate.

Krivosha said Wednesday that the Highlands deal is still out.

"The fact is, Farm Bureau is ready to go; Highlands isn't."

In the past the company had requested rezoning on about 16 acres of land in the area. The new application only calls for rezoning on 5.7 acres. Krivosha said the company would be willing to restrict the use of the remaining land to single family uses.

He also argued that homes won't be built on the land because of the proximity of a Department of Roads building and maintenance shops, the city campgrounds and nearby mobile home courts.

George Hancock, of Sweeney, Burke and Hancock Realty Co., testified that he cannot find any other suitable location for the company in Lincoln.

Hancock disputed past arguments that the relocation of Farm Bureau offices from downtown Lincoln to the suburbs would harm the economic stance of downtown Lincoln.

He asserted that the central business district "is full, it's jam-packed."

"I can't find a single way in which this would be harmful to the community," he said.

The commission also heard testimony opposing the rezoning by M. L. Mumgaard, 6400 N. 7th. Mumgaard contended that a change to restricted commercial use in northwest Lincoln would set an undesirable precedent for further business zoning applications in the future.

He said people living in the area would prefer to have homes constructed, asking "What's more valuable — people or property?"

Planning Director Doug Brogden still recommends denial of Farm Bureau's application. In his latest report, Brogden said the preliminary preferred land use plan now being developed does not call for business in the area.

The commission is scheduled to act on the matter next Wednesday

Mobile Home Storage Request Given Hearing

The planning commission held another public hearing Wednesday on a proposal to allow storage of mobile homes in west Lincoln.

Stan Krehbiel is requesting a change of zone from A-2 Single Family to H-2 Highway Commercial on 3.4 acres of land near N.W. 24th and West Q.

Residents living in the West Q area previously have objected to the zoning change because they fear it would attract more businesses to the area.

Krehbiel, who is making the application for Countryside Mobile Homes, is proposing a comprise plan. Under that proposal, the company would leave the area fronting West Q St. in single family zoning.

The interior of the lot, between West Q and West O, would be rezoned, with access to the lot from West O St.

Attorney Michael Alesio argued that the single family area would serve as a buffer to separate the houses from the commercial uses.

Planning Director Doug Brogden still is opposing the application, contending that approval of the request would open the area for business development.

The commission is slated to take action on the application next week.

The commission also held hearings on:

Changes of Zone

—Application of planning director to amend zoning ordinance relating special permits and community unit plans.

—Application of planning director to amend zoning ordinance relating to adjustment of front yard requirements.

Special Permits

—Application of Buckingham Development for community unit plan and preliminary and final plat near Old Cheney Rd. and 50th.

Plats

—Skyline Rolling Hills 2nd Add., near 14th and Old Cheney Rd.

He asserted that the central business district "is full, it's jam-packed."

"I can't find a single way in which this would be harmful to the community," he said.

The commission also heard testimony opposing the rezoning by M. L. Mumgaard, 6400 N. 7th. Mumgaard contended that a change to restricted commercial use in northwest Lincoln would set an undesirable precedent for further business zoning applications in the future.

He said people living in the area would prefer to have homes constructed, asking "What's more valuable — people or property?"

Planning Director Doug Brogden still recommends denial of Farm Bureau's application. In his latest report, Brogden said the preliminary preferred land use plan now being developed does not call for business in the area.

The commission is scheduled to act on the matter next Wednesday

Mobile Home Storage Request Given Hearing

The planning commission held another public hearing Wednesday on a proposal to allow storage of mobile homes in west Lincoln.

Stan Krehbiel is requesting a change of zone from A-2 Single Family to H-2 Highway Commercial on 3.4 acres of land near N.W. 24th and West Q.

Residents living in the West Q area previously have objected to the zoning change because they fear it would attract more businesses to the area.

Krehbiel, who is making the application for Countryside Mobile Homes, is proposing a comprise plan. Under that proposal, the company would leave the area fronting West Q St. in single family zoning.

The interior of the lot, between West Q and West O, would be rezoned, with access to the lot from West O St.

Attorney Michael Alesio argued that the single family area would serve as a buffer to separate the houses from the commercial uses.

Planning Director Doug Brogden still is opposing the application, contending that approval of the request would open the area for business development.

The commission is slated to take action on the application next week.

The commission also held hearings on:

Changes of Zone

—Application of planning director to amend zoning ordinance relating special permits and community unit plans.

Special Permits

—Application of Buckingham Development for community unit plan and preliminary and final plat near Old Cheney Rd. and 50th.

Plats

—Skyline Rolling Hills 2nd Add., near 14th and Old Cheney Rd.

LaPage Promoted To LPD Inspector

Police Chief George Hansen announced the promotion Wednesday of Capt. Roger LaPage to inspector of the department's criminal division.

LaPage, 35, succeeds Robert Butcher, who retired in October.

Hansen, who made the announcement in Mayor Helen Boosalis's office, said he appointed LaPage following "extensive testing."

Roger LaPage

Mrs. Boosalis said she "absolutely approves" of the chief's choice because of LaPage's "good record with the department and his background."

LaPage joined the Lincoln Police Department in 1961. He was promoted to detective in 1966 and to lieutenant in 1969. Last year he was moved up to captain and headed the department's major crimes unit.

In 1972 he graduated from the FBI National Academy in Washington, D.C., a 12-week training and education course for law enforcement officers.

LaPage is a graduate of Lincoln High School and has a degree in criminal justice from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

NRD Cuts Section Of Groundwater Act

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Those of you who are tired of all that government red tape, take heart, you have a friend in the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD).

That body took a step to eliminate some paperwork that would have been involved with the adoption of the rules and regulations of the Nebraska Groundwater Management Act during their regular meeting Wednesday night.

The management act, the result of LB577, was presented for public scrutiny in three sections by the NRD attorney Steve Seglin. Seglin told the group that sections A and B were mandatory but that section C, dealing with the reporting requirements for the administration of sections A and B, didn't necessarily have to be approved.

Section A dealt with the general provisions of the bill while section B concerns enforcement procedures. Neither drew much opposition from the board members of the few members of the general public who attended.

Section C, however, drew comment from one Lincolnite, several board members, NRD employe Hal Schroeder, and Seglin.

Board member Art Knox broke the ice on the controversial section by offering a motion not to adopt, which was rejected by Seglin due to the negative semantics.

Board member Dave Landis moved for acceptance of the section, "Just to get the thing in the open," and Knox yielded to Dan Schlitt of 2600 C who told the group that groundwater conservation is sort of "an avocation" with him.

Schlitt said that he felt the reporting requirements were "an unnecessary burden to well users in the state," although he said he favors having some report for a record of how much groundwater is being used in the state.

Schroeder said that "periodic reports of this" are already available to the NRD. Having their own records would just make the information more accessible, but would definitely "represent a duplication of services."

Board member Jack Wagner said "We'd just be putting more figures in books that nobody reads anyway."

Knox then took his turn and put the scissors to the red tape saying, "It's a matter of principle. People are over-burdened with paperwork already."

Seglin, noting that facts are already available, said that perhaps what would be useful for the data that Schroeder reported is already available would be some way to analyze the data, adding that "Section C certainly doesn't provide an analysis."

'Population Plus Weapons Equals More War Risk'

Washington (UPI) — Current population growth rates in developing countries together with the proliferation of sophisticated weapons increase the risk of war, the chairman of the U.S. Council on Environmental Quality said.

There are 4 billion people inhabiting earth and Dr. Russell Peterson said about 70% of those people live in the developing nations. At present rates of growth, he said the developing countries will hold 82% of the global population in 35 years.

"That rate of expansion, if unchecked, threatens unpredictable danger for us all — not only incalculable human misery, but international conflagration," Peterson told an international population conference sponsored by the World Population Society.

Stenberg Raps Harris Opinion On Higher Taxes

Lincoln legislative candidate Don Stenberg Wednesday took issue with a potential rival's appearance before the State Board of Equalization last week.

Stenberg, a candidate for the 27th District seat now held by Sen. Steve Fowler, disagreed with Lincoln businessman Bill Harris's statement that state tax rates need to be raised higher than the board approved in order to give the state sufficient revenue to meet its obligations.

"A tax increase of the magnitude advocated by Mr. Harris is unnecessary, inadvisable and unconscionable," Stenberg said.

Candidates for the Legislature should "look for ways to eliminate waste and inefficiency in state government rather than seek enormous tax increases," he said.

Harris has indicated he may also seek the 27th District legislative post.

When Lights Go Out Grocer Locks Doors

It's a credo Louis Stanard learned after 17 years as a grocer: when power fails, lock the doors.

It's not that blackouts are upsetting. They're predictable, like the changes in seasons, and usually happen at least once a year.

Stanard's annual blackout was Wednesday. Power went out in Lincoln about 1 p.m. in an area from 9th to 15th and K to L Sts. The line went down in an alley from 11th to 12th, between K and L.

So Stanard closed his IGA store, 13th and K Sts., for two hours Wednesday afternoon. Surrounding business and the Photomat store in his own parking lot retained power.

The closing was caused by human, not technological, weaknesses. People steal in the dark, Stanard said. Besides, they usually fall and fumble among his displays.

Stanard said he has alternate ways to keep his computerized check-out machines and other electrical equipment operative during failures.

Eastridge School Is Seeing Double

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

It's a case of seeing double — five times.

Unit B (third and fourth grade) at Eastridge School sports five sets of twins.

And to complicate the matter further, two of the pairs — Jodi and Julie Vermeer, Andy and Stuart Bohart — are identical.

"Everyone thinks me and Tony are identical twins," exclaimed Susan James, who looks very much like her brother. Dressed in Tony's hand-me-down jeans, Susan can surely be mistaken for her brother by the casual observer.

The other two girl-boy combinations, Michelle and Michael Black and Inta and Andy Didrichsons, share similar looks in addition to the same birthday.

"You always have someone to play with," reasoned Andy Bohart. "We have a lot of fun."

But identical twin Stuart doesn't always agree. "When my brother does something wrong, I get in trouble for it," he lamented.

"It's too bad you have to share a room," Jodi Vermeer said about being part of a pair. "You fight," sister Julie confirmed.

"And my mom makes me get the same dresses," Jodi moaned. Although matching outfits fill most of their closets, the twins admit that they rarely dress alike.

Susan James is more worried about the economics of being a twin. "You don't get as big an allowance," she figures. "And when Tony's clothes get too small I have to wear them," she added.

Principal Inez Baker sees no problems with so many sets of twins in one unit. "In almost every case they're proud to be twins but are not dependent on each other," she explained.

In the multi-unit classroom situation, said Miss Baker, each of the twins can go off with his or her own friend in the wide open area, but still have contact with his or her sibling when desired.

The young students certainly second the lack of problems in the classroom. Except when the teachers get their names mixed up. "That's when we have fun getting mad at the teachers," Stuart and Andy laughed.

Survivors Recall Blizzard Of 1888

books by Cynthia Johnson

It roared in from the northwest Jan. 12, 1888, cutting a swath of devastation through the mid-section of the United States.

"The wickedest thing I ever saw," said one observer whose recollections of the infamous blizzard of '88 are recorded in a book compiled almost 30 years ago by members of the January 12, 1888 Blizzard Club.

"In All Its Fury" (so named because blizzard survivors' comments about the storm so often contained that phrase) was first published in 1947. In 1973 it was reprinted in paperback form, several hundred copies of which are still on the market.

The bulk of the book is comprised of brief recollections of the storm, penned by people who lived in Nebraska and adjacent states and territories when it struck.

Those who responded to the club's request for written recollections have provided readers with a series of highly interesting, sometimes amusing tales relating to the blizzard itself. But more than that, they have succeeded in making the emotions of the moment come alive again.

It is with wonderment, empathy and a good deal of respect that we of the centrally-heated, automobile-conveyed, telephone-linked generation read their story.

Many of the writers were in school when the blizzard struck. Others were home, out tending stock, riding through the country on horseback, in wagons.

They were all vulnerable.

The Great American Desert had just recently been settled. The houses, schools were often poorly constructed owing to their relative newness and the fact that many of the settlers had failed to make improvements because they were planning to move "back East" again.

And they were doubly vulnerable because the storm struck quickly, without warning.

Again and again they compare the storm's coming to a tidal wave or the sound of a locomotive.

The day, in many localities, was warm for January. Then, all of a sudden, the sky darkened and the blizzard "bearing its burden of fine, crystal-sharp snow, came across the prairie . . . moving from the northwest toward the southeast at an average recorded rate of 45 miles per hour."

There had been higher winds before, greater amounts of snow. But the combinations of the elements, the fury and the suddenness with which they struck, are etched in the memories of those who have written this book.

"They used to reckon time from the blizzard of '88," writes one observer in describing the impact of the storm.

There are tales of heroism, of parents frantic to know the fate of schoolchildren, of cobs, hay and furniture being burned for fuel.

And time and again, we read of the traveler whose trusty horse or team brought him to safety during the storm. "My horse always saves me," said one such half-frozen man after his horse carried him into the frontier town of Grand Island. "Will you give him the best you've got?"

Some 40 people lost their lives in Nebraska as a result of the storm.

Countless others survived. They "kept a light burning in the window at home, helplessly pacing the floor or kneeling in prayer," writes former State Sen. W. H. O'Gara in the book's introduction.

And O'Gara continues, "I would rather feel that the smoke from the kerosene lamp or tallow candles was a sweeter incense than any that ever burned in a sacred urn and that the . . . prayers held a greater meaning than the solemn chant of minister or choir, accompanied by the strains of the pipe organ, or tinkling of sacred bells."

Sand Stolen From Beach

Mar del Plata, Argentina (UPI) — Tourists arriving at this beach resort for the southern hemisphere summer season will find less sand on the beach than last year. Authorities are investigating an operation in which trucks and bulldozers carted away several hundred tons of sand in a "cleanup" campaign that left craters up to six feet deep in places. It seems no one knows who authorized it or where the sand went.

Opening lead - seven of spades.

It's not easy to make six spades against a trump lead, even if you have the benefit of seeing all four hands. But when the hand was played, South made the slam without that advantage.

He won the trump lead in dummy with the eight, played a diamond and on it discarded the queen of hearts! From then on South could not be stopped.

He took the club return by East with the ace, played the ace of trumps, cashed the A-K of hearts, led a trump to the ten, and discarded the 9-8-7 of clubs on the J-10-7 of hearts, thus making six spades.

Certainly his method of play was extraordinary — but it was extremely sound. In effect, declarer assumed that the trumps were divided 3-1 rather than 2-2, and covered that possibility as well as he could by ditching the queen of hearts at trick two.

The beauty of the play was that it permitted South to make five heart tricks which he could not have made otherwise.

In a sense, it was West who gave declarer his chance to shine. Had he led any suit but a trump, South would have made the slam quite easily. He would have played the A-x of clubs, ruffed two clubs in dummy, and made the slam without even breathing hard.

But with the trump lead South had to play flawlessly to bring home the contract. Some players might call this a fancy kind of hand, but, if it is, here's hoping we see lots more like it!

Form Of Address Stumper

DEAR ABBY: Here among us Florida retirees, more and more of our widowed friends are "shacking up." If they marry, the widow loses part or all of her Social Security payments. Our problem is how to address these couples.

"Mr. John Smith and Mrs. Robert Jones" is probably correct, but it sounds so stilted, and besides, I think old Bob would want no part of this whole deal.

"Mr. John Smith and Mrs. Mary Jones" not only is incorrect but also slightly salacious. Their mailman is very straight-laced, conservative type, which makes matters worse.

Shacked up or not, these are very proper people, and we want to address them correctly.

Can you help? And please don't take the easy way out and suggest "Occupants."

FLORIDA RETIREES

DEAR RETIREES: The only correct way to address one is by his (or her) legal name. Don't worry about the mailman. His job is to deliver the mail, not to make moral judgments.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, my husband's brother died and left a widow. (No children). We agreed to let her live with us for a while so she wouldn't be alone. (Their apartment held so many memories she didn't want to live in it without him — which was understandable.)

Well, it's now going on the third year, and she hasn't said a word about leaving. We do love her and didn't mind having her for the first year, but we want very much to be by ourselves now.

She dates a little and has made a good adjustment, and it's time she started to think about moving. But how do we accomplish this without making ourselves look like villains?

TOUCHY PROBLEM

DEAR TOUCHY: Tell her that you admire the manner in which she has overcome her grief, and you'd be glad to help her find another apartment. It's how you look to yourselves, not to others, that counts.

DEAR ABBY: We have a daughter-in-law who is stealing us blind, and we don't know what to do about it. She steals small items, such as saving-stamp books, small tins of tuna and sardines, cosmetics — anything she can stick into her purse.

We have mentioned having "misplaced" or "lost" specific items in her presence, hoping she will get the hint and quit stealing from us, but it has done no good.

She is not in need of anything, Abby. I cannot understand why she steals from us. Perhaps she steals from others, too. I have seen her slip things into her purse, but of course I would never humiliate her by asking her if I could go through her purse before she leaves the house.

The Bible says, "No thieves shall enter the kingdom of heaven," and I love my daughter-in-law and do want to see her in heaven.

If you print this maybe our son will see it and recognize it as his wife. We haven't the heart to accuse her to her face.

HEARTBROKEN IN ARKANSAS

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: And what if your son doesn't see this column? This problem is much too serious to rely on "hints" and chance. Have a frank talk with your son immediately and suggest that his wife get professional help.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell the next reader who asks what to do about a flooded basement to call the fire department.

We help in any emergency not involving a crime: sudden illness from simple fainting to heart attacks; accidents from falling out of bed to auto collisions; electrical power failure (anything from a blown fuse to a high voltage wire that could be very dangerous).

We give emergency aid and call an ambulance, doctor or any other agency as required.

We'll even come out and check your home to make sure it's fireproof. Please spread the word, Abby. We want to help.

FRIENDLY FIREMAN
SUN CITY, CALIF.

DEAR FIREMAN: I'll spread the word. The printed word reaches more people than smoke signals.

DEAR ABBY: Here among us Florida retirees, more and more of our widowed friends are "shacking up." If they marry, the widow loses part or all of her Social Security payments. Our problem is how to address these couples.

"Mr. John Smith and Mrs. Robert Jones" is probably correct, but it sounds so stilted, and besides, I think old Bob would want no part of this whole deal.

"Mr. John Smith and Mrs. Mary Jones" not only is incorrect but also slightly salacious. Their mailman is very straight-laced, conservative type, which makes matters worse.

Shacked up or not, these are very proper people, and we want to address them correctly.

FLORIDA RETIREES

DEAR RETIREES: The only correct way to address one is by his (or her) legal name. Don't worry about the mailman. His job is to deliver the mail, not to make moral judgments.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago, my husband's brother died and left a widow. (No children). We agreed to let her live with us for a while so she wouldn't be alone. (Their apartment held so many memories she didn't want to live in it without him — which was understandable.)

Well, it's now going on the third year, and she hasn't said a word about leaving. We do love her and didn't mind having her for the first year, but we want very much to be by ourselves now.

She dates a little and has made a good adjustment, and it's time she started to think about moving. But how do we accomplish this without making ourselves look like villains?

TOUCHY PROBLEM

DEAR TOUCHY: Tell her that you admire the manner in which she has overcome her grief, and you'd be glad to help her find another apartment. It's how you look to yourselves, not to others, that counts.

DEAR ABBY: We have a daughter-in-law who is stealing us blind, and we don't know what to do about it. She steals small items, such as saving-stamp books, small tins of tuna and sardines, cosmetics — anything she can stick into her purse.

We have mentioned having "misplaced" or "lost" specific items in her presence, hoping she will get the hint and quit stealing from us, but it has done no good.

She is not in need of anything, Abby. I cannot understand why she steals from us. Perhaps she steals from others, too. I have seen her slip things into her purse, but of course I would never humiliate her by asking her if I could go through her purse before she leaves the house.

The Bible says, "No thieves shall enter the kingdom of heaven," and I love my daughter-in-law and do want to see her in heaven.

If you print this maybe our son will see it and recognize it as his wife. We haven't the heart to accuse her to her face.

HEARTBROKEN IN ARKANSAS

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: And what if your son doesn't see this column? This problem is much too serious to rely on "hints" and chance. Have a frank talk with your son immediately and suggest that his wife get professional help.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell the next reader who asks what to do about a flooded basement to call the fire department.

We help in any emergency not involving a crime: sudden illness from simple fainting to heart attacks; accidents from falling out of bed to auto collisions; electrical power failure (anything from a blown fuse to a high voltage wire that could be very dangerous).

We give emergency aid and call an ambulance, doctor or any other agency as required.

We'll even come out and check your home to make sure it's fireproof. Please spread the word, Abby. We want to help.

FRIENDLY FIREMAN
SUN CITY, CALIF.

DEAR FIREMAN: I'll spread the word. The printed word reaches more people than smoke signals.

2 Colleges To Offer Program

Chadron (AP) — Chadron State College and Nebraska Western College, a two-year junior college in Scottsbluff, have entered into a cooperative degree program, officials of both schools announced Wednesday.

Under the program, students will be able to attend classes at the Western campus, and receive a four-year degree from Chadron State.

Students would attend classes at Western all four years, but after the first two years, their credits and registrations would be transferred to Chadron State.

According to Chadron State President Dr. Edwin Nelson, all of the faculty involved in the upper level classes at Western will be approved by Chadron State.

Dr. Charles Bensman, president of Western, said a minimum of 15 students will be needed for each upper level class, and that he hopes the program can be started by the spring semester, and be in full gear by next summer.

Community College Unit Sets Session

The Nebraska Association of Community Colleges Trustees (NACCT) will meet Saturday in Grand Island in an organizational session.

NACCT was incorporated on Oct. 29 as a non-profit, educational organization to fill the void left when a 1975 law abolished the statutory State Board of Technical Community Colleges.

Don Nielsen of Lincoln and Ted Doyle of Fairbury, both memberrs of the Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College Board, were named to the initital NACCT Board of Directors.

NACCT, according to its incorporation papers, was founded to promote the concept of technical community colleges and eliminate barriers to developing that philosophy, offer informational programs for members of the six local area boards and unify the boards on issues.

NACCT will also lobby in the Nebraska Legislature, seek national affiliations and uniform credit transfer agreements with other education institutions, and promote innovative curricula, career education, public accountability, financial support and public understanding of the two-year schools.

Kearney Site For Trustees Work Session

The Nebraska State Colleges Board of Trustees will examine dormitory bond problems, review major long-range policies and set priorities on 1976-77 capital construction requests at a Kearney meeting Friday.

The board will meet at 10 a.m., after a 9 a.m. work session in the Kearney State College Administration Building. Kearney, Chadron, Peru and Wayne State student personnel and housing directors will discuss with the board ways to make dorms more attractive, reduce vacancies and increase revenues.

Board members will re-examine capital construction requests approved earlier: $178,000 for Chadron; $75,000, Kearney; $69,000, Wayne, and $7,000, Peru, plus $900,000 for deferred maintenance.

State officials have ordered agency reviews of building requests, stressing maintenance and repair. The board also has agreed to request new and expanded program funds of $138,000 for Chadron; $356,000, Kearney; $260,000, Wayne, and $91,000 for Peru State.

The board will consider deferred maintenance contracts and employment contracts with the Higher Education Association of Nebraska, as well as collective bargaining arrangements. Other business includes reviewing state and revenue bond facilities audits, and the state colleges system insurance package.

State Meeting On Civil Rights Being Discussed

Grand Island (UPI) — The Nebraska Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights Wednesday discussed the possibility of holding a state conference on civil rights next spring.

The commission, chaired by John Gale of North Platte, put off a final decision until later pending development of additional plans.

The purpose of the meeting called in Grand Island was to discuss progress since April when the committee's civil rights report was completed. That report highlighted the need for larger staffs and increased budgets for agencies involved in civil rights of specific segments of the population as well as those generally involved.

Among the issues discussed were affirmative action hiring in state government, legislative and budget issues and uniform standards for contract compliance.

Report Says Big Blue River Water Polluted

By United Press International

Big Blue River water is polluted at several locations and fails to meet state water quality standards, according to a draft report released Wednesday.

However, the report said, river water would probably meet state standards if those polluters discharging into the rivers would build secondary sewage treatment facilities.

The draft report covers the Big Blue River Basin and was prepared by the Nebraska Natural Resources Commission.

The report, which reflects studies on the basin, is one of several being done by the commission throughout Nebraska to comply with federal law.

The Blue Basin includes 4,560 miles of the state, including all of York County and parts of 13 other counties. Larger communities in the basin are Hastings, Beatrice, York, Seward, Crete, Aurora, David City and Geneva.

The report said municipal waste is treated to varying degrees in 68 treatment systems but 17 communities with a combined population of over 1,100 people have no wastewater collection or treatment facilities.

The report outlines community treatment needs and singles out as being top priority sytems at Aurora, Beatrice, Harvard, Milford and Seward.

The report also confirmed speculation that underground water supplies in the basin are generally declining.

The basin contains less than 3% of the state's vailable underground water supply, yet almost 20% of the underground water withdrawn is removed within the basin.

Another feature in the report is a recommendation on the future of the Big Blue River. The report suggested that the river, from Crete to Beatrice, be considered for preservation in its existing free-flowing condition.

Non-Reservation Indians To Get Care

By United Press International

State Indian Commission Director Robert Mackey announced Wednesday a program providing medical services for non-reservation Indians, the first of its kind in the nation, has been established through Creighton University Medical School in Omaha.

Mackey said the "complete health service" program has been established to serve Lincoln, Omaha and the Panhandle areas of the state. He said those are the areas of highest concentration in terms of non-reservation Indians.

He also said even though contact points have been established in those areas through commission offices, "we aren't going to argue if someone comes from another area of the state. We're going to see that they get help."

The name of the program, set up with the help of Al Fasthorse, community health representative for the Omaha and Winnebago tribes, is the "Tri-Area Indian Health Services Program."

Under the arrangement, Mackey said Creighton is absorbing the care costs.

The lack of medical care for non-reservation Indians has been of concern for years, Mackey noted, primarily because the lack of care has tended to keep those Indian families who face financial problems anyway even more depressed economically.

"That's why the average life expectancy for the Indian is 44," the director said. "Those having financial problems can't afford such things as insurance, so they simply go without medical care. They die young."

He added that's why there's little need for programs for the elderly within the Indian community — "We don't live long enough to worry about things like that."

Mackey said the whole idea is to provide care for those who can't afford it in hopes of breaking the chain of "poverty bringing more poverty."

For years, he said, efforts have been made to expand reservation care programs to include those who have left the reservation but still need assistance for one reason or another.

"We're no less Indian than those living on the reservation," he said. "But the federal government has always taken the position that once we leave the reservation that's it."

"The problem is, that isn't it," Mackey said. "Some people still need help and it just becomes a matter of whether they can find it and whether they can find it in time to do them any good."

The commission director said still being worked out are plans for providing transportation from outstate areas to Omaha.

Nebraska, Iowa May Get New Amtrak Route

A group of Nebraskans and Iowans may have convinced Amtrak officials last week to open a new passenger route through the area.

Thrid District Rep. Virginia Smith said that Amtrak will probably approve a passenger route from Chicago to Ogden, Utah, then southwest to Los Angeles and northwest to Portland.

The Nebraska route, which would follow the Platte Valley on former Union Pacific City of Los Angeles and City of Portland lines, would be within 50 miles of 80% of the state's population.

Amtrak president Paul Riestrup said the route proposal was one of Amtrak's first six priorities for new routes.

Chamber Of Commerce Women Elect Mrs. Miller

Mrs. Nelia Miller was elected president Wednesday of the Women's Division of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Miller graduated from Broken Bow High School and attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She was a branch distributor of Vanda Beauty Counselor products. She owned and operated the Wishing Well Boutique.

State Officials Said 'Harassed'

"... The latest incursion of the U.S. Justice Department into Nebraska mental retardation programs" amounts to "harassment of state officials," says the Nebraska Chapter of the Mental Retardation Association of America (MRAA).

The incursion referred to by MRAA is the issuance of warrents requiring five state officials to submit sworn depositions dealing with funding problems being faces by community mental retardation programs.

A federal judge since then has quashed the warrents and the action by the Justice Department has taken the form of a request to make statements regarding the issue.

The five officials were under orders to produce documents relating to the state Title XX social services plan for 1975-76, budget requests from six mental retardation programs and interoffice correspondence regarding the need for supplemental funds.

According to regional retardation officials, the reallocation of social service funds under Title XX — which involved reduced funding for mental retardation — has placed their programs in jeopardy.

In reaction to the funding cuts, MRAA has urged the six regional mental retardation offices to cut down primarily on administrative and clerical personnel and other costs associated with administration.

Ths course of action was recommended "to insure that there are not program cuts and that all personnel working directly with the retarded shall be retained."

UNL Chemistry Professor Awarded $35,000

A professor of chemistry at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has received a $35,000 National Science Foundation grant to support a project entitled "Thermochemical Studies on Oxidation-Reduction Processes In Solutions."

Cecil R. Vanderzee will study the energy released or absorbed during reactions in chemical solutions.

Vanderzee is an authority in calorimetry, the study of energy released in chemical reactions. He was named winner of the Huffman Award of the U.S. Calorimetry Conference last summer and delivered the annual Huffman address at the conference's meeting in Seattle, Wash.

He has been involved in calorimetry and thermodynamics work at NU since 1958.

Non-Reservation Indians To Get Care

By United Press International

State Indian Commission Director Robert Mackey announced Wednesday a program providing medical services for non-reservation Indians, the first of its kind in the nation, has been established through Creighton University Medical School in Omaha.

Mackey said the "complete health service" program has been established to serve Lincoln, Omaha and the Panhandle areas of the state. He said those are the areas of highest concentration in terms of non-reservation Indians.

He also said even though contact points have been established in those areas through commission offices, "we aren't going to argue if someone comes from another area of the state. We're going to see that they get help."

The name of the program, set up with the help of Al Fasthorse, community health representative for the Omaha and Winnebago tribes, is the "Tri-Area Indian Health Services Program."

Under the arrangement, Mackey said Creighton is absorbing the care costs.

The lack of medical care for non-reservation Indians has been of concern for years, Mackey noted, primarily because the lack of care has tended to keep those Indian families who face financial problems anyway even more depressed economically.

"That's why the average life expectancy for the Indian is 44," the director said. "Those having financial problems can't afford such things as insurance, so they simply go without medical care. They die young."

He added that's why there's little need for programs for the elderly within the Indian community — "We don't live long enough to worry about things like that."

Mackey said the whole idea is to provide care for those who can't afford it in hopes of breaking the chain of "poverty bringing more poverty."

For years, he said, efforts have been made to expand reservation care programs to include those who have left the reservation but still need assistance for one reason or another.

"We're no less Indian than those living on the reservation," he said. "But the federal government has always taken the position that once we leave the reservation that's it."

"The problem is, that isn't it," Mackey said. "Some people still need help and it just becomes a matter of whether they can find it and whether they can find it in time to do them any good."

The commission director said still being worked out are plans for providing transportation from outstate areas to Omaha.

Nebraska, Iowa May Get New Amtrak Route

A group of Nebraskans and Iowans may have convinced Amtrak officials last week to open a new passenger route through the area.

Thrid District Rep. Virginia Smith said that Amtrak will probably approve a passenger route from Chicago to Ogden, Utah, then southwest to Los Angeles and northwest to Portland.

The Nebraska route, which would follow the Platte Valley on former Union Pacific City of Los Angeles and City of Portland lines, would be within 50 miles of 80% of the state's population.

Amtrak president Paul Riestrup said the route proposal was one of Amtrak's first six priorities for new routes.

Mrs. Nelia Miller

Chamber Of Commerce Women Elect Mrs. Miller

Mrs. Nelia Miller was elected president Wednesday of the Women's Division of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Miller graduated from Broken Bow High School and attended the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She was a branch distributor of Vanda Beauty Counselor products. She owned and operated the Wishing Well Boutique.

State Officials Said 'Harassed'

"... The latest incursion of the U.S. Justice Department into Nebraska mental retardation programs" amounts to "harassment of state officials," says the Nebraska Chapter of the Mental Retardation Association of America (MRAA).

The incursion referred to by MRAA is the issuance of warrents requiring five state officials to submit sworn depositions dealing with funding problems being faces by community mental retardation programs.

A federal judge since then has quashed the warrents and the action by the Justice Department has taken the form of a request to make statements regarding the issue.

The five officials were under orders to produce documents relating to the state Title XX social services plan for 1975-76, budget requests from six mental retardation programs and interoffice correspondence regarding the need for supplemental funds.

According to regional retardation officials, the reallocation of social service funds under Title XX — which involved reduced funding for mental retardation — has placed their programs in jeopardy.

In reaction to the funding cuts, MRAA has urged the six regional mental retardation offices to cut down primarily on administrative and clerical personnel and other costs associated with administration.

Ths course of action was recommended "to insure that there are not program cuts and that all personnel working directly with the retarded shall be retained."

UNL Chemistry Professor Awarded $35,000

A professor of chemistry at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has received a $35,000 National Science Foundation grant to support a project entitled "Thermochemical Studies on Oxidation-Reduction Processes In Solutions."

Cecil R. Vanderzee will study the energy released or absorbed during reactions in chemical solutions.

Vanderzee is an authority in calorimetry, the study of energy released in chemical reactions. He was named winner of the Huffman Award of the U.S. Calorimetry Conference last summer and delivered the annual Huffman address at the conference's meeting in Seattle, Wash.

He has been involved in calorimetry and thermodynamics work at NU since 1958.

Market's Decline Is Broad

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled into a broad decline Wednesday on the news that President Ford wasn't yet ready to change his position against federal help for New York City.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about 2 at noontime when the President stated his feelings, finished with a loss of an even 7 points at 848.24.

Losers held a 1,043-to-379 edge on gainers among the 1,830 issues traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slacked off to 16.82 million shares from 20.76 million on Tuesday.

In his statement, Ford vowed to veto a bill calling for federal loan guarantees for New York City which had reached the House floor. The legislators quickly put off further consideration of the measure indefinitely.

The President added, however, that he might review his position early next week if the state and city put into effect proposed tax increases designed to add to the city's revenues.

But analysts noted some disappointment among investors whose hopes had been mounting for quick agreement between Washington and New York on a plan to ward off financial collapse of the city.

Texaco, the day's most active issue, dipped ¼ to 23 in trading that included a 130,000-share block at that price.

CTU Subsidiary Files Statement For Bond Sale

Central Telephone Company has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for sale of $20 million in first mortage sinking fund bonds.

The firm is an operating unit of Central Telephone and Utilities Corp., which said the bond money would be used to repay loans it advanced to finance construction. CTU said the Central Telephone offering would complete its external financing plans for 1975.

Wheat Futures Lose Nearly 11%

Chicago (AP) — Wheat futures lost nearly 11 cents a bushel on the Chichago Board of Trade Wednesday, but sharp losses in other grains were trimmed before the close.

Soybeans closed on a mixed tone after falling 7 cents a bushel. Corn declined 4½ cents but oats prices were mixed. Soybean meal, down about $3 a ton at one time, closed with a loss of $1. Soybean oil was steady to a few points higher.

Iced broilers gained ¾ cent a pound in the expiring November option but farther back prices were a shade lower.

Gold futures, which had been weak for days, turned around under agressive new buying and short covering to close with a gain of $3 an ounce.

Hog Prices Are Lower

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hog prices dipped on the Omaha livestock market Wednesday, with most of the downward turn caused by a marketing increase, but cattle turned higher for exactly the opposite reason.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 7,000 head. The trade on barrows and gilts was called fairly active, but the trend was unevenly steady to 75-cents lower.

There were only about 3,000 cattle and calves on offer.

Steers and heifers trended 25-to-50 cents higher in active trade, while cows moved mostly $1.00 lower in slow activity.

Market's Decline Is Broad

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market settled into a broad decline Wednesday on the news that President Ford wasn't yet ready to change his position against federal help for New York City.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about 2 at noontime when the President stated his feelings, finished with a loss of an even 7 points at 848.24.

Losers held a 1,043-to-379 edge on gainers among the 1,830 issues traded on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slacked off to 16.82 million shares from 20.76 million on Tuesday.

In his statement, Ford vowed to veto a bill calling for federal loan guarantees for New York City which had reached the House floor. The legislators quickly put off further consideration of the measure indefinitely.

The President added, however, that he might review his position early next week if the state and city put into effect proposed tax increases designed to add to the city's revenues.

But analysts noted some disappointment among investors whose hopes had been mounting for quick agreement between Washington and New York on a plan to ward off financial collapse of the city.

Texaco, the day's most active issue, dipped ¼ to 23 in trading that included a 130,000-share block at that price.

CTU Subsidiary Files Statement For Bond Sale

Central Telephone Company has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for sale of $20 million in first mortage sinking fund bonds.

The firm is an operating unit of Central Telephone and Utilities Corp., which said the bond money would be used to repay loans it advanced to finance construction. CTU said the Central Telephone offering would complete its external financing plans for 1975.

Wheat Futures Lose Nearly 11%

Chicago (AP) — Wheat futures lost nearly 11 cents a bushel on the Chichago Board of Trade Wednesday, but sharp losses in other grains were trimmed before the close.

Soybeans closed on a mixed tone after falling 7 cents a bushel. Corn declined 4½ cents but oats prices were mixed. Soybean meal, down about $3 a ton at one time, closed with a loss of $1. Soybean oil was steady to a few points higher.

Iced broilers gained ¾ cent a pound in the expiring November option but farther back prices were a shade lower.

Gold futures, which had been weak for days, turned around under agressive new buying and short covering to close with a gain of $3 an ounce.

Hog Prices Are Lower

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hog prices dipped on the Omaha livestock market Wednesday, with most of the downward turn caused by a marketing increase, but cattle turned higher for exactly the opposite reason.

The day's hog run was estimated at about 7,000 head. The trade on barrows and gilts was called fairly active, but the trend was unevenly steady to 75-cents lower.

There were only about 3,000 cattle and calves on offer.

Steers and heifers trended 25-to-50 cents higher in active trade, while cows moved mostly $1.00 lower in slow activity.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO File for release of funds

This request relates to the following project: Conduct study to assess feasibility of developing units for handicapped people.

All applicable environmental reviews and clearance for the above project have been completed, as required by HUD. On November 24, 1975, a request and certification for funding of the above project will be filed.

The City of Lincoln, Nebraska will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Lincoln, Nebraska is certifying to HUD that the City of Lincoln, Nebraska and Mayor Helen Boosalis, in her official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, City of Lincoln, Nebraska may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) That the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; (b) that the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure and may be addressed to HUD at the Omaha Area Office, 7100 W. Center Road, Omaha, Nebraska, 68106. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after December 15, 1975 will be considered by HUD.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO File for release of funds

This request relates to the follcwing project Conduct study to assess feasibility of developing units for handicapped people

All applicable environmental reviews and clearance for the above project have been completed, as required by HUD. On November 24, 1975, a request and certification for funding of the above project will be filed.

The City of Lincoln, Nebraska will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Lincoln, Nebraska is certifying to HUD that the City of Lincoln, Nebraska and Mayor Helen Boosalis, in her official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, City of Lincoln, Nebraska may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases: (a) That the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; (b) that the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure and may be addressed to HUD at the Omaha Area Office, 7100 W. Center Road, Omaha, Nebraska, 68106. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after December 15, 1975 will be considered by HUD.

Star Sports Editor

Sooners In 'Bowl' In 1903

Frank Boggs, sports editor of the Oklahoma City Times, included an ancedote about Oklahoma in his portion of the book, "The College Game," published by Bobbs-Merrill:

"In 1903, when every Oklahoma town wanted its own town football team, Lawton, Oklahoma, boasted a squad so strong that it challenged the University of Oklahoma to a postseason game.

"It was no idle talk. The town offered the university $300 to participate in what was surely one of the country's earliest bowl games. Before the Sooners could meet to decide whether to accept, the Lawton backers became impatient and wired that they'd be willing to pay $400.

"That clinched it. After an ambitious 11-game schedule that had taken the Sooners as far afield as neighboring Arkansas, they needed to strengthen their frail financial condition.

"Before the big game with Lawton (which OU won 27-5), an Oklahoma end, one Alex Clement, came down with a severe cold. His parents forbade him to make the trip and his brother offered him the staggering sum of $40 not to play, fearing that if he did, the cold might develop into pneumonia.

"But Alex Clement was not persuaded. He played, claiming that if he had to die, there was no finer way to go than playing football."

Football is still that way at Oklahoma and the fever is just as high in Nebraska. That's why Saturday's game figures to be another of the many classics in the rivalry between the two schools.

Game Of The Century

Boggs also describes the buildup and suspense leading up that famous game four years ago in Norman when 62,884 fans jammed Owen Field and an additional 55 million people watched on national television.

Unfortunately, Saturday's contest won't be televised. If you don't have a ticket, you'll have to wait for the replay next Tuesday evening on the Nebraska ETV Network to view the action. Coach Tom Osborne, of course, will have highlights on his Sunday night show on Channels 10 and 11.

In that 1971 battle, Oklahoma gained 467 yards in total offense and Nebraska gained 362. Both teams scored in every quarter. Oklahoma led twice, each time by three precarious points. There were 66 points scored, yet the game featured some stellar defense.

With 7:10 to play, Jack Mildren moved the Sooners to a 31-28 lead when he sizzled a 16-yard touchdown pass to Jon Harrison, at 150 pounds, the smallest figure on the field, using Boggs' description.

Sensing the Sooners' fourth national championship, the jubilant spectators allowed themselves to forget that time enough remained for Nebraska to score. The key was a third-down pass from quarterback Jerry Tagge to Johnny Rodgers, who had electrified everyone earlier in the afternoon by returning a punt 72 yards for the game's first touchdown. Rodgers' reception kept the Huskers crunching onward.

Finally, with the ball at the two-yard line and only a couple of minutes remaining, Jeff Kinney, who already had rushed for 169 yards, crashed through an all but undetectable hole and scored the decisive points in Nebraska's 35-31 win.

Home Edge For Sooners?

Nebraska has played Oklahoma 29 times in Norman and has posted a 12-16-1 record. Overall, the series is 23-28-3 in favor of the Sooners. All three ties have been played in Lincoln. A tie, incidentally, is all the Huskers need to win the Big Eight title and the Orange Bowl bid.

It hasn't yet been much fun for Nebraska playing in Norman since 1942. Up to that point, the Huskers had won nine games there. Since then, in 33 years there have been NU victories only in 1960, 1969, and 1971 at Owen Field.

For fans who want to reminesce, here's a game by game record of the series that began back in 1912. The asterisk indicates the game was played in Lincoln:

In any sport, one of the keys to a championship season is a team's ability to peak at the right moment, down the stretch drive.

Nebraska women's volleyball coach, Pat Sullivan, is convinced her squad has hit its peak, and will be in strong contention for championship honors at this weekend's regional tournament in Columbia, Mo.

Sullivan's confidence lies in the fact the Cornhuskers captured the team championship in the Jayhawk Classic two weeks ago. The Huskers won 13 of 15 games in the event which included 26 teams from the midwest.

NU Coach

"You could see our squad was peaking at the right time in that tournament," Sullivan said. "Nebraska played well and brought home a lot of hardware (trophies) to prove it."

Long Season

"It's been a long season," Sullivan said of the squad which has rolled up an impressive 36-8 mark. "But it's going to pay off in the regionals because these girls have traveled all over the midwest and have built up a lot of endurance."

The regional tournament will be a three-day affair (Thursday through Saturday) at the University of Missouri. The champion and runnerup will qualify for the national finals which will be held in Princeton, N.J., Dec. 10-13.

Sullivan likes her team's chances of qualifying for the nationals as she noted, "we'll play eight matches in three days. Our girls are used to playing that many in one afternoon."

Southwest Missouri State is expected to battle the Cornhuskers for the team championship, according to Sullivan.

"They defeated us twice this year," Sullivan said. "But we feel we've improved a great deal since those games."

Radar Leads

Leading the Cornhuskers is senior Jan "Radar" Zink from Sterling.

The other starters for the Huskers include, Nancy Hamilton, Lincoln; Laury Harmon, Trumbull; Paula Walberg, Elmwood; Janice Kruger, Randolph; Sue Heiser, Columbus; Ann Richardson, Kearney; Linda Brown, Blair and Nancy Wilkinson, Fremont.

Accompanying the squad to the regional as substitutes will be Janet Lindhurst, Lincoln, Sue Luedtke, Lincoln and Marala Rupert from Los Angeles, Calif.

Nebraska finished sixth in the regional event last season, but Sullivan figures "things are going to be different this year. We have the talent and the confidence."

NU Moves Drill Indoors

"It might be good to give the team a little break, they haven't really had one in a while," Osborne said following the split practices in the field house."

"There's always a chance of an injury caused by slippery turf or a chance of flu when you practice in the rain. So we probably wouldn't push to go outside Thursday if the weather remains the same," Osborne said.

During the one and one-half hour for the offense and defense, the quarterbacks and receivers were able to work outside for about 20 minutes. "Our quarterbacks have big hands so they can throw the ball pretty well when it's wet," Osborne said. "And the receivers have a certain edge on a wet field because they know where they're going and the defensive backs don't."

The Huskers weren't able to work on the kicking game, though, and that caused some concern by Osborne.

One specific reason Osborne said he was concerned was because of the constant threat Oklahoma's Joe Washington breaking loose for a big gain.

"He's a great player and we're going to have to work on covering him. He's only averaging six yards per return, but a lot of the time he'll give ground trying to break for the big gain," Osborne said.

Starting middle guard John Lee with a a sprained ankle and starting defensive end Bob Martin with a sprained wrist, were both held out of practice Wednesday. Although reporting to practice but not at full speed were starting wingback Tom Heiser, pulled hamstring, starting offensive tackle Steve Hoins, sprained ankle and starting moster-man Wonder Monds with a sprained ankle.

Osborne noted that the Huskers were leading the Sooners 14-7 last year when middle guard Lee left the game due to injuries. "They made a lot of ground with their fullback up the middle against us in the fourth quarter last year," Osborne said.

Osborne said that he would wait until Friday morning to decide which of the players would be ready to go to Norman. "We can only take 48 players and we want to take ones that will be able to play."

Fred Rotheberg of Associated Press: "Oklahoma has agreed to go to the Fiesta Bowl in Tempe, Ariz., if it loses. If the once-beaten Sooners win, they'll be in Miami for Christmas. The 10-0 Cornhuskers made this an all-or-nothing game for themselves, opting for Miami or Lincoln, Neb. And who wants to spend the holidays in Lincoln? Nebraska 28, Oklahoma 24."

Herschel Nissenson of Associated Press: "Iowa State's Earle Bruce says both teams have good offenses but Nebraska's "is mor devastating. Nebraska controls the scrimmage line well enough so they can do anything they want offensively. The pick . . . Oklahoma 27-17."

Bill Madden of United Press International: "Oklahoma 27, Nebraska 16. Despite their awesome point productions of late, we still can't get the Cornhuskers' narrow opening-week 10-7 win over LSU out of mind. The Sooners also will enjoy a home field advantage — however slight."

Jets' Shipp Replaces Fired Winner

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Charley Winner, who took over under controversial conditions and then saw his club crumble beneath him in two short years, Wednesday was fired as head coach of the New York Jets and replaced on an interim basis by offensive coordinator Ken Shipp.

The personable Winner, who was often criticized for being too easy on his players, was in the second year of a three-year contract. His selection as head coach two years ago brought cries of nepotism, since he replaced his father-in-law, Weeb Ewbank.

Winner guided the Jets to a 77 season last year, winning his last six games, and the Jets had playoff aspirations this season. But the club now has lost six in a row, one short of a club record, and seven of nine overall.

Club president Phil Iselin made the announcement, calling it "a very emotional day for me. I know Charley Winner is a gentleman and that's the basis we kept the discussion on. We made the decision on Monday and hoped we could get through the season, but all the speculation and adverse criticism changed my mind. We simply decided that a move had to be made now."

Winner, highly regarded as a defensive specialist throughout his coaching career, saw his club degenerate after a promising exhibition season in which the Jets defeated Minnesota, Washington and St. Louis, all playoff clubs last year. The Jet defense allowed the most points in the league—293—and its worst beating came last Sunday when Baltimore drubbed New York, 52-19.

"I didn't make the decision on a one game basis," Iselin said. "I haven't slept the last two nights, making this decision. It wasn't a snap judgment."

Winner, unlike many coaches who have been dismissed, appeared at the Jets' Hofstra University ttraining site Wednesday. He said he was more disappointed than bitter.

Ken Shipp
New Jets Coach

"I was honestly surprised, even under the circumstances of our season, because I had complete confidence in doing a job," said Winner, tears welling in his eyes. "I didn't have to come here. I didn't apply for the job. The Jets offered it to me, and I didn't jump at it until I was assured by the ownership that I was their choice.

"I came here under the belief that I would be allowed to build the club, not on a one-shot basis.

We started by not promising any championship, but just trying to approach the caliber of championship teams. I'm not bitter. I'm just disappointed. I think if we hadn't had so many injuries, then we would have shown progress."

Shipp, a 46-year-old native of Tennessee, who was in charge of the Jet offense, has been with the club since 1973. His main task has been working with quarterback Joe Namath and the receiving corps. The soft-spoken Shipp said accepting the job was difficult in light of his relationship with Winner.

"It really wasn't an easy thing. Charley and I have been friends for 10 years and it's not easy to take over for a friend," Shipp said. "He hired me for my first pro job in St. Louis. I never had any trouble or cross words in six years under him."

Shipp did not promise any drastic changes.

"I'll just do everything I can to turn things around," he explained. "I'll talk to every player individually before Sunday's game with St. Louis. I want to appeal to their pride."

Winner is the second NFL coach fired this season. John North was dismissed at New Orleans and replaced by Ernie Hefferle last month on an interim basis.

General manager Al Ward, whose job it is to find a replacement, said only he would seek the best possible man, whether he be a pro or a college coach.

"I'm looking for somebody with the ability to lead," Ward said. "I have a completely open mind. Kenny understands that this is purely on an interim basis. From a personnel standpoint, I don't think we need rebuilding. I don't know where Charley went wrong. There was just no movement.

"I will recommend either one or two final candidates to the board of directors. We have some people in mind, and their names are so obvious, I won't bother to mention them."

Among those who are expected to be contacted are Ara Parseghian, the former Notre Dame coach, Joe Paterno of Penn State, Ernie Stautner, an assistant under Ward at Dallas, and Monte Clark, a much sought after assistant to Don Shula at Miami.

Air Force Hosts NU

"Air Force always fields a very respectable wrestling squad," Husker coach Orval Borgialli said. "They're always among the top 10 or 20 top collegiate wrestling schools in the country."

Last weekend, at the Great Plaines Open which was held in Lincoln, Borgialli said he was generally pleased with the overall, Husker performance.

Pacing Nebraska at the Great Plaines were third place finishers Steve Hill (158) and Allan Koss (118), along with fourth place performers Pat Arthur (134), Tom Knobloch (158), Bob Johnson (190) and heavyweight Bruce Conger.

Nebraska's next action will be at Norman Nov. 28-29 when the Huskers compete in the Oklahoma Open.

118 — Allan Koss.
126 — Kirk Skiles.
134 — Pat Arthur
142 — Tony Jennings or Court Vining or Tim George.
150 — Joe Carr or Ken Christensen or Ted George or Kent Lang.
158 — Tom Knobloch.
167 — Mark Borer or Jim Calvert.
177 — Bill Hoffman.
190 — Bob Johnson.
Hwt. — Bruce Conger or Jim Tex.

Kearney State Gals Win Title

Kearney (UPI) — Kearney State won the Region VI volleyball Association of Intercollegiate Athletics title for women Wednesday, beating North Dakota State 15-5, 15-11.

Gustavus Adolphus, Minn., beat Graceland, Iowa, 14-16, 15-5, 12-10, to capture third place.

William Penn, Iowa, took fifth place with a 15-2, 15-3 win over Benedictine, Kan.

The 7th-place spot went to Emporia State, Kan., who beat Tarkio, Mo. 15-12, 15-8.

Men Caught Filming Secret Michigan Drill

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Two men were caught Wednesday night filming the University of Michigan football squad's secret practice session, police and university sources said.

Wolverine players reportedly spotted a telescopic lens trained on them from an apartment near a practice field as fourth-ranked Michigan prepared to do battle Saturday with No. 1 Ohio State.

Winter Storm Smacks Oklahoma

By The Associated Press

A winter storm system whipped across Oklahoma on Wednesday, dumping rain ahead of the fast-moving line, dropping snow behind and even striking out with a tornado at Oklahoma City.

No injuries were reported from the tornado, which hit at a motel and a vacant restaurant building in northeast Oklahoma City, but debris was scattered across the highway and power lines were down. The tornado was accompanied by blinding rain.

The heavy rain forced the Oklahoma Sooners indoors for practice as they tried to prepare for the regular season finale this Saturday against Nebraska.

"The big problem with having to practice indoors is that we can't work on our kicking and passing games as much as we would like," said coach Barry Switzer.

To the west, meanwhile, blowing snow packed roads north and west of Boise City in the Panhandle and all travel in those directions was discouraged as forecasters predicted more snow and temperatures in the 20s.

Travelers' advisories were issued for the Panhandle although by mid-afternoon no roads in Oklahoma were closed.

Snow started falling at Boise City about midnight and by 9 a.m. Wednesday had piked up two to three inches.

Although Oklahoma roads were open, all roads north of the Oklahoma border in southeast Colorado were closed because of blowing snow and drifts. State Highway 18 fom Clayton, N.M., north to Raton was closed and all roads in eastern New Mexico were snowpacked and hazardous, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported.

Roads in the Texas Panhandle were reported wet, but snowpacked highways were reported around Dalhart.

"It looked like a bunch of grass and leaves in the wind coming up the hill and I thought that was all there was to it," said desk clerk Ray Bloedau, 22.

"But then it knocked over the restaurant sign and took the big sheet glass window and was coming my way.

"The office is all glass, so I jumped under the counter and when I looked up the front of the restaurant was gone and it had knocked over a semi-trailer truck in the Big Town Truck Stop across the street."

When the tornado hit, manager Bill Hackett of the Country Kitchen, about a half-mile south of the Wilson House, said, "It got awful quiet, then started raining real hard and then the lights went out.

"There were about 30 customers in here and we went ahead and served with a flashlight. We didn't know there was a tornado."

"I was an eyewitness to this tornado and came within an eyelash of driving right into the middle of it," said Oklahoma Highway Patrol Chief Jerry Matheson.

Mizzou Players Pick NU

A survey of the players found 29 looking for a Cornhusker victory and 10 expecting Oklahoma to win, the university's sports information department said.

"Judging from who I faced — Dewey Selmon — Oklahoma's tougher and more physical than Nebraska," said offensive tackle Morris Towns, who lined up against the Sooners' All-Big Eight middle guard.

Sooners In 'Bowl' In 1903

Frank Boggs, sports editor of the Oklahoma City Times, included an ancedote about Oklahoma in his portion of the book, "The College Game," published by Bobbs-Merrill:

"In 1903, when every Oklahoma town wanted its own town football team, Lawton, Oklahoma, boasted a squad so strong that it challenged the University of Oklahoma to a postseason game.

"It was no idle talk. The town offered the university $300 to participate in what was surely one of the country's earliest bowl games. Before the Sooners could meet to decide whether to accept, the Lawton backers became impatient and wired that they'd be willing to pay $400.

"That clinched it. After an ambitious 11-game schedule that had taken the Sooners as far afield as neighboring Arkansas, they needed to strengthen their frail financial condition.

"Before the big game with Lawton (which OU won 27-5), an Oklahoma end, one Alex Clement, came down with a severe cold. His parents forbade him to make the trip and his brother offered him the staggering sum of $40 not to play, fearing that if he did, the cold might develop into pneumonia.

"But Alex Clement was not persuaded. He played, claiming that if he had to die, there was no finer way to go than playing football."

Football is still that way at Oklahoma and the fever is just as high in Nebraska. That's why Saturday's game figures to be another of the many classics in the rivalry between the two schools.

Game Of The Century

Boggs also describes the buildup and suspense leading up that famous game four years ago in Norman when 62,384 fans jammed Owen Field and an additional 55 million people watched on national television.

Unfortunately, Saturday's contest won't be televised. If you don't have a ticket, you'll have to wait for the replay next Tuesday evening on the Nebraska ETV Network to view the action. Coach Tom Osborne, of course, will have highlights on his Sunday night show on Channels 10 and 11.

In that 1971 battle, Oklahoma gained 467 yards in total offense and Nebraska gained 362. Both teams scored in every quarter. Oklahoma led twice, each time by three precarious points. There were 66 points scored, yet the game featured some stellar defense.

With 7:10 to play, Jack Mildren moved the Sooners to a 31-28 lead when he sizzled a 16-yard touchdown pass to Jon Harrison, at 150 pounds, the smallest figure on the field, using Boggs' description.

Sensing the Sooners' fourth national championship, the jubilant spectators allowed themselves to forget that time enough remained for Nebraska to score. The key was a third-down pass from quarterback Jerry Tagge to Johnny Rodgers, who had electrified everyone earlier in the afternoon by returning a punt 72 yards for the game's first touchdown. Rodgers' reception kept the Huskers crunching onward.

Finally, with the ball at the two-yard line and only a couple of minutes remaining, Jeff Kinney, who already had rushed for 169 yards, crashed through an all but undetectable hole and scored the decisive points in Nebraska's 35-31 win.

Home Edge For Sooners?

Nebraska has played Oklahoma 29 times in Norman and has posted a 12-16-1 record. Overall, the series is 23-28-3 in favor of the Sooners. All three ties have been played in Lincoln. A tie, incidentally, is all the Huskers need to win the Big Eight title and the Orange Bowl bid.

It hasn't yet been much fun for Nebraska playing in Norman since 1942. Up to that point, the Huskers had won nine games there. Since then, in 33 years there have been NU victories only in 1960, 1969, and 1971 at Owen Field.

For fans who want to reminesce, here's a game by game record of the series that began back in 1912. The asterisk indicates the game was played in Lincoln:

"I'm looking for somebody with the ability to lead," Ward said. "I have a completely open mind. Kenny understands that this is purely on an interim basis. From a personnel standpoint, I don't think we need rebuilding. I don't know where Charley went wrong. There was just no movement.

"I will recommend either one or two final candidates to the board of directors. We have some people in mind, and their names are so obvious, I won't bother to mention them."

Among those who are expected to be contacted are Ara Parseghian, the former Notre Dame coach, Joe Paterno of Penn State, Ernie Stautner, an assistant under Ward at Dallas, and Monte Clark, a much sought after assistant to Don Shula at Miami.

Winter Storm Smacks Oklahoma

By The Associated Press

A winter storm system whipped across Oklahoma on Wednesday, dumping rain ahead of the fast-moving line, dropping snow behind and even striking out with a tornado at Oklahoma City.

No injuries were reported from the tornado, which hit at a motel and a vacant restaurant building in northeast Oklahoma City, but debris was scattered across the highway and power lines were down. The tornado was accompanied by blinding rain.

The heavy rain forced the Oklahoma Sooners indoors for practice as they tried to prepare for the regular season finale this Saturday against Nebraska

"The big problem with having to practice indoors is that we can't work on our kicking and passing games as much as we would like," said coach Barry Switzer.

The drills were spent instead on adding polish to offensive plays and working against Nebraska's defense.

"It hurts the timing of the plays because you slip and slide on a gym floor. But today wasn't a total loss, it did help our mental preparation."

To the west, meanwhile, blowing snow packed roads north and west of Boise City in the Panhandle and all travel in those directions was discouraged as forecasters predicted more snow and temperatures in the 20s.

Travelers' advisories were issued for the Panhandle although by mid-afternoon no roads in Oklahoma were closed.

After the tornado hit in Oklahoma City, a tornado watch was issued for much of Oklahoma, to remain in effect until 7 p.m.

Snow started falling at Boise City about midnight and by 9 a.m. Wednesday had piled up two to three inches.

Although Oklahoma roads were open, all roads north of the Oklahoma border in southeast Colorado were closed because of blowing snow and drifts State Highway 18 fom Clayton, N.M., north to Raton was closed and all roads in eastern New Mexico were snowpacked and hazardous, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol reported.

Roads in the Texas Panhandle were reported wet, but snowpacked highways were reported around Dalhart.

"It looked like a bunch of grass and leaves in the wind coming up the hill and I thought that was all there was to it," said desk clerk Ray Bloedau, 22.

"But then it knocked over the restaurant sign and took the big sheet glass window and was coming my way.

"The office is all glass, so I jumped under the counter and when I looked up the front of the restaurant was gone and it had knocked over a semi-trailer truck in the Big Town Truck Stop across the street."

The tornado was tracked by Oklahoma City police on a straight northeasterly line out of the city until it disappeared.

About an hour later, radar confirmed a tornado in the southeast part of Oklahoma County near the community of Jones.

When the tornado hit, manager Bill Hackett of the Country Kitchen, about a half-mile south of the Wilson House, said, "It got awful quiet, then started raining real hard and then the lights went out.

"There were about 30 customers in here and we went ahead and served with a flashlight. We didn't know there was a tornado."

"I was an eyewitness to this tornado and came within an eyelash of driving right into the middle of it," said Oklahoma Highway Patrol Chief Jerry Matheson.

Air Force Hosts NU

"Air Force always fields a very respectable wrestling squad," Husker coach Orval Borgialli said. "They're always among the top 10 or 20 top collegiate wrestling schools in the country."

Last weekend, at the Great Plaines Open which was held in Lincoln, Borgialli said he was generally pleased with the overall, Husker performance.

Pacing Nebraska at the Great Plaines were third place finishers Steve Hill (158) and Allan Koss (118), along with fourth place performers Pat Arthur (134), Tom Knobloch (158), Bob Johnson (190) and heavyweight Bruce Conger.

Nebraska's next action will be at Norman Nov. 28-29 when the Huskers compete in the Oklahoma Open.

Probable NU Performers:

118 — Allan Koss.
126 — Kirk Skiles.
134 — Pat Arthur
142 — Tony Jennings or Court Vining or Tim George.
150 — Joe Carr or Ken Christensen or Ted George or Kent Lang.
158 — Tom Knobloch.
167 — Mark Borer or Jim Calvert.
177 — Bill Hoffman.
190 — Bob Johnson.
Hwt. — Bruce Conger or Jim Tex.

Kearney State Gals Win Title

Kearney (UPI) — Kearney State won the Region VI volleyball Association of Intercollegiate Athletics title for women Wednesday, beating North Dakota State 15-5, 15-11.

The Loperettes qualified for the AIAW national championships at Idaho State Dec. 10-13.

Gustavus Adolphus, Minn., beat Graceland, Iowa, 14-16, 15-5, 12-10, to capture third place.

William Penn, Iowa, took fifth place with a 15-2, 15-3 win over Benedictune, Kan.

The 7th-place spot went to Emporia State, Kan., who beat Tarkio, Mo. 15-12, 15-8.

Men Caught Filming Secret Michigan Drill

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Two men were caught Wednesday night filming the University of Michigan football squad's secret practice session, police and university sources said.

Wolverine players reportedly spotted a telescopic lens trained on them from an apartment near a practice field as fourth-ranked Michigan prepared to do battle Saturday with No. 1 Ohio State.

Mizzou Players Pick NU

A survey of the players found 29 looking for a Cornhusker victory and 10 expecting Oklahoma to win, the university's sports information department said.

"Defenses being equal, I'll go with Nebraska. They can play catch-up offense," said Steve Pisarkiewicz, the Missouri quarterback.

"Judging from who I faced — Dewey Selmon — Oklahoma's tougher and more physical than Nebraska," said offensive tackle Morris Towns, who lined up against the Sooners' All-Big Eight middle guard.

Many Missouri players said they expected a close game and some hedged on the outcome.

A Sports Roundup

FOOTBALL

Former Tennessee All-American Johnny Majors has been largely responsible for the turn-around of the Pitt football program, and last week's Pitt 34-20 win over Notre Dame earned Majors the United Press Internation Coach of the Week award.

The win over Notre Dame also brought an honor to Pitt running back Tony Dorsett, who was named The Associated Press Back of the Week. Dorsett rushed for 303 yards, averaging 13 yards per carry.

Theopolis Bell of Arizona and Ronnie Moore of VMI are on en route to eclipsing Johnny Rodgers' all-purpose career running record. At Nebraska, Rodgers had a 13.8 yard average. Bell has a 15.8 average on 4,781 yards and Moore has a 14.6 average.

Kansas attorney general Curt Schneider said the state will prosecute informal gambling pools on football games if it can find members of the public who will file complaints and testify.

West Virginia, headed for the Peach Bowl, is having troubles getting players for this week's regular season finale. Leading pass receiver Randy Swinson was suspended for disciplinary reasons and will miss the game and 11 players including seven starters have been stricken with flu and didn't practice.

Navy officials, citing academic conflicts as a major reason, have withdrawn the academy's name from consideration as an opponent for Miami of Ohio in the Tangerine Bowl classic Dec. 20. The holiday for Midshipmen starts Dec. 18 and rules regarding removal of athletes from classes are more stringent than at most universities.

Three pitt football players surrendered to police on charges of allegedly beating up a young cuople following Saturday's win over Notre Dame. Pitt coach Johnny Majors said he won't make a snap judgment in the case of the players.

Dick Logan, whose performance as head football coach at the University of San Diego was under administrative review, has resigned.

The University of Kentucky is investigating possible violations of NCAA and school regulations, stemming from a murder and kidnaping case in which a former UK football player and former team manager have been charged.

Texas quarterback Marty Akins spent some time in rehabilitation exercises on his injured knee and said he thinks he will be ready to play in the Longhorns' Nov. 28 Southwest Conference showdown against No. 3 Texas A&M.

NFL owners agreed on the selection of talent for the two franchise teams in the coming draft. Each team may protect 30 active and two inactive players. The two new franchises, Tampa Bay and Seattle, will get the first two picks in all rounds of this winter's collegiate draft and additional picks in some early rounds. Each existing team is subject to the loss of three players in the dispersal draft. Each time one of its players is selected, a team may protect one additional player.

OTHER SPORTS

The National Hockey League is planning to stiffen penalties to stop bench-clearing brawls, says league President Clarence Campbell. The proposed rule will give a player a one-game suspension the first time he is caught leading a charge from the bench. A second violation will land a two-game suspension.

In addition, NHL teams will be fined $1,000 the first time one of its players leads a charge from the bench. The second time, the fine increases to $3,000 and the third and any subsequent infractions will cost $5,000.

The Denver Spurs of the WHA will stay in Colorado for a while, but just how long depends on attendance.

U.S. Open winner Manuel Orantes, Vijay Amritraj and Alex Mayer were among victors in the $50,000 Grand Prix Lawn Tennis Championships of India.

John Wooten, a financial adviser to professional athletes, has obtained a statement from Denver Broncos' running back Otis Armstrong withdrawing charges of wrongdoing in the handling of Armstrong's investments.

Bill Musselman, the last coach of the ABA's defunct San Diego Sails, was named coach of the ABA's Virginia Squires. Musselman succeeds Al Bianchi, who was fired two weeks ago. Player Mack Calvin had been serving as interim coach. Musselman is a former University of Minnesota coach.

Owner Paul Snyder, at odds with the City of Buffalo over rental of Memorial Auditorium, said he had no plans to move his Buffalo Braves to Toronto or elsewhere.

Injuries Bothering Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The emotional factor has been widely discussed but physical problems may be of more concern to Michigan Saturday when the Wolverines take on Ohio State for the Big Ten title.

Michigan refused to divulge pre-game injuries to both Rob Lytle and Jim Smith prior to last year's contest, which Ohio State won 12-10, and it is possible the Wolverines may be doing the same thing again this year.

"The guys who played against Illinois will play against Ohio State," was the only comment Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler would make Wednesday. The statement alone leaves room for doubt.

Schembechler held out offensive tackle Mike Kenn from the Illinois game and it is not known whether he will start Saturday. The Michigan coach said Kenn could have seen action against Illinois had he been needed but since he never appeared it is questionable whether his thigh has completely healed.

Several other key performers have been hobbled with recurrent injuries. Defensive tackle Jeff Perlinger reinjured his right ankle against Illinois and though he returned to the game he may not be at full speed for the Buckeyes.

Minor League Football Planned

Newton, Iowa (AP) — The plans for formation of a professional minor league football league comprised of five Iowa and Nebraska teams were made here over the weekend.

James Foster of Newton says interested parties met here Saturday night and agreed to proceed with the plans.

He said the league will be part of the Chicagoland Pro Football League or a separate league.

Representatives attending the meeting were from Dubuque, Mason City, Cedar Rapids, Newton and Omaha, Neb.

Foster said the Quad-Cities Mohawks, a member of the Chicagoland League, also will be involved.

Foster, 25, director of the Newton Nite Hawks of the Chicagoland League, said the league will follow rules of the Chicagoland League, which provide players with equipment, expenses and insurance, but no salaries.

OKLAHOMA CITY — You may call it conservative. You may even say it's percentage. But to some, it is not any kind of football, the way Missouri and Colorado lost to Oklahoma this season.

Al Onofrio of Missouri and Bill Mallory of Colorado passed the buck from their best players and laid it at the feet of kickers Tom Mackenzie and Tim Gibbons.

—Mallory rejected victory in the final quarter. Down 21-20, he vetoed running the two-point conversion. Mackenzie's extrapoint kick was wide. Oklahoma won.

—Onofrio played for last-minute victory. But he gave up on an offense that had punched holes in Oklahoma's defense the second half. It was play-safe. On a third and 12 at the Oklahoma 22, the Tigers ran off tackle. Two-yard loss. It was OK. Gibbons was a sure-thing with his field goal. He wasn't even close from 40 yards and Oklahoma won 28-27.

The strategies seem assailable. Kickers are more accessories than anything. Last resorts. Many are not true athletes. The pressures of college football come hard.

Tony DiRienzo, the Oklahoma kicker, looked on intently as both Mackenzie and Gibbons missed.

"I feel sorry for Gibbons," he says. "I don't feel it's fair to put all the pressure of losing on him. I felt worse for Mackenzie, though, because it was just an extra point. It's almost a sure one point. I don't think it's fair for a game to be lost by a field goal or extra point."

DiRienzo has been there. Once. His pressure kick was an exhilarating experience, though. But it was almost terrifying, the moments before his 37-yarder beat Texas last year in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Steve Davis, his body beginning to feel the dull ache of a tough game, knelt down to take the center snap, and looked up at his little Brazilian kicker. What Davis saw caused him to hesitate. DiRienzo's eyes were flooded with water.

"Tony, I hope you can see," Davis said. "Are you all right?"

"Yes," replied DiRienzo, "let's get it over with. Please."

Once more Davis asked DiRienzo. It was OK. The center snap came back and DiRienzo's kick made it 16-13 Oklahoma. "I tried to concentrate so much, I was all tied up," DiRienzo said.

DiRienzo prefers long kicks, "55 yards and over," to short ones. "You're not expected to make the long ones.

"I hope I can save the best for last," he says. "I'm worried about Nebraska. I really am.

"If it does come down to a field goal, I hope it's a long one. I hope it's 60 yards." Visions of Mackenzie and Gibbons do not fade quickly.

BIG 8 REPORT

Oklahoma State

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)— Oklahoma State shortened its rain-soaked practice Wednesday, but will make up the time Thursday as the Cowboys prepare for their season finale Saturday against Iowa State.

"I wanted to make sure we didn't have a bunch of guys come down with colds," coach Jim Stanley said. "We can accomplish what we want with a longer practice Thursday and we'll workout in sweats Friday at Ames."

Stanley admitted, however, "The wet practice was good for us. There's no telling what the weather might be like in Ames at this time of the year."

Although the Cowboys cut 30 minutes off their practice time, Stanley said his team "had a normal Wednesday workout. We went over our blocking assignments and had a lot of play recognition."

Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State's football team held a 90-minute workout in a steady drizzle Wednesday and Coach Ellis Rainsberger was thankful for the rain.

"A change of any kind this time of year is good," said Rainsberger. "The rain made it kind of fun. In fact, I hope it's still snowing in Boulder when we get there."

"Our defense has played well all year with the exception of a couple of games," Rainsberger said. "I just hope we can finish up strong. The Buffs are a complete football team."

Rainsberger also noted that Colorado has played good defense and made few mistakes since losing to Nebraska 63-21 three weeks ago.

Missouri

Columbia, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri coach Al Onofrio said Wednesday fullback John Blakeman is recovering from a leg injury and there is a chance he will play against Kansas at Lawrence Saturday.

Onofrio said the Jayhawks have "good athletes. Kansas started out slow at the first of the season, but they have come out fast since."

Kansas

LAWRENCE,Kan. (AP) — For only the second time this year, rainy weather forced the Kansas football team to practice inside Allen Fieldhouse Wednesday.

Coach Bud Moore said, "I didn't want to go outside in the rain because of the people we have sick with the flu. It would have set us back more than missing the practice if we were to have gotten any more of them more sick."

Moore also said the practice session was altered by not having any contact drills, and just getting assignments more polished.

Iowa State

Most of the players were able to take part in the entire drill despite continuation of final fall quarter exam week.

"We've had no problems with finals," Bruce said. "We practice earlier in the day and our players have more time to study. We're used to taking tests and getting ready for Oklahoma State each year."

Bruce said fullback Mike Williams, sidelined for a week with a bruised thigh "looked better than he's ever looked" in the Wednesday workout.

Plattsmouth Waterfowl Area Liked

Hunters have been pleased to note the 110,000 geese on Plattsmouth Waterfowl Management Area lately.

But, the birds have also provided a lot of recreation to visitors who want to simply view or photograph an impressive wildlife spectacle.

In fact, a lot more visitors have been enjoying the geese at Plattsmouth lately than have the hunters who pay the costs of running the area.

Last Sunday, some 700 persons toured the Plattsmouth facility, which also provides blinds for about 50 hunters per day.

The Plattsmouth area offers tours to the public on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons beginning at 3 p.m.

The management area headquarters is located north of Plattsmouth, and can be easily reached by following signs from the east end of the Plattsmouth main street.

Tony DiRienzo, the Oklahoma kicker, looked on intently as both Mackenzie and Gibbons missed.

"I feel sorry for Gibbons," he says. "I don't feel it's fair to put all the pressure of losing on him. I felt worse for Mackenzie, though, because it was just an extra point. It's almost a sure one point. I don't think it's fair for a game to be lost by a field goal or extra point."

DiRienzo has been there. Once. His pressure kick was an exhilarating experience, though. But it was almost terrifying, the moments before his 37-yarder beat Texas last year in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Steve Davis, his body beginning to feel the dull ache of a tough game, knelt down to take the center snap, and looked up at his little Brazilian kicker. What Davis saw caused him to hesitate. DiRienzo's eyes were flooded with water.

"Tony, I hope you can see," Davis said. "Are you all right?"

"Yes," replied DiRienzo, "let's get it over with. Please."

Once more Davis asked DiRienzo. It was OK. The center snap came back and DiRienzo's kick made it 16-13 Oklahoma. "I tried to concentrate so much, I was all tied up," DiRienzo said.

DiRienzo prefers long kicks, "55 yards and over," to short ones. "You're not expected to make the long ones.

"I hope I can save the best for last," he says. "I'm worried about Nebraska. I really am.

"If it does come down to a field goal, I hope it's a long one. I hope it's 60 yards." Visions of Mackenzie and Gibbons do not fade quickly.

BIG 8 REPORT

Oklahoma State

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)— Oklahoma State shortened its rain-soaked practice Wednesday, but will make up the time Thursday as the Cowboys prepare for their season finale Saturday against Iowa State.

"I wanted to make sure we didn't have a bunch of guys come down with colds," coach Jim Stanley said. "We can accomplish what we want with a longer practice Thursday and we'll workout in sweats Friday at Ames."

Stanley admitted, however, "The wet practice was good for us. There's no telling what the weather might be like in Ames at this time of the year."

Although the Cowboys cut 30 minutes off their practice time, Stanley said his team "had a normal Wednesday workout. We went over our blocking assignments and had a lot of play recognition."

Kansas State

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State's football team held a 90-minute workout in a steady drizzle Wednesday and Coach Ellis Rainsberger was thankful for the rain.

"A change of any kind this time of year is good," said Rainsberger. "The rain made it kind of fun. In fact, I hope it's still snowing in Boulder when we get there."

Rainsberger said he hopes the Wildcats' defense can make one last stand against the Buffs.

"Our defense has played well all year with the exception of a couple of games," Rainsberger said. "I just hope we can finish up strong. The Buffs are a complete football team."

Rainsberger also noted that Colorado has played good defense and made few mistakes since losing to Nebraska 63-21 three weeks ago.

Missouri

Columbia, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri coach Al Onofrio said Wednesday fullback John Blakeman is recovering from a leg injury and there is a chance he will play against Kansas at Lawrence Saturday.

Onofrio said the Jayhawks have "good athletes. Kansas started out slow at the first of the season, but they have come out fast since."

Kansas

LAWRENCE,Kan. (AP) — For only the second time this year, rainy weather forced the Kansas football team to practice inside Allen Fieldhouse Wednesday.

Coach Bud Moore said, "I didn't want to go outside in the rain because of the people we have sick with the flu. It would have set us back more than missing the practice if we were to have gotten any more of them more sick."

Moore also said the practice session was altered by not having any contact drills, and just getting assignments more polished.

Iowa State

Most of the players were able to take part in the entire drill despite continuation of final fall quarter exam week.

"We've had no problems with finals," Bruce said. "We practice earlier in the day and our players have more time to study. We're used to taking tests and getting ready for Oklahoma State each year."

Bruce said fullback Mike Williams, sidelined for a week with a bruised thigh "looked better than he's ever looked" in the Wednesday workout.

Plattsmouth Waterfowl Area Liked

Hunters have been pleased to note the 110,000 geese on Plattsmouth Waterfowl Management Area lately.

But, the birds have also provided a lot of recreation to visitors who want to simply view or photograph an impressive wildlife spectacle.

In fact, a lot more visitors have been enjoying the geese at Plattsmouth lately than have the hunters who pay the costs of running the area.

Last Sunday, some 700 persons toured the Plattsmouth facility, which also provides blinds for about 50 hunters per day.

The Plattsmouth area offers tours to the public on Wednesday and Sunday afternoons beginning at 3 p.m.

The management area headquarters is located north of Plattsmouth, and can be easily reached by following signs from the east end of the Plattsmouth main street.

Shelton Wins

Hunter Safety

Jan. 1, 1976, is more than just bowl day for football fans in Nebraska. It's also the day the state's hunter safety law goes into effect.

On that date and forever more, youngsters from ages 12 through 15 will be required to have undergone and passed a certified young hunter safety course sponsored by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

According to state coordinator Dick Turpin, there are 2,117 certified instructors statewide. Numerous schools and sporting clubs offer instruction, as well as conservation officers, district commission offices and interested individuals.

"Schools are going good right now," Turpin said. He added five junior highs in the Lincoln system are active in young hunter safety instruction with certified instructors teaching programs.

"We've had 18,355 students go through our course to date," Turpin added. "But we figure we'll have somewhere around 15,000 more from this fall to next. We are also figuring there will be a big rush just before hunting season next year when dads learn their boys can't hunt without certification."

Once the big rush is over, Turpin figures the annual turnover of youngsters requiring instruction will be somewhere around 8,000.

Groups Involved

Turpin was also enthused by participation of groups in instructing youngsters. The Lincoln Ikes with Carroll Donaghue, Scott Blair and Wayne Schrader, gets a favorable rating.

Turpin also says the Lancaster County sheriff's office and the V.F.W. Auxiliary are teaming up to initiate a continuous program. Dennis Kumm is in charge at the sheriff's office for interested callers.

Joe Ridgeway and his wife have initiated a course of study leaning toward getting women involved. They recently held a session for housewives.

Others deserving mention, according to Turpin, are conservation officers statewide as the leaders in instruction, the National Guard, teachers and young adults such as the University of Nebraska Wildlife Club which certified a number of instructors with hopes of making young hunter safety instruction a year's project.

"We've had two years to get a good headstart at this deadline," Turpin said. "But we still couldn't do away with the rush we're going to get next fall. It would sure help us if kids would sign up for courses now instead of waiting until the last minute."

Turpin said the best bet for the youngsters is to ask first at their respective schools if instructors or courses are available. If not, then call the Game and Parks Commission office in their district or a local conservation officer.

For Lincoln youngsters, call Game and Parks headquarters and ask for Information and Education. The head secretary will be able to tell you of a class or put you on a list for the next one regularly scheduled.

Wayne, Midland Leaders

Kearney (UPI) — Midland College finished first in team offense and Wayne State was No. 1 on defense in the final District 11 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics football statistics for the 1975 season.

Midland, which finished the season with a 9-2 record, averaged 367 yards on offense per game and scored 341 total points to outdistance Kearney State, which averaged 342 yards on offense in nine games, and Doane, which scored 201 points in 11 games this season.

Husker Defense Tops Big 8

Kansas City, Mo. — There is one big reason why the Big Eight Conference dominates the collegiate football scene — DEFENSE!

And there is not a better example to be found than the Nebraska Cornhuskers, who sport a 10-0 record and hold the top position in the Big Eight standings heading into the last week of regular-season action.

Coach Tom Osborne's crew is ranked No. 1 in all four major defensive categories — pass defense (93.2-yards-per-game allowance), rushing defense (123.7), scoring defense (8.5-points-per-game leniency), and total defense (giving up just 216.9 yards per game).

Oklahoma holds the runner-up spot in rushing defense (154.7 yards per tilt) and total defense (262.0), while Missouri is in the second position in pass defense (95.6-yard allowance) and Kansas the runner-up in scoring defense (12.3 points per contest).

The Lincoln version of the Big Red is the best total-offense team, averaging 422.1 yards per battle, and the most effective scoring unit, with a 34.3-points-per-game clip.

The Sooners are in their familiar number-one position in rushing offense, with a 311.7-yard average per game. Kansas ranks second, with a 293.2-yard average.

Oklahoma State is the most threatening punt-return team, averaging 9.8 yards per runback, while Nebraska is the best in kickoff returns, with a 23.3-yard average.

Duo Seek Records

Mission, Kan. (UPI) — Ohio State's Archie Griffin and Toledo's Gene Swick will seek a pair of the most sought-after NCAA career records Saturday — and Swick appears to have the best chance to gain his goal.

Griffin will be trying to break Howard Stevens' collegiate career record 5,297 yards rushing. Swick is attempting to surpass Jim Plunkett's major-college record 7,887 yards total offense.

Swick, whose team will be facing Kent State, needs 148 yards to break the record set by Stanford's Plunkett in 1968-70. Griffin, facing a powerful Michigan team, needs 167 yards to surpass the mark established by Stevens at Louisville in 1971-72 and Randolph-Macon in 1968-69.

Swick can break the record by going 89 yards under his season average, while Griffin must go 36 yards over his season average. And, obviously, Griffin is facing much stronger opposition.

Southern Cal's Ricky Bell, the national rushing leader, must wait a couple of weeks to find out if he can break Ed Marinaro's major-college single-season rushing record of 1,881 yards. Bell needs 143 rushing yards against UCLA to surpass the 1971 total by the Cornell back.

Shooting At Warden Probed

Shots fired at a Nebraska Game and Parks Commission conservation officer and at a pair of hunters are currently being investigated by Saunders County authorities, it was learned Tuesday.

According to authorities, a shot was fired at conservation officer Ken Adkisson Saturday night while the officer tracked illegal spotlight hunters after legal shooting hours.

The officer was part of a three-man check team, searching out illegal use of spotlights in the Prague-Linwood area. Commission pilot Andy Nielsen made two sightings from his surveillance plane while officers Les Johnson and Adkisson tracked down the hunters on the ground.

According to Carl Gettmann, Adkisson's supervisor, the officer pulled into the Staska farmstead with red lights flashing, following the vehicle he had allegedly witnessed spotlighting.

Gettmann said Adkisson talked to the man who then suddenly ducked down. When the man reappeared, he allegedly had a .38 caliber pistol which he then fired at Adkisson.

Neither the officer or his car were hit but Adkisson was forced to retreat on foot as his car failed to start.

On Nov. 8, two hunters, Merle R. Rise and Bill Dvorak of Fremont, pulled into the Staska farmyard to ask permission to hunt. According to Rise, a man came out of the farmhouse yelling and carrying a rifle.

Rise said the man pointed the rifle at the van. Rise started to back the van out of the drive when the man allegedly fired the rifle, severing ignition wires in the van and stalling it out. Rise and Dvorak also were forced to retreat on foot after the man went back into the house threatening to call the sheriff.

Patriots Drop KSU's Herron

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Mack Herron, the tiny running back who set an NFL single season total offense record last year, was placed on waivers by the New England Patriots Wednesday.

"I was not satisfied with his contribution to the team," Coach Chuck Fairbanks said of Herron in a statement released through the Patriots' office here.

Fairbanks told Herron twice previously this season that he was not pleased with the the former Kansas State star's output, team spokesman Pat Horn said.

HANDI-FOOTBALL RATINGS

HOW TO USE THE RATINGS . . .

ILLUSTRATION: Air Force versus Yale

If the Air Force were to meet Yale on a neutral field, Air Force's Handi-Rating of 21 would hold a 14-point advantage over Yale's 35 rating.

If the game were played AT AIR FORCE, allow Air Force 3 points for playing at home. AIR FORCE would become a 17-point favorite.

If the game were played AT YALE, allow Yale 3 points for playing at home. This would make AIR FORCE an 11-point favorite.

All teams are measured from the TOP RATING of zero.

ALLOW THREE POINTS FOR HOME FIELD ADVANTAGE.

It's All Outdoors

Hunter Safety

Jan. 1, 1976, is more than just bowl day for football fans in Nebraska. It's also the day the state's hunter safety law goes into effect.

On that date and forever more, youngsters from ages 12 through 15 will be required to have undergone and passed a certified young hunter safety course sponsored by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

According to state coordinator Dick Turpin, there are 2,117 certified instructors statewide. Numerous schools and sporting clubs offer instruction, as well as conservation officers, district commission offices and interested individuals.

"Schools are going good right now," Turpin said. He added five junior highs in the Lincoln system are active in young hunter safety instruction with certified instructors teaching programs.

"We've had 18,355 students go through our course to date," Turpin added. "But we figure we'll have somewhere around 15,000 more from this fall to next. We are also figuring there will be a big rush just before hunting season next year when dads learn their boys can't hunt without certification."

Once the big rush is over, Turpin figures the annual turnover of youngsters requiring instruction will be somewhere around 8,000.

Groups Involved

Turpin was also enthused by participation of groups in instructing youngsters. The Lincoln Ikes with Carroll Donaghue, Scott Blair and Wayne Schrader, gets a favorable rating.

Turpin also says the Lancaster County sheriff's office and the V.F.W. Auxiliary are teaming up to initiate a continuous program. Dennis Kumm is in charge at the sheriff's office for interested callers.

Joe Ridgeway and his wife have initiated a course of study leaning toward getting women involved. They recently held a session for housewives.

Others deserving mention, according to Turpin, are conservation officers statewide as the leaders in instruction, the National Guard, teachers and young adults such as the University of Nebraska Wildlife Club which certified a number of instructors with hopes of making young hunter safety instruction a year's project.

"We've had two years to get a good headstart at this deadline," Turpin said. "But we still couldn't do away with the rush we're going to get next fall. It would sure help us if kids would sign up for courses now instead of waiting until the last minute."

Turpin said the best bet for the youngsters is to ask first at their respective schools if instructors or courses are available. If not, then call the Game and Parks Commission office in their district or a local conservation officer.

For Lincoln youngsters, call Game and Parks headquarters and ask for Information and Education. The head secretary will be able to tell you of a class or put you on a list for the next one regularly scheduled.

Wayne, Midland Leaders

Kearney (UPI) — Midland College finished first in team offense and Wayne State was No. 1 on defense in the final District 11 National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics football statistics for the 1975 season.

Midland, which finished the season with a 9-2 record, averaged 367 yards on offense per game and scored 341 total points to outdistance Kearney State, which averaged 342 yards on offense in nine games, and Doane, which scored 201 points in 11 games this season.

Husker Defense Tops Big 8

Kansas City, Mo. — There is one big reason why the Big Eight Conference dominates the collegiate football scene — DEFENSE!

And there is not a better example to be found than the Nebraska Cornhuskers, who sport a 10-0 record and hold the top position in the Big Eight standings heading into the last week of regular-season action.

Coach Tom Osborne's crew is ranked No. 1 in all four major defensive categories — pass defense (93.2-yards-per-game allowance), rushing defense (123.7), scoring defense (8.5-points-per-game leniency), and total defense (giving up just 216.9 yards per game).

Oklahoma holds the runner-up spot in rushing defense (154.7 yards per tilt) and total defense (262.0), while Missouri is in the second position in pass defense (95.6-yard allowance) and Kansas the runner-up in scoring defense (12.3 points per contest).

The mighty 'Huskers haven't exactly been impotent on offense, either, holding the lead in two of the major departments on that side of the ball.

The Lincoln version of the Big Red is the best total-offense team, averaging 422.1 yards per battle, and the most effective scoring unit, with a 34.3-points-per-game clip.

The Sooners are in their familiar number-one position in rushing offense. with a 311.7-yard average per game. Kansas ranks second, with a 293.2-yard average.

It's all Missouri on the passing charts, with the Tigers moving along at a 182.2-yards-per-game rate. Nebraska is next, with a 156.7-yard average.

Oklahoma State is the most threatening punt-return team, averaging 9.8 yards per runback, while Nebraska is the best in kickoff returns, with a 23.3-yard average.

Duo Seek Records

Mission, Kan. (UPI) — Ohio State's Archie Griffin and Toledo's Gene Swick will seek a pair of the most sought-after NCAA career records Saturday — and Swick appears to have the best chance to gain his goal.

Griffin will be trying to break Howard Stevens' collegiate career record 5,297 yards rushing. Swick is attempting to surpass Jim Plunkett's major-college record 7,887 yards total offense.

Swick, whose team will be facing Kent State, needs 148 yards to break the record set by Stanford's Plunkett in 1968-70. Griffin, facing a powerful Michigan team, needs 167 yards to surpass the mark established by Stevens at Louisville in 1971-72 and Randolph-Macon in 1968-69.

Swick can break the record by going 89 yards under his season average, while Griffin must go 36 yards over his season average. And, obviously, Griffin is facing much stronger opposition.

Southern Cal's Ricky Bell, the national rushing leader, must wait a couple of weeks to find out if he can break Ed Marinaro's major-college single-season rushing record of 1,881 yards. Bell needs 143 rushing yards against UCLA to surpass the 1971 total by the Cornell back.

Shooting At Warden Probed

Shots fired at a Nebraska Game and Parks Commission conservation officer and at a pair of hunters are currently being investigated by Saunders County authorities, it was learned Tuesday.

According to authorities, a shot was fired at conservation officer Ken Adkisson Saturday night while the officer tracked illegal spotlight hunters after legal shooting hours.

The officer was part of a three-man check team, searching out illegal use of spotlights in the Prague-Linwood area. Commission pilot Andy Nielsen made two sightings from his surveillance plane while officers Les Johnson and Adkisson tracked down the hunters on the ground.

According to Carl Gettmann, Adkisson's supervisor, the officer pulled into the Staska farmstead with red lights flashing, following the vehicle he had allegedly witnessed spotlighting.

Gettmann said Adkisson talked to the man who then suddenly ducked down. When the man reappeared, he allegedly had a .38 caliber pistol which he then fired at Adkisson.

Neither the officer or his car were hit but Adkisson was forced to retreat on foot as his car failed to start.

On Nov. 8, two hunters, Merle R. Rise and Bill Dvorak of Fremont, pulled into the Staska farmyard to ask permission to hunt. According to Rise, a man came out of the farmhouse yelling and carrying a rifle.

Rise said the man pointed the rifle at the van. Rise started to back the van out of the drive when the man allegedly fired the rifle, severing ignition wires in the van and stalling it out. Rise and Dvorak also were forced to retreat on foot after the man went back into the house threatening to call the sheriff.

Patriots Drop KSU's Herron

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Mack Herron, the tiny running back who set an NFL single season total offense record last year, was placed on waivers by the New England Patriots Wednesday.

"I was not satisfied with his contribution to the team," Coach Chuck Fairbanks said of Herron in a statement released through the Patriots' office here.

Fairbanks told Herron twice previously this season that he was not pleased with the the former Kansas State star's output, team spokesman Pat Horn said.

HANDI-FOOTBALL RATINGS

HOW TO USE THE RATINGS . . .

ILLUSTRATION: Air Force versus Yale

If the Air Force were to meet Yale on a neutral field, Air Force's Handi-Rating of 21 would hold a 14-point advantage over Yale's 35 rating.

If the game were played AT AIR FORCE, allow Air Force 3 points for playing at home. AIR FORCE would become a 17-point favorite.

If the game were played AT YALE, allow Yale 3 points for playing at home. This would make AIR FORCE an 11-point favorite.

All teams are measured from the TOP RATING of zero.

ALLOW THREE POINTS FOR HOME FIELD ADVANTAGE.

Water Rates Boosted

Omaha (AP) — The Metropolitan Utilities District Board of Directors Wednesday voted to up water rates in the Omaha area.

The average increase will be 20.7%. The new rates will go into effect Jan. 1.

Commercial and small industrial users will see their rates go up an average of 22.7%, while the rates for large industrial users will be hiked an average of 19.7%, and wholesale customers will face an average 25% hike.

While approving the rate increases, the board also voted to change the way residential customers are billed. Instead of a declining block rate, which has been traditional, residential customers will be billed on a flat rate. This means that instead of paying a lower rate for water use in excess of the average, residential customers will be paying a flat rate for all water used.

Water Rates Boosted

Omaha (AP) — The Metropolitan Utilities District Board of Directors Wednesday voted to up water rates in the Omaha area.

The average increase will be 20.7%. The new rates will go into effect Jan. 1.

For residential customers, rates will rise an average of 19.7%, or about $11 annually.

Commercial and small industrial users will see their rates go up an average of 22.7%, while the rates for large industrial users will be hiked an average of 19.7%, and wholesale customers will face an average 25% hike.

While approving the rate increases, the board also voted to change the way residential customers are billed. Instead of a declining block rate, which has been traditional, residential customers will be billed on a flat rate. This means that instead of paying a lower rate for water use in excess of the average, residential customers will be paying a flat rate for all water used.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Thursday

Gemini loves to "play tricks." Here are the lively people, those who are active, curious, restless and charming. Gemini takes short cuts, flirts with the rules, bypasses red tape, arouses envy — and admiration. Gemini can make money with Cancer, love to Libra and travels with Aquarius. If Gemini fears any person, it is likely to be Taurus.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Message, which may have gone astray, is retrieved — or duplicated. You have chance to rid yourself of unnecessary burden. Do it — and with a clear conscience. Finish rather than initiate project. Relative confides problem — and it is likely to be in area of illusion or delusion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): One who makes promises concerning money may be embarrassed. Know it and plan accordingly. You'll have to make your own contacts, opportunities. Cash flow of proposed partner or associate dries up — depend upon yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Taurus message; take initiative. One close to you may be seeing through light of wishful thionking. Know it and double check. Be positive of source material. You learn by sharing knowledge. Someone of importance does want you to succeed. You'll see!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Light touch now does better for you than any heavy-handed method or procedure. Accept social invitation. People you meet now could play significant roles in your life. Gemini, Sagittarius might be featured.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Friend may be sincere but misinformed. Check details — don't delegate too many duties. Accent on desires, how to fulfill them. You will receive recognition from professional associate, superior. Be gracious, diplomatic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obtain valid hint from Leo message. You will be given opportunity to prove a major contention. Confide in one who backed you in past. Get thoughts, ideas on paper. Be analytical. Take nothing for granted. A bit of extra investigation could unravel puzzle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): One who has performed special services may announce travel plans. Have alternatives at hand. Home base undergoes adjustment or change. Communication barrier can be removed if you persist. Family member will lend moral support.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You have chance now to streamline procedures. Pisces, Virgo persons could figure prominently. Avoid extravagance. Steer clear of temptation to believe that more money necessarily means more quality. Pick and choose — insist on verification, reference — and sincerity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lie low — do more listening than asserting. You may be seeing through prism. Means images could be deceptive. Be especially cautious where legal matters are concerned. You're given additional responsibility — a relationship intensifies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): You have chance to obtain better display, distribution. Round out project. Put finising touches on assignment. Reach beyond what appears to be a limitation. Aries, Libra appear on scene. Stand tall for principles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Romantic involvement can be stimulating — but don't take yourself too seriously. Someone appears to want something from you — for nothing. Protect yourself in emotional clinches. Fresh appraoch may be a necessity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): There is a pushpull here — you are asked to make what could be considered an unusual choice. Key is to rise above the petty, to put jealousy aside, to make yourself secure by being quiet within. You'll comprehend!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you understand people, how they react, respond and what they are likely to do as a group. This has been one of your most important years — featuring business, marriage, family, added responsibility, the comeback from emotional setbacks suffered last year. You are a sincere, dedicated, loyal person who tends to brood, to be somewhat selfish, fearful of trying something new, very loyal to family and determined to be "secure." Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
